Symington Speaks

Our Defenses Are Obsolete, Says Senator

How effective against Soviet attack are the Nike missile bases that surround many American cities? Is the Strategic Air Command still the "great deterrent" it was considered only a year ago? In this second of a series on the great defense debate now under way, a leading congressional defense authority provides some eye-opening opinions on these vital questions.

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

Sen. Stuart Symington, the Missouri Democrat who served President Truman as secretary for air, charges that the Eisenhower administration is not telling the public the truth about our military weaknesses.

CONSIDINE

"When Charlie Wilson was secretary of defense he assured America that we were ahead of the Russians in rocket development, though he knew from intelligence reports that radar installations in Turkey had picked up hundreds of Russian missiles being tested," Symington told this reporter.

"Vice President Nixon told a handpicked group of Washington correspondents not long ago that we're 'closing the gap.' We're doing no such thing. Mr. McElroy (the defense secretary), speaking for the Defense Department and the administration, now tells us that the Russians will soon have a 3-to-1 edge on us in ICBMs. The administration's own people can't get together on their stories."

Symington, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1960, feels that the Eisenhower administration has consistently underestimated Soviet technology.

"Its position seems to be that Russia isn't worth a damn as a military power, so we can afford to yield quantitative superiority because we've got the qualitative edge. All I know is that they're out-producing us in big missiles, have hundreds more submarines than we have, and that the Russian Academy of Sciences was flourishing 50 years before the Declaration of Independence."

He Doubts SAC's Stature

Symington was instrumental in the formation of the Strategic Air Command in 1946. Now he has his doubts about its stature as a deterrent.

"Any effort by SAC today to move against Russia in retaliation would be a kind of reverse of Pearl Harbor. Russia would be the most alerted country in history. They've unquestionably got all types of anti-aircraft guided and homing missiles. They've got thousands of supersonic fighters. SAC has only one type of supersonic bomber, the B58, and darn few of them.

"In time, the B58 will stage out the B47 as our medium bomber. But that will take a long time. B47s make up 75 per cent of SAC's strength, which means that we're depending on a retaliatory air arm that is 75 per cent obsolescent.

"Naval air couldn't help us. The carrier is not a retaliatory weapon. That would leave retaliation up to our ICBMs and the 1,500-mile-range missiles, the Thor and the Jupiter, that we're trying to get our NATO allies to install. So far, only England has accepted any."

The senator is particularly vexed about the American ICBMs.

"Mr. McElroy's position seems to be that we can safely permit the Russians to take a 3-1 lead in intercontinental missiles because we've got an Air Force that is 75 per cent obsolescent and we've got the Polaris — which actually we haven't got. I don't get it.

SYMINGTON

"First he promised that we'd have our first ICBM squadron — that's 10 missiles — in place at Camp Cook, Calif., by July 1 of this year. Then he said, in effect, 'Oops, I mean January 1, 1960.'

"We could more than double our production of Atlas ICBMs with the same floor space now in being. All that would be needed is more tooling. It would be something for the Russians to think about. But the word has gone out to cut, and it's imperiling the security of the nation.

"The administration is asking Congress for 200 million dollars less than last year, and wants to spend 600 million less on missiles. That reminds me of something Bernie Baruch likes to say: 'What's the use of being the richest man in the graveyard?'

"The Air Force must try to replace more than 1,000 B47s with less than 100 B58s. There's a critical shortage of KC135 jet tankers. Congress pressed 1.3 billion dollars in additional funds on the Defense Department last year, after hearing a lot of dire testimony. But defense used only 34 per cent of the money. An additional eight per cent was used for different reasons than what we had intended it to be used for."

Symington agrees with the Rockefeller brothers report which urged that a total of 18 billion additional dollars must be spent in the Defense Department over the next three years — three billion in 1960, six billion in 1961 and nine billion in 1962.

"That wouldn't be any hardship on the country," he insisted to us. "We've figured out that the security of the U.S. cost each American 60 cents a day. Add just a

Rivalry Blamed For Loss

Secrecy Hit On Satellite

The New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Rivalry among united space programs was blamed Sunday night for the loss of the newest artificial earth satellite. The Discoverer satellite is believed by some to be orbiting with its radios mysteriously silent.

Scientists said they could have found the satellite if they had been informed in advance of Saturday's launching. They said unnecessary secrecy surrounded the project.

Nevertheless, what was planned to be the world's first Polar-orbiting satellite may be circling the globe. Officials said Sunday that all phases of the rocket had worked perfectly.

Dr. J. Allen Hynek, associate director of Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, Cambridge, Mass., said he had not been informed of Discoverer's launching plans. The observatory has served as headquarters and nerve-center for the optical tracking operations used successfully on several Soviet and American satellites. The observatory said it was too late for optical tracking.

"We would have needed at least 24 hours' notice to alert our moon watch and other optical tracking stations," Dr. Hynek said.

West coast ground stations reportedly lost radio contact with the vehicle six minutes after it had been launched Saturday afternoon from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. Sunday searchers turned to radar as "the only means of detecting it."

Moon Shot By Army Postponed

No official reason was given for calling off the shoot but it was learned that a power failure was responsible. Gusty winds also were blowing in the area of the missile test center.

It was believed that the next effort to hurl a probe past the moon into a solar orbit will be made tonight.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration issued this statement shortly after the test was scrubbed at 11:38 p.m.:

"Preparations pointing toward an early flight of a U.S. space probe launching were postponed.

"Officials at the range said the postponement was due to technical difficulties. No information is available on the next firing date."

Hope to See Eye Expert

The comedian wasn't his usual happy self as he described the blood clot which has rendered him almost immobile.

"I had quite a setback," he said gloomily. "My doctors said the eye is in worse shape than it was when the clot first formed. So they got a little panicky and suggested I see Dr. Algernon Reese at Columbia Unimersity — one of the best eye men in the world."

Foreign Aid Waste Uncovered

Congressmen Record Abuses

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A congressional committee has found new evidence of stealing and waste in the foreign military assistance program.

The committee found one motor pool in a friendly foreign nation where enough tires were supplied by the U.S. to make 44 tires available in one year for every truck in the pool.

The committee also found evidence that foreign military brass diverted aircraft materiel supplied by the U.S. to manufacture planes for their own personal use.

The committee also learned of apartment houses erected in foreign lands with material and equipment supplied by the U.S. for military construction.

"The scarcity of consumer goods and the low pay scales of military and civil service personnel (in foreign nations) provided an incentive for stealing of U.S. military supplies," said a report of a House foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D., Pa.).

These broad hints of larceny and waste are all the taxpayers of the U.S. can get at this time, because of the usual blanket of official secrecy that has been thrown over the military assistance program by the Pentagon and the Department of State.

Rep. Morgan's subcommittee has held hearings and made a record of the skulduggery aboard, but the Defense and State Departments have bottled up the details, for two reasons.

"First," the committee report states, "many of the events described reflect unfavorably on officials or policies of allied nations.

"Second, publication of full details would provide the Communists with material which would be used to create dissension among our allies."

The subcommittee wistfully admits that if it called a thief a thief, it might create "internal dissension in allied nations," or even bring about a "refusal to cooperate," which would make it more difficult for the U.S. to help defend our client nations.

While unwilling itself to get down to cases and identify thieves among the recipients of military aid, the subcommittee says plaintively:

"It appears that the U.S. has been slow in taking action to prevent pilferage and diversion and that a sufficiently high priority has not yet been given to getting the situation under control."

Man Injured As Winds Topple Wall

Winds of up to 30-mph in gusts Sunday night toppled a 12-foot high brick wall on a pedestrian at Yumuri St. and S. Dixie Highway in Coral Gables.

Coral Gables police freed the unidentified victim from the debris and rushed him to Doctors Hospital for emergency treatment.

Police said the wall was part of a building under construction next to Loew's Riviera theatre.

Meanwhile, winds that caused the accident were expected to diminish today. Forecaster Arnold Sugg said temperatures would be in the high 70s.

The sun was expected to break through again Monday after a fast-moving cold front spun off the tip of Florida with wind gusts up to 40 miles an hour here.

"By Tuesday we should have sunny skies and near normal temperatures," he said.

Late February averaged about seven degrees above normal.

The Federal-State Frost Warning Service in Lakeland said there would be no danger of frost today, but lows would be close to the danger point in north Florida Tuesday morning.

Behind the front, said Sugg, is a dry, cool air mass that will give south Florida north and northwesterly winds for a day or so.

Blast Was Only For Votes: Nikita

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev has advised a foreign ambassador here it was a real toothache, and not diplomatic illness, that kept him from flying with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to Kiev last Wednesday.

The ambassador, who asked not to be identified by name, said in an interview Sunday he had asked Khrushchev point blank whether it was a diplomatic illness in view of reported coolness between the two government chiefs. He quoted Khrushchev as replying:

"No, Mr. Macmillan and I were joking about my ailing tooth before he left for Kiev. I told him premiers must have good teeth and Mr. Macmillan answered: 'I think sometimes your teeth are a little too sharp for us.' "

Khrushchev was pictured as surprised at the world reaction to his tough speech at the Kremlin last Tuesday. He had rapped the West on Berlin and other issues in addressing committees of his district in preparation for an election. A new parliament for the Russian federation, the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, will be chosen.

"It was only an electioneering speech," the envoy quoted the premier as saying. "I doubt it has been suggested that I should not have made the speech until Mr. Macmillan left.

"But the election was to be Sunday, before he left, and I owed it to my voters to explain what is happening.

"That is all I did."

The ambassador said Khrushchev also told him he still is not pessimistic about his talks with Macmillan and he insists there must be a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the Western occupation of West Berlin. He is for a peaceful settlement of the German question.

A lavish Kremlin reception for the British delegation and a TV appearance by Macmillan are on schedule later today.

Khrushchev will visit the spring fair at Leipzig, East Germany, this week. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, would not say when the visit will begin.

Women Hold Future: Pope

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — Pope John XXIII said in a speech Sunday "the serenity of a family, the healthy upbringing of children, the future of the (Roman Catholic) Church and of the country rests in the hands of women."

He spoke to 3,000 members of the Italian Catholic Women's Association at a general audience in the Vatican's Hall of Benediction.

He said women should be the "watchful guardians of that very precious gift which is the family and which — we say it with tears in our heart — is threatened by so many dangers."

Senators Ask Ike For Action

'Spur of Moment' Move Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional concern mounted Sunday over the possibility Russia may go to war over Berlin.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) voiced fear Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev might "do something on the spur of the moment" that would ignite a conflict.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.) urged President Eisenhower to call up four or five additional divisions as a "diplomatic signal to the Soviets that we mean business" in the Berlin crisis.

Jackson said the President has the authority to call up additional troops and the mobilization now of four or five Army or National Guard divisions might prevent a "national catastrophe."

Mansfield, assistant majority leader of the Senate, said Khrushchev would not start a war deliberately although he said it is "always possible" he might risk one.

Interviewed on a recorded radio program (Reporters' Roundup) Mansfield said "I think he (Khrushchev) cannot be trusted not to do something on the spur of the moment" that would start a shooting war.

Jackson advanced his proposal as Chairman Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the U.S. would be finished as "the other great power in the world" if the West abandoned Berlin.

The outpouring of statements underscored an increasingly obvious fact — that senators of both parties regard Russia's plan to give East Germany control over access routes to Berlin on May 27 as one of the gravest threats to peace since World War II.

In Leningrad, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan expressed belief his talks with Soviet leaders, though yielding no immediate results, "will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

"I say that these discussions must lie ahead because I firmly believe that the dangerous situation with which we may be faced cannot be resolved without negotiation," Macmillan declared.

The British leader spoke at a formal dinner given by Leningrad's Mayor N. I. Smirnov. He returns to Moscow by train today for a final talk with Khrushchev.

(Responsible sources in London said Macmillan will return determined to urge President Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle to join him in a summit conference with Khrush-

Girl Plane Passenger Freezes To Death After Arctic Crash

FORT YUKON, Alaska — (AP) — An Alaskan bush pilot, his voice choked with emotion, told Sunday how he found his 16-year-old passenger frozen to death after his plane crashed in the Arctic wilderness.

"I got down on my knees and prayed to God to forgive me if I had done wrong in leaving her," Walter G. Lyon told a U.S. commissioner's inquest here.

Lyon said he found the body of Marie Martin beside the dead embers of a campfire he built to keep her warm while he mushed to the wrecked plane the two had left in hopes of reaching safety.

The 40-year-old Fairbanks man said he had offered to fly Miss Martin to Arctic Village last Tuesday to visit an uncle. En route, he noticed animal tracks on a small lake and landed to investigate. The plane crashed on takeoff. The couple was uninjured but a wing of the plane sheared off.

With only a thermos of coffee and one pair of snowshoes between them, Lyon and the girl decided to hike to the village, 20 miles away. After a few hours in the 40-degrees-below-zero weather, Lyon decided they were lost and thought it best to return to the plane. Miss Martin was exhausted and was unable to continue.

"I gathered a stack of wood and built a fire for her," Lyon said. "I told her to keep it burning and to walk around it to keep her from freezing to death while I went back to get sleeping bags and food.

"When I got back I saw her body lying next to the ashes of the fire. I got down on my knees and prayed God to forgive me if I'd done wrong."

Lyon was rescued later that day by Walter John, a trapper, who came across his snowshoes tracks.

A General Trades His Gun for a Shovel

Yigal Yadin once headed the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947. Today he is steeped in the study of archeology.

Why this successful military man switched to a completely new field makes for a fascinating story.

JERUSALEM, Israel —(AP)— A few years ago Maj. Gen. Yigal Yadin was chief of staff of the Israeli army. Today at 41 he is by choice a civilian and by accomplishment one of the world's leading archeologists.

And no one in Israel thinks it the least unusual that Yadin abandoned a brilliant military career for excavations and the study of scrolls and artifacts.

For in this land of the Bible, one of the well-trodden crossroads of human history, the remote past is as alive as the present. The events of two or three millenia ago are nearly as real as the current events in the morning paper. The archaeologist is as much a part of life as the soldier or politician.

Yadin's change of careers widened the impact of his talents. Where once he fought for Israel, today he works for the entire world of learning. He has helped add greatly to the store of knowledge of Biblical history.

In his new work, Yadin is following in the footsteps of his father, the late professor Eliezer Sukenik, who headed the archeology department of Hebrew University in Jerusalem. (It is not uncommon for a son's name to differ from his father's in Israel, where many people have taken new Hebrew names or translated their names into Hebrew.)

Yigal Yadin, right, Briefs a Premier

. . . explains project to David Ben-Gurion

During the Arab-Israeli War of 1948-49, Prof. Sukenik made perilous journeys into Arab-held territory to purchase for a few hundred dollars the first three of the now famous Dead Sea scrolls.

He made the trips against the advice of his son. But later, Yadin also played a part in the fantastic story of the scrolls. He handled negotiations in New York which led to the purchase for Israel of four more scrolls. These cost nearly a half-million dollars.

Prof. Sukenik died in 1953. His son now carries on in his place at Hebrew University.

Yadin lives in the house of his father, a house built of yellow cut stone which typifies all of new Jerusalem. It was here, in the yard, that Sukenik buried the first three scrolls for a time to protect them in case the Arabs invaded the Israeli sector of the city.

Yadin, tall, a little round at the middle, speaks fluent English. He is quite likely to deliver a visitor what amounts to an hour's lecture on current archeological work in Israel.

The Bible tells how Joshua led the Israelites in capturing and destroying Hazor, one of the Caananites' principal cities. If the date of its destruction could be pinned down, it would assist greatly in dating events described in the Bible subsequently.

For four seasons, 250 diggers and 40 to 45 archeologists worked at Hazor. They made rich finds. It turned out there had been 20 cities on the site of Hazor. The site had once housed 40,000 people on an area of 150 acres — an ancient metropolis. Yadin's group found 250,000 artifacts, 1,000 of which have considerable value.

More importantly, it was possible after studying the evidence to date Hazor's destruction by the Israelites in the 13th Century B.C. much more precisely than before.

Reports on the Hazor excavations are currently being published in scientific journals.

Another subject close to Yadin's heart are the investigations being made by him and his Israeli colleagues on the Dead Sea scrolls.

Ten years ago, Yadin was engaged in a completely different kind of work. As one of Israel's leading commanders and chief of operations of the general staff, he had much of the responsibility for the survival of the newly reborn country.

He came to his post of command as the logical result of heading the general staff branch of Hagana, the Jewish underground in Palestine, in 1947.

Yadin's abandonment of his military career for a civilian pursuit is not unusual in Israel. Maj. Gen. Yaakov Dori, chief of the general staff during the Arab-Israeli war, is now president of Israel's leading technological institute, the Technion in Haifa. Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, chief of staff during the Sinai campaign of 1956, has retired from Army life to take his chances on a political career.

Concern Mounting Over Berlin Crisis

Symington Speaks

Our Defenses Are Obsolete, Says Senator

How effective against Soviet attack are the Nike missile bases that surround many American cities? Is the Strategic Air Command still the "great deterrent" it was considered only a year ago? In this second of a series on the great defense debate now under way, a leading congressional defense authority provides some eye-opening opinions on these vital questions.

Sen. Stuart Symington, the Missouri Democrat who served President Truman as secretary for air, charges that the Eisenhower administration is not telling the public the truth about our military weaknesses.

"The Air Force must try to replace more than 1,000 B47s with less than 100 B58s. There's a critical shortage of KC135 jet tankers. Congress pressed 1.3 billion dollars in additional funds on the Defense Department last year, after hearing a lot of dire testimony. But defense used only 34 per cent of the money. An additional eight per cent was used for different reasons than what we had intended it to be used for."

Symington agrees with the Rockefeller brothers report which urged that a total of 18 billion additional dollars must be spent in the Defense Department over the next three years — three billion in 1960, six billion in 1961 and nine billion in 1962.

"That wouldn't be any hardship on the country," he insisted to us. "We've figured out that the security of the U.S. cost each American 60 cents a day. Add just a

Rivalry Blamed For Loss

Secrecy Hit On Satellite

The New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Rivalry among united space programs was blamed Sunday night for the loss of the newest artificial earth satellite. The Discoverer satellite is believed by some to be orbiting with its radios mysteriously silent.

Scientists said they could have found the satellite if they had been informed in advance of Saturday's launching. They said unnecessary secrecy surrounded the project.

Nevertheless, what was planned to be the world's first Polar-orbiting satellite may be circling the globe. Officials said Sunday that all phases of the rocket had worked perfectly.

Dr. J. Allen Hynek, associate director of Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, Cambridge, Mass., said he had not been informed of Discoverer's launching plans. The observatory has served as headquarters and nerve-center for the optical tracking operations used successfully on several Soviet and American satellites. The observatory said it was too late for optical tracking.

"We would have needed at least 24 hours' notice to alert our moon watch and other optical tracking stations," Dr. Hynek said.

West coast ground stations reportedly lost radio contact with the vehicle six minutes after it had been launched Saturday afternoon from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. Sunday searchers turned to radar as "the only means of detecting it."

Moon Shot By Army Postponed

No official reason was given for calling off the shoot but it was learned that a power failure was responsible. Gusty winds also were blowing in the area of the missile test center.

It was believed that the next effort to hurl a probe past the moon into a solar orbit will be made tonight.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration issued this statement shortly after the test was scrubbed at 11:38 p.m.:

"Preparations pointing toward an early flight of a U.S. space probe launching were postponed.

"Officials at the range said the postponement was due to technical difficulties. No information is available on the next firing date."

Hope to See Eye Expert

The comedian wasn't his usual happy self as he described the blood clot which has rendered him almost immobile.

"I had quite a setback," he said gloomily. "My doctors said the eye is in worse shape than it was when the clot first formed. So they got a little panicky and suggested I see Dr. Algernon Reese at Columbia University — one of the best eye men in the world."

Foreign Aid Waste Uncovered

Congressmen Record Abuses

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A congressional committee has found new evidence of stealing and waste in the foreign military assistance program.

The committee found one motor pool in a friendly foreign nation where enough tires were supplied by the U.S. to make 44 tires available in one year for every truck in the pool.

The committee also found evidence that foreign military brass diverted aircraft materiel supplied by the U.S. to manufacture planes for their own personal use.

The committee also learned of apartment houses erected in foreign lands with material and equipment supplied by the U.S. for military construction.

"The scarcity of consumer goods and the low pay scales of military and civil service personnel (in foreign nations) provided an incentive for stealing of U.S. military supplies," said a report of a House foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D., Pa.).

These broad hints of larceny and waste are all the taxpayers of the U.S. can get at this time, because of the usual blanket of official secrecy that has been thrown over the military assistance program by the Pentagon and the Department of State.

Rep. Morgan's subcommittee has held hearings and made a record of the skulduggery aboard, but the Defense and State Departments have bottled up the details, for two reasons.

"First," the committee report states, "many of the events described reflect unfavorably on officials or policies of allied nations.

"Second, publication of full details would provide the Communists with material which would be used to create dissension among our allies."

The subcommittee wistfully admits that if it called a thief a thief, it might create "internal dissension in allied nations," or even bring about a "refusal to cooperate," which would make it more difficult for the U.S. to help defend our client nations.

While unwilling itself to get down to cases and identify thieves among the recipients of military aid, the subcommittee says plaintively:

"It appears that the U.S. has been slow in taking action to prevent pilferage and diversion and that a sufficiently high priority has not yet been given to getting the situation under control."

'A Little Walk' Lasts 43 Years

NORTON, England —(UPI) — Forty-three years ago, Laurent Barnes told his wife he was going for a little walk. He returned Sunday.

"You are just as I pictured you, dear," the 75-year-old Barnes told his 76-year-old wife, Emily. He had been living in Bristol since 1915.

"I have longed for this moment," Mrs. Barnes said. "It has eased a pain in my heart."

Man Injured As Winds Topple Wall

Winds of up to 30-mph in gusts Sunday night toppled a 12-foot high brick wall on a pedestrian at Yumuri St. and S. Dixie Highway in Coral Gables.

Police said the wall was part of a building under construction next to Loew's Riviera theatre.

Meanwhile, winds that caused the accident were expected to diminish today. Forecaster Arnold Sugg said temperatures would be in the high 70s.

The sun was expected to break through again Monday after a fast-moving cold front spun off the tip of Florida with wind gusts up to 40 miles an hour here.

"By Tuesday we should have sunny skies and near normal temperatures," he said.

Late February averaged about seven degrees above normal.

The Federal-State Frost Warning Service in Lakeland said there would be no danger of frost today, but lows would be close to the danger point in north Florida Tuesday morning.

Behind the front, said Sugg, is a dry, cool air mass that will give south Florida north and northwesterly winds for a day or so.

Blast Was Only For Votes: Nikita

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev has advised a foreign ambassador here it was a real toothache, and not diplomatic illness, that kept him from flying with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to Kiev last Wednesday.

The ambassador, who asked not to be identified by name, said in an interview Sunday he had asked Khrushchev point blank whether it was a diplomatic illness in view of reported cooiness between the two government chiefs. He quoted Khrushchev as replying:

"No, Mr. Macmillan and I were joking about my ailing tooth before he left for Kiev. I told him premiers must have good teeth and Mr. Macmillan answered: 'I think sometimes your teeth are a little too sharp for us.'"

Khrushchev was pictured as surprised at the world reaction to his tough speech at the Kremlin last Tuesday. He had rapped the West on Berlin and other issues in addressing committees of his district in preparation for an election. A new parliament for the Russian federation, the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, will be chosen.

"It was only an electioneering speech," the envoy quoted the premier as saying. "I doubt it has been suggested that I should not have made the speech until Mr. Macmillan left.

"But the election was to be Sunday, before he left, and I owed it to my voters to explain what is happening.

"That is all I did."

The ambassador said Khrushchev also told him he still is not pessimistic about his talks with Macmillan and he insists there must be a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the Western occupation of West Berlin. He is for a peaceful settlement of the German question.

Talks resume today after Macmillan returns from Leningrad.

A lavish Kremlin reception for the British delegation and a TV appearance by Macmillan are on schedule later today.

Khrushchev will visit the spring fair at Leipzig, East Germany, this week. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, would not say when the visit will begin.

Women Hold Future: Pope

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — Pope John XXIII said in a speech Sunday "the serenity of a family, the healthy upbringing of children, the future of the (Roman Catholic) Church and of the country rests in the hands of women."

He spoke to 3,000 members of the Italian Catholic Women's Association at a general audience in the Vatican's Hall of Benediction.

He said women should be the "watchful guardians of that very precious gift which is the family and which — we say it with tears in our heart — is threatened by so many dangers."

Senators Ask Ike For Action

'Spur of Moment' Move Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional concern mounted Sunday over the possibility Russia may go to war over Berlin.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) voiced fear Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev might "do something on the spur of the moment" that would ignite a conflict.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.) urged President Eisenhower to call up four or five additional divisions as a "diplomatic signal to the Soviets that we mean business" in the Berlin crisis.

Jackson said the President has the authority to call up additional troops and the mobilization now of four or five Army or National Guard divisions might prevent a "national catastrophe."

Mansfield, assistant majority leader of the Senate, said Khrushchev would not start a war deliberately although he said it is "always possible" he might risk one.

Interviewed on a recorded radio program (Reporters' Roundup) Mansfield said "I think he (Khrushchev) cannot be trusted not to do something on the spur of the moment" that would start a shooting war.

Jackson advanced his proposal as Chairman Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the U.S. would be finished as "the other great power in the world" if the West abandoned Berlin.

The outpouring of statements underscored an increasingly obvious fact — that senators of both parties regard Russia's plan to give East Germany control over access routes to Berlin on May 27 as one of the gravest threats to peace since World War II.

In Leningrad, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan expressed belief his talks with Soviet leaders, though yielding no immediate results, "will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

"I say that these discussions must lie ahead because I firmly believe that the dangerous situation with which we may be faced cannot be resolved without negotiation," Macmillan declared.

The British leader spoke at a formal dinner given by Leningrad's Mayor N. I. Smirnov. He returns to Moscow by train today for a final talk with Khrushchev.

(Responsible sources in London said Macmillan will return determined to urge President Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle to join him in a summit conference with Khrush-

Girl Plane Passenger Freezes To Death After Arctic Crash

FORT YUKON, Alaska — (AP) — An Alaskan bush pilot, his voice choked with emotion, told Sunday how he found his 16-year-old passenger frozen to death after his plane crashed in the Arctic wilderness.

"I got down on my knees and prayed to God to forgive me if I had done wrong in leaving her," Walter G. Lyon told a U.S. commissioner's inquest here.

Lyon said he found the body of Marie Martin beside the dead embers of a campfire he built to keep her warm while he mushed to the wrecked plane the two had left in hopes of reaching safety.

The 40-year-old Fairbanks man said he had offered to fly Miss Martin to Arctic Village last Tuesday to visit an uncle. En route, he noticed animal tracks on a small lake and landed to investigate. The plane crashed on takeoff. The couple was uninjured but a wing of the plane sheared off.

With only a thermos of coffee and one pair of snowshoes between them, Lyon and the girl decided to hike to the village, 20 miles away. After a few hours in the 40-degrees-below-zero weather, Lyon decided they were lost and thought it best to return to the plane. Miss Martin was exhausted and was unable to continue.

"I gathered a stack of wood and built a fire for her," Lyon said. "I told her to keep it burning and to walk around it to keep her from freezing to death while I went back to get sleeping bags and food.

"When I got back I saw her body lying next to the ashes of the fire. I got down on my knees and prayed God to forgive me if I'd done wrong."

Lyon was rescued later that day by Walter John, a trapper, who came across his snowshoes tracks.

Giant Liner and Tanker Collide in Atlantic Fog

Norwegian Ship's Bow Lopped Off

NEW YORK —(UPI)— The newly-remodeled American luxury liner Constitution sheared the bow off a tanker in a dense Atlantic fog Sunday in a collision at a busy shipping crossroads 22 miles from the foot of Broadway. Officials immediately investigated whether the ships' radar scopes were operating.

There were no deaths or injuries in the collision of the Constitution and the Norwegian tanker Jalanta. Both steamed to a Brooklyn repair yard under their own power.

The Constitution carried only a skeleton crew of 110, instead of her full complement of 1,100 passengers and a crew of 585. She was headed toward a gala New York welcome after undergoing more than three million dollars in alterations at a Virginia shipyard.

The Jalanta, which was outward bound, also had been undergoing an overhaul in New York City.

Both ships were equipped with radar, and the Coast Guard launched an immediate investigation of the crash. Cmdr. Meyer Stockman, officer in charge of the New York area of the Coast Guard marine security team, sent investigators to board both vessels when they docked to question captains and crews.

He said that a formal hearing would be held later.

The impact of the collision ripped one side of the Consitution open like a tin can. When the ship docked at a repair yard, a gaping hole in her side was visible from a great distance.

The worst damage was on the port bow. A gash 60 feet long had been ripped in the ship's side about halfway between the water line and the main deck. The gash tapered from eight feet high near the bow to about 15 feet farther back on the port side.

The tanker arrived shortly after the Constitution. The tanker's bow was cleanly shaved off at a cross-sectional bulkhead. There was a small amount of tangled metal at the edge of the impact area and a white catwalk dangled onto the water.

An official said about 135 feet of the bow was severed.

The accident happened at about 10:40 a.m. about five miles off Ambrose Lightship, the famous shipping beacon at the mouth of New York harbor.

Both the Constitution and the 539-foot-long Norwegian tanker Jalanta remained afloat after the crash, but a 120-foot section of the tanker's bow was set adrift and menaced other navigation in the area until a tugboat took it in tow.

The 12,228-ton Jalanta was headed south from New York for Venezuela to pick up a cargo of oil.

Argument Replayed for Court

Hubby Hit With Hammer; Tape Recorder Saves Wife

BRISTOL, England —(AP)— A wife of 22 who took a hammer to her husband has been saved from jail by a tape recorder.

The husband, 29-year-old Clifford Bracey, switched the machine on to record a radio broadcast. It was still running when Bracey and his wife Rachel started to row.

Mrs. Bracey pleaded guilty in a Bristol court to wounding her husband. She admitted hitting him on the head with a four-pound hammer while he was in bed.

A detective placed the recorder in front of the judge and switched it on. The voices of the young couple echoed round the courtroom.

After the 15-minute recording, Judge Slade told the wife:

"You were driven almost to desperation when you committed this dreadful deed."

And the judge said because of the recording he had decided to free Mrs. Bracey on her promise of good behavior.

"I hope you will have a happy married life in future," he added.

The couple, reconciled since the attack, walked arm in arm from the court.

Plane With 5 Vanishes In Georgia

SAVANNAH, Ga. —(UPI)— A charter plane with five persons aboard vanished on a flight over south Georgia in bad weather early Sunday.

Nine military aircraft and 23 Civil Air Patrol planes took part in a search extending from near Albany, Ga., to Savannah. The passengers included Howard Jarrott III, 34, a prominent Savannah attorney, and his five-year-old daughter, Cynthia. Also aboard was Jarrott's cousin, George Jarrott, 31, pilot James W. Wasden of Mobile, Ala., and a co-pilot. The copilot was not identified.

'Gag Line' Leads Cars Off Highway

MODENA, Italy — (UPI) — Police Sunday sought the unfunny pranksters who repainted the center dividing line on the main highway here and caused at least 15 automobiles to go off the road into the bushes.

No injuries were reported since all the cars were traveling at slow speed because of fog. The accidents came after dark.

The pranksters also changed direction signs at several crossroads, sending many motorists the wrong way.

But the most dangerous "prank" was the misdirected center-line strip, which motorists must use as a guide at night, particularly in fog.

Unknown persons blacked out the center strip on a curve of highway 12 which leads north to the Brenner Pass.

Then a new white line was painted in, leading gradually off the highway into the bushes.

chev as the only way of removing the Soviet threat to West Berlin.)

Macmillan spoke in broad terms of his 10-day mission to Moscow after a day of seeing Leningrad's sights in grey, drizzling weather. While he toured the city, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had a 90-minute conference intended to clarify British and Soviet positions prior to the final Macmillan-Khrushchev session.

Dinner guests with Macmillan were Lloyd, Gromyko and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Anastas I. Mikoyan.

"We can only be friends in any true meaning of the word if we first know one another better," Macmillan said. "I have already had frank conversations with your leaders in Moscow."

The prime minister then referred to Mikoyan's Friday night speech at Rostov, in which Mikoyan said Macmillan had reversed the normal course of negotiations by starting with the sweet and going on to the sour.

"I see that Mr. Mikoyan had some criticism to make of the conduct of the conversations, but I was glad that he felt they were being useful," Macmillan said.

"It is very good to him to be here tonight and I look forward to further discussions with him and with the other Soviet leaders when I return to Moscow.

"I believe that these talks even though they cannot — and were not intended to — lead to any immediate solutions will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

Meanwhile, Communist East Germany Sunday celebrated the third anniversary of its 100,000-man army with military parades and simultaneously began spadework designed to force the issue of Berlin.

Preparations for Khrushchev's visit this week to the Leipzig Spring Fair began in East Berlin Saturday night when Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Pervukhin began talks on a separate East German peace treaty.

The East German ADN News Agency reported Pervukhin met with East German Premier Otto Grotewohl and Communist Party Chief Walter Ulbricht on "questions connected with Soviet proposals for conclusion of a German peace treaty and liquidation of the occupation regime in East Berlin." There were no further details.

Severed Cable Is Back in Use

MONTREAL —(UPI)— Full service was restored Sunday on the transatlantic telephone cable that was severed mysteriously Feb. 21, resulting in the boarding of a Russian trawler by the U.S. Navy.

It took crews working around the clock just under eight days to complete the splicing of the cable about 100 miles east of Clarenville, Newfoundland. Four Western Union telegraph cables were still to be repaired.

U.S. Failing to Close Gap With Russia, Symington Says

nickel to that and you'd have the three billion needed for this coming year.

"I asked Wernher von Braun two questions: First, 'when must we start new thinking and make new decisions if we are to remain a great power?' He answered, 'right now.' Then I asked him, 'if we don't do this, when will the position of the U.S. become hopeless?' He answered, 'in about a decade.'

"For this and other reasons, I persuaded Lyndon Johnson to put all the defense department witnesses under oath before they answered our questions. We've got to have the truth at this critical hour."

The truth, Symington says, is capsuled in the following. It is a compilation of his many charges that the will of Congress is being thwarted on defense:

— Congress appropriated 90 million dollars addition to expedite work on the Minuteman ICBM, of which he has said, "no more important new weapon is scheduled." Not one cent of that money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 48 million dollars additional for the Hound Dog missile, an an air-to-ground jet-propelled unit designed to be hurled against defense installations several hundred miles ahead of advancing B52Gs. Not one cent of this money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 140 million dollars to give the Army more mobility. Not one cent of this has been used, or is scheduled to be used, in the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 609 million dollars more to expand the Polaris-submarine program from five such weapons systems to nine. The administration has allocated some of this money for one additional submarine. There is no plan to use the rest of this money during the present fiscal year.

— Money appropriated by Congress for the personnel strength of the Marine Corps was either frozen, or used for purposes not specified by the Congress.

"Fifty-eight per cent of that billion, three hundred million extra we gave to defense this year has been frozen," Symington asserts.

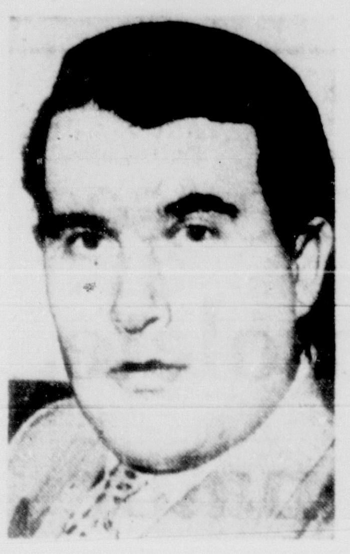
Symington and others were alarmed to learn from the testimony of Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of SAC, that he cannot keep his intercontinental bombers on air alert, that is, keep a certain portion of the SAC strength airborne around the clock, because of the expense involved. It was supposed by many (including Khrushchev) that SAC kept at least a third of its strength airborne and bomb-laden.

In the wake of that testimony, Symington issued this statement:

"If the Soviets have a superiority in ICBMs two to three years hence, they can use those missiles needed to destroy our ICBMs, and they can use the remainder against as much of our Strategic Air Command as is not airborne at that time.

"Since there will be no warning of this attack, only those SAC bombers which are airborne at that time can be relied upon for effective retaliation.

"If the Soviets have a significant ICBM superiority in two to three years hence, as testified, they can in a matter of moments destroy our missile force and the SAC-manned bomber force not in the air at that time. If at that time, as is currently the case, none of our SAC bombers is on airborne alert, the simple conclusion is that with a significant missile superiority the Russians could wipe out our entire manned and unmanned retaliatory force.



Wernher von Braun

. . . 'right now'

"The most useful addition to the current budget would be whatever is required to keep a significant number of our SAC bombers airborne throughout the perilous next two or three years — and be sure the Soviets are appraised of this retaliatory capability in the air.

"Obviously, too, we should have more ICBMs sooner, and also they should be dispersed and these bases hardened as quickly as possible."

Symington is critical of many Defense Department investments.

"We've spent six billion dollars on the Nike program," he points out. "But we built these short-range rocket bases around the cities. Retaliation against Russia isn't going to come from cities. It's going to come from air bases. The Nike installations should be around air bases. For instance, there is no defense against submarine-launched missile attacks against, let's say, the site of our first proposed Atlas base at Camp Cook, Calif.

"When I asked the Defense Department why it spent all that money protecting cities the answer I got was 'we don't know. Probably for the psychological effect.' We could have bought more psychological effect if we had put that money in the Voice of America."

He believes the whole matter of security can be summed up in a three-point list:

1—The U.S. wants a just and lasting peace.

2—The best way to get it is through puncture-proof inspection of nuclear arms-making potentialities.

3—We have a better chance of getting peace if we can negotiate from a position of relative strength, not weakness.

Chemicals Rip Train With Blasts

DANVILLE, Ky. —(AP)— A freight train carrying chemicals from the Atomic Energy Commission was torn by fire and explosions Sunday when 28 cars derailed.

After the accident, state police evacuated the 125 residents of nearby Geneva in central Kentucky and threw up roadblocks to keep out spectators.

"They should be back in their homes today," state police said. "We decided upon the evacuation because we didn't know the nature of the cargo and were afraid of further explosions."

An AEC spokesman at Oak Ridge said the train carried no radioactive material but such highly inflammable chemicals as carbon disulphide. The chemicals, loaded at Chattanooga, were assigned to the National Lead Co., Cincinnati.

Six volunteer fire departments brought the blaze under control nine hours after it started.

The railroad could offer no explanation for the accident.

Rain fell over the Atlantic states with significant amounts in North Carolina, where Hatteras reported 1.70 inches in 24 hours. Temperatures in the eastern states ranged from the 30s and 40s in New England to the 50s in Virginia and the 60s in Florida.

A disturbance over the Northwest produced rain and snow showers accompanied by gusty winds over the northern Rockies where Cutbank, Mont. reported gusts to 68 mph. Occasional rain with periods of sunshine prevailed over the Pacific Northwest.

High pressure areas centered over Texas and Utah were associated with general rain through the southwest. Temperatures in the central portion of th country ranged from the 30s and 40s in the northern border states to the 60s in Texas with Rapid City, S.D., one of the warmer stations where 62 was reached during the morning. Readings in the western states ranged from near 50 in Washington to the 70s in Southern California.

How Will We Protect A-Workers?

By JOHN W. FINNEY
The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy will investigate the potentially controversial problem of how to protect workers against the hazards of the atomic age.

Rep. Melvin Price, (D., Ill.) announced Sunday that the atomic research and development subcommittee would begin two weeks of public hearings March 10 on industrial radiation hazards and how to provide workmen's compensation for radiation injuries.

"With the rapid expansion of the peaceful uses of atomic energy," Price said, "there is general realization that we must come to grips — and soon — with the related problems of employe radiation hazards and workmen's compensation for radiation injuries."

In "coming to grips" with the problems, however, the subcommittee recognizes that it is venturing into areas of scientific unknowns and ill-defined social responsibilities and that before the investigation is over it is likely to become embroiled in a political controversy over federal vs. state relations.

The AFL-CIO, in policy statements and atomic energy conferences, has endorsed the passage of federal legislation to protect workers against radiation injuries. The insurance companies generally favor keeping the compensation problem within the traditional framework of state laws.

In the half-century history of workmen's compensation laws, the atomic industry presents new problems. This is because of the unseen, unfelt nature of atomic radiation and the long-term injuries it can produce in the human body which may not be observed for decades or even generations.

Absentee Control Frustrates Louisville

By SYLVIA PORTER
Financial Analyst

SYLVIA

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — If you lived and worked for a manufacturing firm in Louisville today, the odds are better than six to one that you'd be an employe of a plant owned by outsiders — controlled by interests far removed from your home-town.

More than 60 per cent of the manufacturing jobs in this proud, 187-year-old Kentucky city are in absentee - owned corporations. Decisions of crucial importance to the workers, their families, the entire community are not made by Louisville residents; often they're made by tycoons, efficiency experts or financiers who only rarely visit the city.

If you lived and worked for a big retail store in Louisville, the odds are a towering eight or nine to one that you'd be working for a branch, a coast-to-coast chain.

Of Louisville's seven biggest stores only one is home-owned and that one is fifth in size. The store manager may appear in charge, but it's most improbable that the key policies are set by him. Rather, the likelihood is they're fixed at headquarters elsewhere.

In Louisville, absentee ownership of industrial plants, stores, major service organizations is no longer a threat arising from the great merger trend of this decade.

In Louisville, absentee control is striking at the very industrial and financial heart of the city itself. Here is a tale which cities the nation over will ignore at their own peril.

The list of Louisville companies sold to or absorbed by nationwide concerns since World War II covers dozens upon dozens of once-famous names. And I'm not including new factories which American corporations have established here — such as General Electric's creation on Louisville's outskirts of Appliance Park, the world's largest home appliance factory. Nor am I touching on the hundreds of small distilleries which have been gobbled up by the liquor plants. Omitting these, consider that just in the past 10 years:

Mengel Furniture has become Kroehler and Mengel Box has become Container Corp. of America . . . Girdler Tube Turns has become National Cylinder Gas and B. F. Avery has become Minneapolis-Moline . . . Ballard Mills has become Pillsbury and C. T. Dearing Printing has become Fawcett Publications . . . Cochran Foil has become Anaconda Co. and Enro Shirt has become Wilson Bros. . . . And so it goes.

Of course, in many instances, the workers and city have benefited. Some payrolls have been sharply increased. New talent has come into town. And as Archie P. Cochran, head of Cochran Foil until its merger with Anaconda two months ago, put it to me, "We had reached a size where we had to compete for national markets, but we didn't have the cash, research or marketing facilities to do so properly. Merger will bring us these."

But in other instances, payrolls have dwindled, disappeared. And hidden beneath the surface are threats which are actively worrying leaders of Louisville. Here are exact quotes from Louisville citizens whose names I am deliberately withholding:

"We go into a plant, ask for contributions to the Community Chest or Louisville Fund and what we get is an indifferent nod. The managers aren't part of Louisville. They feel they're camping out and they don't care about the city's future . . ."

More Federal Aid For Schools?

We Aren't Doing Our Part

LET'S EXAMINE a statement made to the Senate Education subcommittee by Thomas D. Bailey, Florida's superintendent of public instruction.

He said Florida "has reached the practical limits of educational improvement that are possible through state and local tax resources."

That isn't true.

The cost of public schools in Florida is shared by the state and the counties. To qualify for state money, counties must put up a sum fixed by a complex formula.

Not one of the 67 counties is assessing its property for taxes at the full value required by law. Jackson County, to mention just one, was at the 32-per cent level last year. The state average is 50 per cent.

The lower the assessment, the smaller the yield from the maximum tax rate for schools.

MALCOLM JOHNSON of The Tallahassee Democrat has pointed out that parents of school-age children, and others, are going tax-free in homes that should be only one-half or one-third exempt by strict use of the constitutional $5,000 limit.

Besides, Mr. Johnson notes, the people in the counties still have the right to vote enough taxes on themselves to build and run proper schools for their children.

"There isn't a Florida county that can't do more if its people want good local schools," Editor Johnson writes. "Nearly every one has neglected the property tax supply that was set aside exclusively for local financing 20 years ago, and has preferred to come begging to Tallahassee for state handouts."

So now Superintendent Bailey would shift the burden to taxpayers everywhere in the country. That is the effect of his voluntary testimony in Washington in favor of a bill for federal subsidies which would cost $1 billion the first year, rising to $4.7 billion in the fourth year.

IN OTHER WORDS, Mr. Bailey favors taxing people in Oregon, Maine and the other 47 states to subsidize public schools in Florida — and vice versa.

His title may have caused the senators to think he was speaking for Florida and all its people. If so, they are likely to be undeceived shortly by a more representative group — the State Legislature.

Mr. Bailey should have made clear to the senators, if he didn't, that he was speaking strictly for himself and, perhaps, for other educationists who see only one remedy for all the problems of the school system: "Send more money."

Our Factory Smoke Is Thin

WE HEAR a lot of talk about Florida becoming industrialized but the record doesn't show it. The federal government has released figures which show we rank 42nd among the states in the amount of personal income derived from manufacturing. The only states below us are in the wide open West whose chief products are cattle and sagebrush.

We get only 8.1 per cent of our personal income from industrial wages and salaries. The national average is 23.4 per cent. Michigan, at the head of the list, boasts 36.8 per cent.

The government economists point out, however, that we rank so low not because we're destitute of factories but because we get so much more from other activities. That's true. A visitor motoring along U.S. 1 for the first time probably figures every Floridian runs a motel.

Here Comes 'Aluminum Alice!'

THE NAME OF FORD may be associated with another revolution in the automotive field equal to that brought about by the old "Tin Lizzie."

Ford Motor Company is the first of the Big Three to announce a plan to produce a small car, which will be on the market this fall at less than $2,000.

General Motors and Chrysler have plans, too. In fact, there is speculation in the industry that GM's entry in the Lilliputian race will hit the nation's highways first.

Henry Ford first put this nation on wheels with his mass-produced Model T that sold for only a few hundred dollars. It took the city dweller into the suburbs and the farmer to the city, sparked road construction, made oil companies rich and gave rise to hundreds of jokes that have passed into folklore.

With small foreign cars biting off increasing chunks of the American market —25 per cent of the new cars sold in Dade last year were in this category — it was inevitable that Ford and its competitors would be forced into the field.

The question now is how much of an impact it will make on the American scene. Our prediction is that it will be tremendous.

As U.S.-built cars grew heavier, longer, faster and more gas-hungry, small foreign cars sold themselves on economy and ease of operation and parking. Once a fad, they soon found solid acceptance as a basic family second car, and often the only car. Taxes helped the trend. The motorist saw himself paying the heaviest taxes of any specialized group, and this specialized group includes everybody.

BUT THE ARGUMENT that finally overcame the reluctance of the Big Three to get into the small car field was the phenomenal success of the Lark and the Rambler, the small-car entries of Studebaker-Packard and of American Motors. The Lark is selling at a rate of 4,000 a week, after only three months on the market, and Rambler sales are at twice that rate.

The demand for an American-made small car has been amply proven, and Ford has taken the plunge.

Municipal authorities everywhere, harassed by lack of parking space, will cheer Ford's decision. The new Ford model will be 2 feet 2 inches shorter and 9 inches narrower. Road departments will applaud the reduction of weight by 700 pounds. Motorists will be interested in the fact that gas mileage is expected to exceed 25.

Only the foreign manufacturers, who haven't been able to keep up with this expanding American market, will be unhappy over the development. If American pioneering know-how in the automotive field performs as expected, a new generation of "Tin Lizzies," — or perhaps more appropriately in this metallurgic age, "Aluminum Alices" — will soon be scooting over the nation's freeways and byways.

Their Prose Is Flowery

"WHAT SHALL our national flower be?" The subject of the debate now going on in the Senate sounds like the title of a song. Some of the talk on the Senate floor reads like a poem.

Proponents of the rose, a strong entry, declare it beautiful and universal in its appeal, making every woman who wears it more lovely. Supporters of the carnation, another favorite, praise its fertility, its virility, its courage.

One group of senators headed by Paul Douglas of Illinois has a different suggestion—the corn tassel flower. Many people wouldn't consider this a flower at all, but it is, botanically. It's purely American, since maize was growing here when the first white men arrived. The flower is a symbol of growth and fruitfulness. It has a singular and graceful beauty as it waves with promise in the summer sun. And it grows in every state of the union.

The nation which has an eagle for its insignia could do worse than have the blossom of the corn as its flower.

Under Home Rule It's Different

TWO PUBLIC HEARINGS here this week should offer quite a contrast to their counterparts in any of Florida's other 66 counties.

The Miami sessions are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday in the Municipal Buildings on NW 12th Ave. Dade County's state senator and three legislators will preside. They will listen to proposals for new laws and presumably any other discussion of measures likely to come before the State Legislature this spring.

Such hearings are customary here and elsewhere in Florida. Most are virtually pre-empted by city and county officials seeking new laws governing their work.

In three suburbs of Jacksonville this month, Duval County's lawmakers heard the pros and cons of bills to annex territory around these municipalities. City officials there also talked about bills changing their term of office, creating a new city civil service program, authorizing an annual instead of a semi-annual audit of city government.

AT GAINESVILLE, Alachua County commissioners talked to their lawmakers about measures for stricter subdivision control, appointment of hospital trustees and of a water conservation and recreation board.

But no such details will burden Dade County's four delegates in Tallahassee. Here, under Home Rule, all strictly local affairs are now handled on the spot by the voters or their elected officials.

Indeed, the Florida Supreme Court has ruled that Home Rule wiped out the right of the Legislature to pass any local laws whatever for Dade County or any of its political subdivisions. The Home Rule Charter spells out the method of handling these matters.

As a result, State Sen. Joe Eaton and Reps. W. C. Herrell, George Hollahan and David Eldredge are free to devote their full attention to legislative business of statewide concern. Their hearings this week should be unlike all the rest.

Authority Of Badge Abused

Editor The Herald: In connection with recent articles on the misuse of police equipment and personnel in private enterprise, I wonder how many of the citizens of this area realize there is another flagrant misuse of public authority and the uniform and badge.

This is one of the few places where it is possible to hire a police officer, complete with badge and gun, to direct traffic for the assistance of private business and to the detriment of the traveling public.

I often wonder when held up in the downtown area at parking lots, bank drive-in's and other areas, how many people realized that the uniformed officer holding up lanes of other traffic, is not on duty but working for private enterprise in off-duty hours. The uniforms and police equipment which they use are furnished and replaced at the expense of the taxpayer.

Most anyone observing an officer under arms and in uniform thinks he is officially discharging his duty even though they may wonder how a parking lot rates this kind of service.

It is my opinion that police authority, the symbol of badge, gun and uniform, should be reserved for law enforcement. I do not object to anyone making extra money, but I do not think that it should be done in this manner.

Cut Out Picking On Eisenhower

Editor The Herald: The sarcastic criticism of Eisenhower's golfing and hunting, which has appeared in the editorial columns of The Herald, in our opinion, is in very poor taste. The President is following the advice of his personal physician and if taking this advice will enable him to finish out his second term, we see no harm in it.

The tears shed by some of these writers when Ike was seriously ill appear to have been of the crocodile variety.

BISCAYNE BILL

Causeway Opening To Last Frontier

Editor The Herald: You bemoan the fact that the expansion of Dade County is rapidly spilling over into the counties to the north. I ask, where else can it go? We have practically no ocean frontage left except for the Keys to the south of Key Biscayne, none of which is accessible to development. Miami Beach has reached the point of saturation.

These Keys with miles of ocean frontage represent our last frontier and unless we soon connect them up with the mainland by a causeway we will be unable to halt the trend which is already on the march. The Port Authority might better develop the 8,000 acres of bottom land in Biscayne Bay which has been set aside for a future jet airport rather than seek additional air space and facilities in Broward County which can render only temporary relief.

Isn't it time we all got behind the causeway project to open this last frontier for the continued progress and prosperity of the community and assure us plenty of room to expand for a long look into the future?

Responsibility Felt By Many Drivers

Editor The Herald: When my insurance company issued a liability policy to me it agreed to stand behind me in case of accident.

I, also, feel a certain responsibility. I don't want to have an accident—just can't afford to have one, and I intend to keep on doing everything I know how to avoid having one.

In spite of the bad accident record this county has, I am sure there are lots of other drivers here who feel as I do.

Much as I hated it, I spoiled my 35-year-old record last winter when I had my first accident (a minor one, I am glad to say, and for which the company promptly paid the claim of about $38.) I hope and believe that I won't have any more, even if it is only a dented fender or bumper on the other car.

A lot of people are more or less indifferent to accidents because they are insured and, after all, it is the responsibility of their company to take care of everything. Why not? Most insurance companies have plenty of money. I don't believe they stop to think that you are in business to make a profit, and also that you must have large reserves.

Many of our accidents are caused by people who are just plain discourteous and selfish —who believe it is smart to beat the yellow light when they should stop, and who only hesitate at stop streets.

I hope my company won't pull out of Florida as so many others have.

Never Think Of Taxpayers

Editor The Herald: Your temperate but penetrating editorial on the move to reorganize the Florida Department of Agriculture, the first in 70 years, surely is worthy.

With 30 years in federal bureaucracy ended and in a position to observe closely the appointive-administrative "royal" family in their never ceasing efforts to build it ever upward without the slightest regard for tax dollars, I certainly appreciate the insight you displayed on the subject.

Rarely if ever does one hear of a move by bureaucrats to reduce their forces even if plainly justified. But we continually hear on every hand that they need more taxes for the many services the tax victims are demanding, which, in many instances, we never heard of.

Politics Still Noble Profession; George Washington Was A Master

Editor The Herald: The most successful Presidents have been the best politicians in a high sense — but politicians. The American people do not appreciate administrative capacity in the presidency to anything like the degree that they appreciate a sense of human contact with the President: that he is par excellence, their voice, their spokesman, their friend.

A great part of the success of the American Revolution and of the new government of 1789 was due to the amazing political instinct of George Washington.

Hear this description of him in Philadelphia as a member of the Continental Congress:

"When Colonel Washington strode through the streets of Philadelphia, his imposing ways, his tall form in his handsome uniform . . . attracted a great deal of notice . . .

IT'S STILL A GREAT PROFESSION POLITICIAN
EGGS

"He made a profound impression. He was seen everywhere. In the morning and afternoon in Congress, in the evening at the tavern with the merchants, or dining in society . . . He was untiring.

* * *

"ONE SUNDAY morning he appeared at a Quaker meeting. In the afternoon he attended benediction at the Catholic Church. He frequented the taverns where the New England delegates were lodged, as well as those where the delegates from Carolina were dined, and going everywhere, wherever he went he gave the same tall impression of force, resolution and calm."

There was your political genius.

F. S. OLIVER said:

"Politics is the most hazardous of all professions. There is not another in which a man can hope to do so much good to his fellow creatures, neither is there any in which by a mere loss of nerve he may do such widespread harm, nor is there another in which he may so easily lose his own soul, nor is there another in which a positive and strict veracity is so difficult.

"But danger is the inseparable companion of honor. With all the temptations and degradations that beset it, politics is still the noblest career that any man can choose."

It's Worth Try To Level Off Gas Tax

By JOHN PENNEKAMP

STATE SEN. Joe Eaton's statement that he would withhold decision on the suggestion to increase the gasoline tax in Dade County deserves more than the casual attention it is likely to get.

He wants first, he said, to make "a good faith effort to get a revision in the existing tax."

He was referring to the so-called secondary tax — three cents of the seven cents you pay the state.

Pennekamp

The formula, written in 1931, is unfair and discriminatory. It is based on population, area, and roads then in existence.

It brings about inequalities under which some 30 counties each year get back more than their total of gasoline tax collections, while others, primarily Dade, recover only a fraction.

For instance:

Dade County last year paid in total gasoline taxes of $18.999 million, was awarded as secondary funds $3.598 million.

Broward, which paid in $6.944 million, got back $1.014 million.

Duval paid in $9.102 million, got $2.598 million.

Hillsborough paid $9.628 million, got $1.832 million.

By comparison:

Collier paid $511,769, got $798,780.

Osceola paid $494,320, got $743,546.

Union paid $79,501, got $219,023.

The extremes of the disparities becomes more apparent when it is pointed out that the money paid in represents all of the seven cent tax, while the return portion is supposed to be only three-sevenths of the total.

* * *

USUALLY, when the 28-year-old inequality is pointed out to public office holders, particularly Road Department members, their response is:

"We must be practical. We can't do anything about it. It's in the constitution."

Which is a defeatist approach. It prolongs the obvious error with all of the damage it does.

As the City of Miami pointed out two years ago:

"The subject of gas taxes and state and federal aid has always been a complex one. Consequently, the magnitude of attempting to completely understand the situation has, in the past, caused most people to avoid it altogether."

The Miami Junior Chamber of Commerce some years ago undertook to bring the situation to the attention of local civic clubs, but the effort faltered on the way.

POSSIBILITY of presenting the subject to the Legislature and the state at large never has been explored, leaving the assumption that the deprived areas have no confidence in the innate fairness of the others.

As a matter of fact there are practical grounds for believing otherwise.

A number of the state's expanding counties are rapidly approaching the point at which they, too, are getting on the "wrong side" of the formula.

The distribution among the benefiting counties themselves is not uniform.

The money that comes back is essential in the purchase of rights-of-way.

All sections of the state have become pointedly aware of the value of tourism (last year despite sorry weather it added $1.8 billion to the economy) and that it can be curtailed by hampering development of the areas to which visitors are attracted.

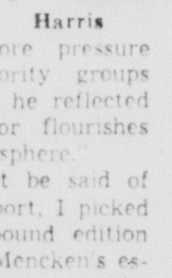
Humor Needs A Sting To Strike The Target

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

S. J. PERELMAN, perhaps the funniest man writing in America today, recently took a look at contemporary humor and found it unfunny.



Harris

What's left of humor, he said, is doomed by "the great, creeping paralysis of television" and by a growing conservatism that restricts the humorist.

"There are more pressure groups and minority groups protesting today," he reflected sadly, "and humor flourishes best in a free atmosphere."

The same might be said of satire. At the airport, I picked up a new paperbound edition of some of H. L. Mencken's essays, written mostly in the 1920s. Reading them on the plane, it was shocking to see the change in the temper of our times.

Mencken was a slashing satirist, and some of what he wrote about American society was unjust or shallow or vicious. But the point is that he wrote it, that millions of people read it — and took it without complaint.

WE PRATE a great deal about "freedom of expression" today, but I doubt whether Mencken could have operated so freely in today's climate of opinion.

In the 1920s, he derided the bankers, the clergymen, the doctors, the realtors, the do-gooders, the do-badders, and the do-nothingers. He swung his pole-ax with impartial malice at greed, hyprocrisy and stupidity, wherever he happened to think it existed.

Nowadays, however, every group is highly organized and highly sensitized to criticism. Our society has become a multiplicity of pressure groups. Most of them employ expensive agents to gloss over their foibles and failings.

WE PREACH "individualism," but we have become parts of collectivities. Organizations do our speaking for us; skilled "public relations counselors" tell us what to say. This is the era not only of the ghost-writer, but of the ghost-thinker.

Wit, humor and satire cannot flourish in such an atmosphere; indeed, they can scarcely breathe. When we have to tread carefully to avoid stepping on toes, we have begun to lose the capacity for self-criticism that is an indispensable cleansing agent for civilization. When humor ceases to sting a little, it is no longer a tonic, but only an opiate.

1887 Policies for 1959 Business

Florida's Printing Contract Law Favors Few Firms

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Chief of Our Capital Bureau

TALLAHASSEE—The law on public printing contracts permits a handful of bidders to hold trumps.

Practices normally considered to be contrary to good public policy are legal under the state's ancient printing statute.

There have been few changes in the law since it was put on the books in 1887.

BOYLES

The state's printing business averages two million dollars a year but most changes in the law have been designed to protect a segment of the printing industry.

This is reflected in the scars of legislative surgery on the anatomy of a bad law.

It prompted Gov. LeRoy Collins to renew his plea to put printing under the state's central purchasing system and spurred State Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville to call for a legislative probe of printing practices.

Mathews asserted he was seeking to eliminate waste of money, duplication of publications and reports and to make sure all printers get a "fair shake."

STATE PRINTING once played a major role in the financing of gubernatorial campaigns and through patronage it was effective in drumming up the support of rural newspapers whose principal income came from commercial printing.

This role has been largely diminished in the modern era because of the printing law's bid system, which although loose, does require records.

And the state has a law demanding an accounting of political campaign contributions.

Old-timers recall, however, that not too many years ago one of the big printing patronage gimmicks was state road maps.

An administration going out of office would take recognition of a printer who had been friendly in campaign days and flood state agencies with new road maps, even those agencies which had little excuse for distributing them.

BUT THE PRINTING LAW is most significant for practices it permits rather than for the things it prohibits.

State Auditor Bryan Willis, a veteran observer of administrative policies in all state agencies, has frequently commended certain agencies who went beyond the limits of the printing law to make bidding more competitive.

He says he believes putting printing under central purchasing would mean progress because the purchasing commission could lay down ground rules within the law for a more effective operation.

Rep. Matthews

Gov. Collins

During depression days the state attempted to operate its own printing plant at Marianna, providing for the publication of departmental reports and other material but gave it up as an impractical operation.

The equipment was turned over to the Florida Boys School at Marianna to be used in its vocational training program.

Also born of depression days was a feature in the printing law which prohibits work being contracted with out-of-state printing companies.

This feature has not been highly controversial because of the feeling that among an estimated 700 printers in Florida there ought to be ample competition.

But some of the state's printing firms feel the law is being used to discriminate against them to the advantage of companies located in Tallahassee.

THE PRINTING INDUSTRY as a whole has fought the battle of private enterprise, protesting loudly and pushing for legislation to keep government from doing its own printing and competing with private companies.

No state agency may purchase printing equipment costing in excess of $3,000 without a hearing before the state budget commission.

The University of Florida Press at Gainesville, capable of publishing standard editions of books, is required to submit a bid in competition with private printers for such work.

STATE PRINTING is divided into two classes, A and B. Class A printing is all of that required for the legislative department of the state government and all of the printing required for the state Supreme Court.

It is let on contracts by the Cabinet Board of Commissioners of State Institutions which must advertise for bids 30 days before awarding the contract.

Class B printing is work done for the state's some 120 individual departments and regulatory boards.

The law calls for each department to let jobs separately to the "lowest responsible bidder," and specifically requires only two bids.

State agencies follow a policy of calling for three bids.

But purchasing agents of the individual departments have wide latitude within the law.

They may invite several firms to bid or they can pick up the telephone and ask any three companies to submit bids.

Obviously purchasing officials living in the capital know representatives of local printing firms much better than outsiders.

Some purchasing agents extend themselves to get bids from several firms while others follow the line of least resistance and merely meet the basic requirements of the law.

THE PRINTING LAW is in conflict with general purchasing policy. It even permits a legislator who is in the printing business to bid for state jobs, and spells it out specifically.

A spot check of voluminous records, however, did not show any firms presently owned by legislators among the bidders.

In the middle, between a new push to put printing under central purchasing and dissension among members of the printing industry over the way the law is administered, is Charles Rosenberg, head of the Rose Printing Co. in Tallahassee and other firms.

Of more than two million dollars in state printing last year, Rose Company got nearly $700,000, bulk of the work awarded in Tallahassee.

A survey showed that in recent years as the volume of printing business increased the Rose Company's share averaged $500,000 to $700,000.

Rosenberg was a registered lobbyist in 1957 for the Printing Industry of Florida, an organization representing about 100 north, central and west Florida printers. He was credited with defeating a move to put printing under the state's central purchasing system.

(Next: The Rosenberg story and how the dissolution of a partnership and complaints of some printers put the state's 72-year-old printing law in the public spotlight.)

Lost Florida Motion

Democrats Not About To Release Judgeships

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Members of the Florida delegation were just going through the motions in requesting additional federal judgeships for Florida.

Those bills, along with the many other bills seeking judgeships for other states, are going exactly nowhere.

KRASLOW

Not with a presidential election only 20 months away and the Democrats confident they are going to have a man in the White House in 1961.

Democrats will have been out of the White House for eight years at that point and they figure they can use every bit of patronage they can get.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS in Congress have stalled on judgeship legislation for four years. They see no reason to change course now with 1960 so close.

It's even doubtful that Democrats would agree to a deal at this late date.

Congressional Democrats hinted at a deal within the past year or two whereby they would approve judgeship bills if the administration would appoint some Democrats. But the Justice Department wasn't interested.

Atty. Gen. William Rogers makes the point that Democrats held roughly eight out of every 10 federal judgeships when the Republicans took over in 1953. This came about during 20 years of Democratic rule.

After six years of Republican control, Rogers says the imbalance has been reduced to a 60-40 split, with Democrats still in the majority.

WHILE A PURELY political tug-of-war goes on in Washington over party patronage, case backlogs in the federal courts continue to grow.

Rogers has accused the Democrats of playing politics with the courts, of hampering justice by refusing to create needed judgeships.

The argument is valid.

But it's doubtful whether the situation would be any different with Republicans in control of Congress and a Democrat living in the White House.

THERE ARE EVEN SECRET instructions on what should be kept secret.

The Operations Coordinating Board, part of the National Security Council, issued guidelines to the Defense Department on what could be said about attempts to reach the moon.

A House committee probing governmental secrecy asked the White House for a copy of these instructions and got a flat rejection.

Air Space Getting Jammed

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—One factor behind the increased number of near-collisions between airplanes is the failure to equip the nation's airports with up-to-date radar facilities.

Other factors — such as crowded air and the intrusions of military planes — have also contributed.

PEARSON

But officials who sit with their eyes glued to the radarscopes and their ears tuned to catch signals from approaching planes state that air traffic control centers simple do not have the radar facilities to ensure maximum safety.

This is true of New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Washington, Indianapolis, Detroit and Atlanta. In fact, nine of the Federal Aviation Agency's 26 traffic control centers are not even equipped with radar.

The FAA control center at Washington, D.C.'s National Airport, one of the busiest in the nation, is still using a radarscope viewing screen, known as a VG-1, which was produced for the Navy by General Electric for use on airplane carriers and battleships in World War II.

It is so obsolete that General Electric no longer is making tubes for the VG-1.

ONE REASON FOR the outmoded radar is that with the heavy emphasis on military aviation, the unique radar needs of civilian flying have not kept pace with the enormous increase of air traffic flying at all altitudes, in all directions, in our congested airways.

"Even with the best radar equipment, which we do not have," said one air safety engineer, "it is unlikely that we could guarantee maximum air safety. There is, of course, a human factor in safety.

"But the main problem today is that there are too many planes in the air for us to keep constantly under control. The air space just isn't big enough.

"Add to this the increasing numbers of military jets in the air — which are difficult to track on a radarscope, particularly the fighter-type jets—plus the peak-hour flying volume by the commercial airlines, geared to passenger convenience rather than traffic conditions, and you get some idea of the headaches of an air safety engineer."

Because of the limited capacity of civilian air radar equipment, FAA controllers were offered the facilities of the Air Force to "track" flights of a jet 707, National Airlines transport between New York and Miami.

An FAA controller, operating from an Air Force ground control interruption station, observed three military jets headed toward the 707 near Salisbury, Md.

The controller ordered the 707 pilot to take a left dogleg off his course to avoid a collision.

The 707 did so, but to the dismay of the pilot and the air traffic controller, the three military planes also turned left, still on the wing of the airliner.

The 707 pilot was then ordered to "turn right." Again, the Air Force jets followed suit, still hanging dangerously close to the civilian plane.

Finally the jets flew off in the direction of Andrews field near Washington.

After the relieved controller turned over the radar watch on the 707 to a colleague in Jacksonville, Fla., he received a phone call from an Air Force colonel.

"You didn't have to worry about our jets colliding with that 707," said the colonel. "Our jets were just practicing an interception."

The FAA controller's reply could not be printed.

There Are Some Faults . . . But

Russians Stress Education By More Emphasis Than U.S.

By PAUL WOODRING
National Education Expert

UNTIL THE FIRST SPUTNIK went into orbit few Americans doubted that our technology, science and education were the best in the world.

But when Russia got ahead of us in the race to outer space many people began to wonder. They demanded crash programs for the training of engineers and scientists.

WOODRING

The threat is real enough, but I am not one who thinks that the primary aim of education is the launching of celestial hardware.

Changes made in the school today will not be reflected in our national and scientific leadership for 20 or 30 years and the need in the schools is for long-range planning rather than for crash programs.

But this is a good time to take a close look at our schools, and at those abroad, to see how they compare.

There is no end to information about our own schools but, because of their vast diversity and uneven standards the truth is difficult to assess. The truth about Russian schools has been even more difficult to find.

A NEW BOOK by Fred Hechinger, titled The Big Red Schoolhouse, (published by Doubleday and Co.) is by far the best comparison I have seen of the two systems of education.

This is a clear and vivid description of Russia's schools, a critical analysis of our own education, and an explanation of the similarities and differences.

Hechinger finds much to criticize in Russia's schools. Their educational policy has vacillated wildly in an effort to conform to the everchanging party line.

There is too much rote learning and too little independent thinking.

But Russian students and teachers are much more highly motivated than ours. They work harder and have a clearer sense of purpose.

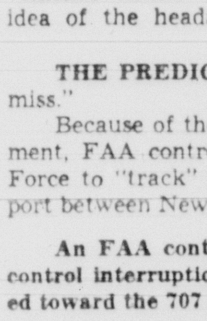
They get a thorough grounding in geography and history (although the history is somewhat warped to fit their own interpretation) and an early introduction to mathematics and science.

One More Fast One for the Road

Bob Could Drive Well Even With Drink

By JIM BISHOP

THE HILLS LOOKED like vanilla cup cakes in the late snow. The cars cut black scars around them and, where the road dropped steeply to the river, the bridge looked like a child's Erector set.



BISHOP

On the far side were the town, a few church spires and some old-fashioned houses and two or three traffic lights.

Bob ordered one more fast one. He was careful about his drinking because Ymelda worried.

It wasn't that he was alcoholic. She claimed that it affected his judgment. Not much. A little.

This made Bob smile. Women, he felt, never really understand their men. They are always afraid of something that never happens. Nervous Mel, he called her.

He snapper the shot glass up, tilted his head, and nodded farewell to the bartender.

THE CAR OUTSIDE was his. It was old, but it was all his. He sat behind the wheel and ran the engine a little. A sweet-sounding baby, that engine.

Bob chewed on a mint as he swung the car around, watching in both directions for traffic, and on across the bridge and up into the hills.

He thought of his happiness. He had so much of it. Not much money, but a fortune in contentment.

Bob had a job. It paid $118.50 with time and a half.

Bob and Mel had bought a four-and-a-half room house — he called it a bungalow — for $7,250 and little Mickey had been born eight months ago.

Now there was another baby coming. A girl, he hoped.

Bob drove through the hills swelling with pride. He was richer than Rockefeller and he knew it.

HE LOOKED AT HIS WATCH. Mel should be almost through at the doctor's office. He started back, around the bases of the hills.

He was happy. Extraordinarily happy. He moved the car up a notch or two and spun it a little on the snowy turns. There was no traffic up here. Nothing to worry about.

He had promised Mel that he would not take a drink. Bob popped two more mints into his mouth.

What a woman doesn't know cannot hurt her. He came to the brow of the hill leading down to town and he knew, the instant he passed the edge of it, that he was going too fast.

Bob knew, the moment he tapped the brakes lightly, that he would never make the bottom turn onto the steel bridge.

A man full of liquor would be unintelligent in a situation like this. He would panic. But not Bob.

He had 30 seconds left in which to think. So he figured all the angles.

HE WAS GLAD that Mel wasn't with him. She'd scream. She'd complicate everything. The best thing to do, he knew, was not to try to turn the wheel. The car was going faster and faster, down the icy road.

He would stay in his lane—luckily, there was nothing ahead—and, when he reached the river, he would permit the car to go through the wooden hand-rail.

The moment it hit the water, he would push the door open all the way, and strike out.

The old car went down down, faster and faster. People coming up saw it and knew what was going to happen.

Bob swung the wheel slightly so that the vehicle, instead of crashing into the steel girders, splintered the wooden hand-rail and arched gracefully into the river.

He struck out and headed for shore, shivering in the icy current. He could hear the cheers as he staggered up the bank.

Then he remembered that he had left little Mickey in a basket on the rear seat . . .

Poles Display Industrial Boo-Boos

By A. ROSENTHAL
The New York Times Service

WARSAW — Polish trade inspectors Sunday wound up an experiment in the shock technique—an exhibition of the country's worst examples of consumer production.

N. Y. Times News Service

As part of the drive to increase the quality of production for the home market, the inspectors collected four rooms full of frying pans that burned out the first time they were put on the stove, elastic that did not stretch, fruit candy made without fruit, saws that curled up when put to wood and washing machines that did not wash.

On the tables of the how not to do it exhibition were also spread some of the weirder decisions of price commissions: A small bottle of cologne that was priced at twice the price of a larger bottle of the identical cologne produced by the identical factory, a box of soap powder in a brown package was allowed to sell for almost twice the price of the same product packaged in green.

To the exhibition — which was held in the reception rooms of the prime minister's offices — were invited trade officials, factory executives and price commissioners. The public was not admitted but indignant articles in the Polish press informed the consumer of the experiment.

Officials agreed to allow this foreign correspondent to see the exhibition but they worried about being misunderstood abroad, the idea of the exhibition, they pointed out, was neither to punish nor to amuse but to stimulate interest in increasing the quality of consumer production.

Judging by the reaction of visitors, the exhibition has made its point. Officials of some price commissions have come back repeatedly, with their staffs and notebooks.

The inspectors said they had chosen items for exhibition only when the whole product was bad, not just a few samples. Last year the inspectors made 31,000 investigations and found 20,000 abuses. Action was taken against 18,000 workers and 931 of them were dismissed. Inspectors asked local councils to withdraw the licenses of 351 workshops and 101 of them were withdrawn.

Phantom Plane Falls in Field

FERRARA, Italy — (UPI) —A "phantom plane" without pilot or passengers took off from the Aero Club here, flew for 42 minutes over the city and crashed in a field.

Mechanic Guido Celate was working on the single-engine aircraft when the engine started and the plane started taxiing down the field.

The aircraft rose to an altitude of more than 9,000 feet and circled Ferrara before it crashed in a field near the airport.

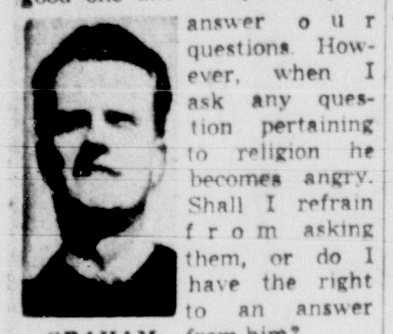
Professor Could Be Hiding His Own Religious Questions

By BILLY GRAHAM



GRAHAM

QUESTION: I am a university student. I have one professor who is an exceptionally good one and always ready to answer our questions. However, when I ask any question pertaining to religion he becomes angry. Shall I refrain from asking them, or do I have the right to an answer from him?

ANSWER: You do have the right to an answer when the question is a pertinent one. No well-informed professor should become annoyed at a sincere question of a student.

Don't unnecessarily annoy him, but there is no reason why you should not continue asking. I believe I can tell you why he becomes so disturbed, and it might help you in your future contacts.

Either he does not know the answer, and reacts out of embarrassment and pride or he is concerned over religious issues himself.

In fact, there are many people who hide a spiritual hunger beneath a facade of unconcern. They appear to be self sufficient, but in reality they are filled with questions themselves.

Bonn Air Industry Wall Falls

By ARTHUR J. OLSEN
The New York Times Service

STRAUSS

ERHARD

BONN — Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard has withdrawn his objections to creation of a large military aviation industry in West Germany.

Erhard's decision, it was learned Sunday, was conveyed in a letter to Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss. It removed the last major obstacle to the commitment to construct under license several hundred modern military aircraft in West Germany in the next four years.

These will be 200 Lockheed F104 Starfighters, an all-purpose fighter, and more than 100 Fiat G91 close support fighter bombers.

Erhard and Strauss had engaged in a dispute over the defense ministry's aircraft procurement program. The immediate stake was investment of hundreds of millions of dollars in the German aircraft industry.

But the issue was regarded as carrying a broader implication. Opponents of the defense ministry's program feared it would become a first step in development of a massive domestic armaments industry.

Strauss scoffs at such allegations. West Germay is too small a country, he holds, even to dream of "autarchy." West Germany should be self-sufficient, he said, only in production of light weapons of 40 mm. caliber or smaller and in ammunition for these arms.

The defense ministry plans to call for West German production of large weapons, such as tanks and rockets, but only as a partner in a pool arrangement with other countries.

Strauss argued for his aircraft program on military and economic grounds. Bonn could not avoid establishing expensive repair and maintenance facilities for its complex modern fighter planes, he said. According to the defense minister, the cost of repair facilities would not be substantially less than production lines to build the planes themselves.

Moreover, the West German aircraft industry which employs 12,000 persons, would collapse, according to Strauss, if it failed to get new government contracts.

It was on this issue that Erhard put up resistance. In the economics ministry's view, German aircraft companies could not compete with France, Britain and the U.S.

Guerrilla Leader Captured in Philippines

The New York Times Service

N. Y. Times News Service

MANILA — Constabulary field operators Sunday reported to headquarters the capture of Pedro Borja, self-styled leader of a large organization of former guerrilla fighters, who announced he was starting a rebellion against the Philippine government.

Borja was taken alive by a team of constabulary rangers who found him holed up in a small village on the slope of Mount Banahaw, an extinct volcano visible from Manila on the southern skyline.

A large deployment of government men had pursued him 14 days through swamps and hills from the neighboring province of Quezon where he was implicated in a killing. He was caught in Laguna Province.

Trained police dogs were instrumental in Borja's capture. He was reported armed with a pistol but offered no resistance. A small band of followers had dropped away one by one and fallen into constabulary hands.

Borja's abortive "rebellion" created a stir in newspapers when he began circulating leaflets in southern Luzon towns ordering all municipal work stopped and government arms surrendered. Two constabularymen were killed in a brush with Borja's armed group in Camarines Province and the manhunt commenced.

Government officials have claimed the incident was given too much importance by the defense department, suggesting it was with a view to alarming congress into passing a large budget for national defense.

Co-existence? Tell It to the Slaves, Missing GIs

By FRED SPARKS

In Moscow Prime Minister Harold Macmillan talked co-existence. He said: "Our two systems can work in their various ways, parallel, not conflicting."

SPARKS

Her Majesty's first minister thus set the inevitable stage for elaborate conferences in the soon tomorrow at which all Western powers will be asked—directly or indirectly—to ratify co-existence.

Co-existence means, in naked truth, our legal and moral acceptance of the Soviet-Chinese Empire in its present bloated form. Communist acknowledgment of co-existence means nothing — a digestive. When ready, with Pearl Harbor Sneak, they will again move to satisfy their hunger.

When mankind's leaders, with all their formal trappings, gather at the conferences, for which Macmillan was advance agent, there will be absent faces, silenced voices.

Who will speak for the Czechs? In freezing cellars, windows blanketed against official eyes, they long listened to the Voice of America and other "freedom" radios that chattered — with the glibness of dishwash flake commercials —about "liberation."

Who will speak for the East Germans? If West Berlin is sealed against them there will vanish the last thin, precarious escape route — used by hundreds weekly.

Who will speak for the mainland Chinese, now herded into communes like cooped chickens, laboring endlessly for the greater glory of the Great Red Khan?

Who will speak for North Viet Nam's Catholics? Handed to communism like a canape at a cocktail party—at another conference, Geneva — they hold forbidden masses in bamboo huts concealed in delta wetlands like early Christians in Rome's catacombs.

Who will speak for the Jews of Russia itself? Now denied exit permits, they nightly await the clip-clop-clop of new booted pogroms.

Who will speak for our own GIs still missing, unaccounted for, in North Korean prisons, nameless numbers?

We cannot blame our representatives for seeking accommodations in this age when radioactivity can make each earthly flower weed. With their terrible responsibilities they seek to buy time, often an expensive and bloody commodity.

But with yet fresh the memories of self-righteous pledges made, to the captive peoples, white, black, brown and yellow, co-existence means surrender. Better to have kept silent, walked small, than to have talked loud, walked tall.

Who will speak for the dignity of man?

'Won't Wed Till Children's Fate Decided'--Rossellini

PARIS —(AP)— Roberto Rossellini said he is not yet legally free to marry again and in any case has no intention of marrying before the courts have decided his dispute with Ingrid Bergman over custody of their three children.

Rossellini made the statement in an interview with France-Soir. The interview was given in the office of his Paris attorney, Robert Badinter, who confirmed the France-Soir account.

Rossellini denied ever having said he was getting ready to marry Mrs. Sonali Das Gupta, an Indian script writer who came back to Europe with him after he made a film in India.

"Even if I wished to marry her," Rossellini said, "the law formally forbids me.

"Since June 1958, the date when our request for annulment of the marriage was brought before the courts, the public prosecutor has brought an appeal. The annulment is not yet decided. Since Ingrid has remarried she is considered a bigamist in Italy. I am Italian. I do not wish to and cannot run this risk.

"Further, if this annulment should be approved, I would not envisage another marriage as long as the future of my children is not decided."

THE MOST DRAMATIC VITAMIN ADVANCE OF OUR TIME!

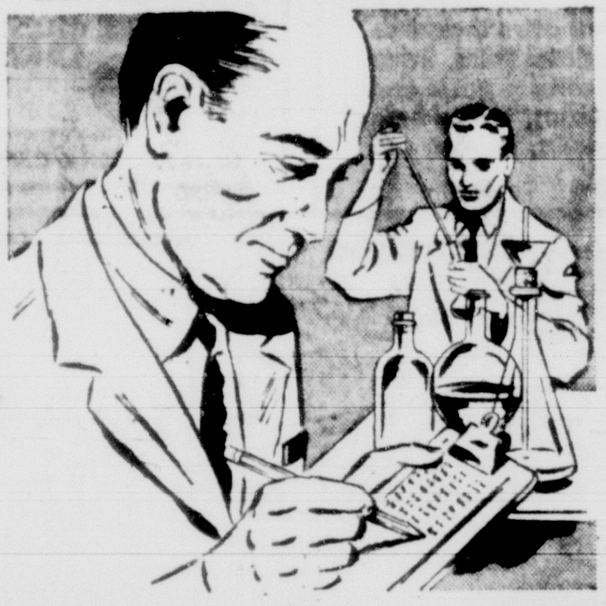
VITAMINS THAT WORK FASTER, DO MORE . . . TASTE LIKE CANDY!

YEARS OF RESEARCH TO DEVELOP AND PERFECT . . .



THE SCIENTISTS' assignment was formidable: Create a new type of vitamin tablet that would actually taste good, that would also dissolve faster to bring quicker, surer vitamin benefits. The tablet must not be hard, not be coated, yet must protect the potency of the various vitamins in it. Months grew into years of experiments and tests, research and trial, until finally—a triumph of modern pharmacological science—the work was climaxed with OLA-TABS and success!

Chewable, Meltaway Tablets Are Truly Easy to Take . . . FOR CHILDREN, ADULTS, ALL THE FAMILY!

GREAT NEWS FOR PEOPLE WHO HAVE TROUBLE SWALLOWING ORDINARY VITAMINS . . . GREAT NEW BENEFITS, TOO, FOR REGULAR VITAMIN-USERS!

Practically everyone today realizes that truly glowing good health depends greatly on vitamin intake. Certainly that is the consensus of medical opinion. It is health-wise to supplement the diet with vitamins day-in-and-day-out because so many people are so often faced with the need for more vitamins than their diets can provide. There's no argument there. So people who don't take vitamins usually have a reason.

THE REASONS ARE SIMPLE . . . Children who refuse vitamins usually have one of two reasons: Either "it doesn't taste good" or they just "can't get it down." Good reasons, both. Adults, too, often bypass the extra health boost of vitamins for the same reasons — particularly if they have difficulty swallowing hard, coated tablets and pills or large capsules. They just can't. And oils are not a happy substitute.

TOTALLY DIFFERENT OLA-TABS ARE THE ANSWER!

Yes, delicious, chewable Ola-Tabs melt in your mouth like a candy mint. Or, they're easy to swallow "as is," if you like. New Ola-Tabs mean you and all your family can enjoy the wonderful health benefits of vitamins and enjoy the taking, too! So don't let anyone in your family settle for feeling just "Fair" instead of "Fine!" . . . be sure all of you get vitamin-rich with OLA-TABS!

Actually TASTE LIKE CANDY! (Yet they are SUGAR-FREE)

IT'S TRUE! And almost too good to be true! Ola-Tabs actually do melt in your mouth, have a truly delightful fruit-like candy flavor, and—have no aftertaste! They're not just candy-coated—Ola-Tabs taste good all the way through, so they're pleasant to chew, too, and can be taken any time, anywhere! The secret is MANNITOL, a sweet natural substance that occurs in many common fruits and vegetables. Mannitol is a tasty, effective sweetener—yet it is sugar-free, absolutely safe, and is compatible with vitamins, meaning it safeguards the effectiveness of the vitamins.

WORK FASTER!

IT'S TRUE! The very fact that Ola-Tabs melt in your mouth, the fact that they are NOT coated, NOT pressed into rigid hardness, means that they will work faster. Because Ola-Tabs dissolve so quickly, they are ready for quicker absorption by the body, and their potent vitamin content can deliver its health boost to you FAST!

OLA-TABS GIVE ADULTS WIDE-RANGE NUTRITION

JUST TWO tasty Ola-Tabs daily give adults well over the normal minimum daily requirement of all the known essential vitamins . . . give you high potencies of NINE vitamins in all!
And OLA-TABS M give you all that PLUS 7 MINERALS, including blood-building iron.

A SINGLE OLA-TAB DAILY IS ALL CHILDREN NEED!

Yes, just one delicious Ola-Tab a day gives children well over their normal daily needs of all the known essential vitamins. And OLA-TABS M provide children with full daily needs of both vitamins and minerals.

. . DO MORE!

IT'S TRUE! Because quick-dissolving Ola-Tabs reach your system ready-to-use, your body is able to make the fullest use of all the vitamins, so you can get 100% benefits. On the other hand, slow-dissolving hardshell pills or capsules may sometimes be absorbed only partly, or even totally lost. Yes, Ola-Tabs can do more!

Make Ola-Tabs a Family Habit!

Treat your family to Ola-Tabs after breakfast or dinner every day. It's the vitamin tablet everyone can take —and enjoy—children and grown-ups alike. And Ola-Tabs' greater, faster health benefits will help assure that yours is a happy, healthy family always!

Wrong Man Sent to Jail

MILAN — (AP) — Giulio Cattaneo, now 60, went to jail three years ago and served a two-month term — all the while protesting his innocence — for failure to appear as witness in an embezzlement case.

Now the same Italian court that punished him admits it was a mistake, and it's still looking for another Giulio Cattaneo, also now 60, also of Milan, as the real offender.

Eden Sees War Aura

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Sir Anthony Eden, former British prime minister, says the current international crisis is similar to the one that preceded the outbreak of World War II.

"I think there are certain parallels between that day and today," Eden said before sailing for England after a 10-week Mexican vacation.

"In the 1930s things went wrong because international agreements were denounced. These agreements can always be changed. But only by agreement. When you depart from that principle, the world gets into trouble. That was the lesson of the 1930s and that is the lesson of today."

70 Ships Missing In Storm

BAHRAIN, Saudi Arabia —(AP)— Ships and planes searched Sunday for a fishing fleet of 70 vessels reported missing after the worst storm in 30 years hit Bahrain Saturday night.

Approximately 200 men women and children were aboard the fleet which sailed from Sitra Saturday. Sitra is a small island separated from Bahrain by a quarter-mile channel. It serves as a tank farm and loading terminal for Bahrain Oil.

The storm blew up without warning from the Saudi Arabian mainland carrying thick dust clouds. Heavy seas lashed the coast. Trees and houses were blown down.

Tito to Confer With Top Greeks

Karamanlis

ATHENS —(AP)— Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis and Foreign Minister Evanghelos Averoff left by plane Sunday for the island of Rhodes for talks with President Tito of Yugoslavia.

Tito is due to reach Rhodes today.

The newspaper Eleftheria said that a few days ago the talks might have been only a routine exchange of views. But, it added, the recent settlement of the Cyprus issue and restoration of Greek-Turkish and British-Greek relations will give the Greek and Yugoslav leaders new subjects to talk about.

Eleftheria said Yugoslavia was not particularly anxious to revive the three-power Balkan alliance which became dormant as a result of the deterioration of Greek-Turkish relations over Cyprus.

The revival of the military side of the Balkan aliance is not desired by Yugoslavia, the newspaper said.

Balmy Weather Reaches Europe

Premature spring warmed up the continent with temperature on the upper 60s and 70s.

In Berlin, where the temperature reached 65 degrees, sidewalk tables came out along the famous boulevard, Kurfuerstendam. Saturday was the warmest Feb. 28 in 120 years.

It was 68 in Paris and the Champs Elysees became a fashion parade with the city's glamorous young women bringing out their new spring numbers early.

London relaxed in the sun with the chilly smog of recent weeks completely routed.

Drive Expected Against Islands

HONG KONG, —(UPI)— Informed sources warned Sunday that the Chinese Communists might launch a new offensive against the Nationalist-held offshore island while word attention is concentrating on the West Berlin crisis.

The sources said they believe the Chinese Reds would trigger some sort of offensive actions around the offshore islands at about the same time to keep the West "off balance."

They speculated that the operations would involve a massive aerial assault rather than the artillery bombardments which marked last year's attacks.

'Massive Muscles Bad as Fat'

Amateur Fighter Could KO Popeye, Doctor Says

By Science Service

LOS ANGELES — Massive muscles can be as burdensome to the human body as fat, according to Dr. Laurance E. Morehouse, director of the Human Performance Laboratory at the University of California.

To illustrate his point, he says that any smart amateur boxer could knock Popeye cold in short order.

"If our amateur aims at Popeye's head, thus making him keep his guard up high, the weight of the famous sailor's muscularly overdeveloped forearms would soon force him to drop his guard.

"Such muscles constitute a burden because of the energy required to haul them around. Also, extra demands are made on the heart because it must pump blood through the many miles of extra capillaries which have been added to the body to support these muscles in action."

Overdeveloped muscles, Dr. Morehouse said, may impede joint movement and lead to a loss of elasticity, a condition generally known as "muscle boundness."

"We have all seen Adonises who have to have help in washing their backs or in putting on a sweater," he said. "They have this difficulty because their muscles can only work within a certain range."

In short, he said, the proud possessor of surplus muscles is "like a man wearing a heavy overcoat lined with pork chops."

Chief of Staff Says Rebels to Get First Pay

Quick End to Cuban War Crime Trials Seen

By GEORGE SOUTHWORTH
Herald Latin America Editor

Camilo Cienfuegos
. . . will stay in army

Cuba's war crime trials will end soon according to the chief of the army staff, Camilo Cienfuegos, who visited The Herald last week.

The 27-year-old former clothing salesman said he "will serve in the army as long as they tell me to."

The soft-spoken major — there are no generals in the army of the revolution — was among the handful of rebels who escaped into the Cuban mountains from the yacht Gramma when they invaded from Mexico on Dec. 1, 1956.

"Our army will be paid for the first time next month," Cienfuegos said. "Some of the soldiers left over from the Batista regime have been paid, but the rebel army has always declined."

Cienfuegos said law and order in the cities of Cuba will be maintained by the national police in the future with army garrisons stationed in the various provinces.

Lawmaker Raps Panama's Claim

Uncle Sam's landlord in Panama is listening to talk that favors raising the rent of the Panama Canal Zone 26 times what it is now.

These people claim that the U.S. makes 100 million dollars a year from the canal and pays Panama only $1,900,000. They want to raise the take to 50 million dollars a year.

Panama has also extended her territorial waters to 12 miles and Rep. Daniel J. Flood (D., Pa.) has charged that this violates U.S. treaty rights.

Flood complained in a House speech of "bold, radical and ever-increasing demands put forth in behalf of Panama" concerning the canal. He said these stemmed from "the erroneous assumption in Panama" that no other route exists for a canal across Central America.

He warned Panama that "absurd and reckless demands" may force the U.S. to build another canal.

Latin-American Lawyers Unite

Circuit Judge Aquilino Lopez of Key West has signed a charter in Miami creating the Spanish-American Bar Association of Florida which will work to protect the rights of Spanish-speaking people in this area.

Attorney Rafael A. Rivera-Cruz has been chosen temporary president of the association that had been in the talking stage for two years. There are 16 charter members and all attorneys can become members.

"We hope to solve many of the legal problems of our huge Latin American colony," Rivera-Cruz said, "and we believe this will improve our community. We will offer legal aid to Spanish-speaking people who have no money."

Rivera-Cruz said the organization will use newspapers, radio and television to educate Spanish-speaking people on local, state and federal laws.

He said hundreds and hundreds of Latins run into legal difficulties each year in Miami concerning real estate, taxes and other matters "and they have had no place to turn for help because of the language barrier."

English Backed

NEW DELHI — (AP) — The University Grants Commission has come out against any hasty change from the English language for instruction in Indian universities. Even after a changeover, it told Parliament, English should be retained as a second language.

Car Bombed

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras —(AP)— A bomb exploded in the parked automobile of the secretary of the Spanish embassy, Luis Marinas. The car, which was parked on a city street, was badly damaged. No one was in the car at the time.

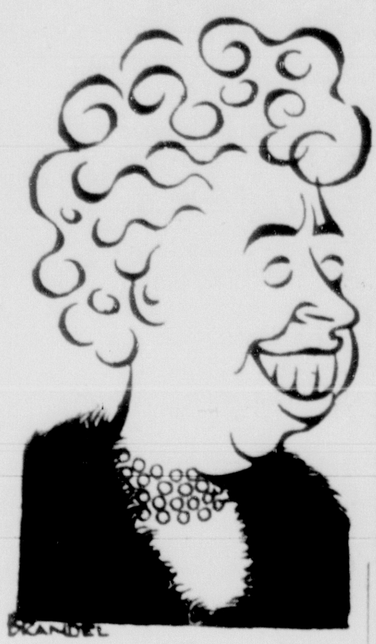
Eleanor Happy Pushing Oleo



Eleanor Roosevelt
. . . 'a real program'

NEW YORK —(AP)— It's too soon to tell whether Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is a persuasive seller of oleomargarine. But both her employers and the former First Lady are happy with her television job, despite — or because — of the controversy it has stirred up.

For two weeks now Mrs. Roosevelt has been endorsing the product, Good Luck Margarine, in three filmed TV commercials and several radio recordings. In each commercial Mrs. Roosevelt voices hope that America's abundance will be used to help "the more than two-thirds of the people in the world (who) are underfed."

"When the opportunity came to go on the air," Mrs. Roosevelt explains, "I felt I could manage to say the things I wanted to say. It was worth incurring criticism, not only from friends but from other people who are delighted to have me do something unwise."

Even before her first TV commercial was broadcast, she acknowledged publicly that her associates advised her to turn down the job. The expected eyebrow raising in some quarters duly materialized.

One New York television reviewer, Jack Gould of The New York Times, devoted a whole column to the commercial, questioning the wisdom of a former First Lady and "an international figure of deserved prominence" endorsing a brand-name product.

Mrs. Roosevelt's agent, Thomas L. Stix, says the broadcasts have become a subject of debate among lots of people who have never seen the commercial. "It's like lambasting a book when you've read only a review of it," he added.

All the attention has delighted Lever Brothers, which makes the oleomargarine, and its advertising agency, Ogilvy, Benson and Mather.

What does Mrs. Roosevelt hope to do through the commercials?

"I tried to get a real program on the air which would give me a chance to repeat over and over again some of the things that I think are important for our people to hear," she explained recently. "Time and time again I have been told that I am too controversial for a sponsored program.

"You know as well as I do that every program sells something, whether the person featured sells it or it is done by the announcer. I don't see much difference between doing the commercial directly or indirectly, and when the opportunity came to go on the air I felt I could manage to say the things I wanted to say."

France Plans Missile Test

PARIS — (UPI) — France plans to launch three research missiles this week from its base at Guir in the Sahara desert, it was announced.

Qualified scientific and military sources said France is "10 years behind the U.S. and Russia" in rocketry because the government has been unwilling to spend enough money to keep this country abreast of the latest developments.

'Us Hoboes Don't Wear Rags, Pal'

LEXINGTON, Ky. — (UPI) — An indignant Ohio hobo has protested an alleged insult to hoboes perpetrated by University of Kentucky students in a skit between halves of a basketball game.

Bernard Johnson, assistant professor of physical education at the U. of K., said he received a letter from a member of the Hoboes Union protesting the skit, which was nationally televised.

The annoyed hobo's letter read: "Dear friends: I saw the Kentucky-Tennessee BB game on TV on 1-17-59 from Lexington, Ky. The half time show was a big insult to us real hoboes. I hold card No. 1032219 in the Hoboes Union. We do not wear rags and patches."

Romanians Go to Israel

VIENNA — (AP) — The airlift flying about 200 Romanian Jewish emigrants daily from here to Israel will be continued for at least 10 days until more shipping space is available at Naples, spokesmen for Jewish welfare agencies said.

They added there has been no interruption in the exodus which is bringing several hundred Jews out of Romania daily despite protests from Arab states. The Arabs claim the new influx will lead to Israeli expansionist moves.

Workers Will Arm In Strike

A non-union ship-fitter, "fed up" with taunting picketers, said Sunday night he and other co-workers are going to their jobs this morning armed with guns, knives, and billy clubs "for protection."

Said Wayne Powell, employed at strike-hit Dade Drydock Corp., 777 Biscayne Blvd.:

"If they (the strikers) play rough . . . so can we."

Earlier, he said he made a personal appeal to Mayor Robert High for increased protection against the alleged rough-house tactics of strikers picketing the plant.

Mayor High could not be reached Sunday.

About 75 members of the AFL-CIO shipbuilding workers Local 7 have been on strike since Jan. 12, leaving 100 work employes still on the job.

Troubles Mount for Mrs. Frydman

While Dade Rep. Dante Fascell in Washington continued to seek leniency for her husband — jailed as an Air Force deserter — Mrs. Harry Frydman, mother of three, said in South Dade Sunday she had received a "final" collection notice on her house mortgage.

Mrs. Frydman, supporting her family on $124 a month in welfare aid, said she is two payments behind on her $11,000 project home at 11050 SW 52nd Dr.

But the mortgage warning didn't seem to bother the plucky young mother nearly as much as the breakdown of the old family car.

"I always visit my husband (in Homestead Air Force Base's guard house) on Sunday but I couldn't go because of the car," she said, almost in tears.

Hemingway Dramatizer Preparing 'Bell Tolls'

By JOHN CROSBY

CROSBY

A. E. HOTCHNER is the official dramatizer — he doesn't like the word adapter — of the works of Ernest Hemingway for television, a post of imposing if somewhat frightening grandeur.

A longtime buddy, drinking companion, and admirer of the Nobel Prize winner, Hotchner takes the job seriously but not so solemnly that it scares the hell out of him.

"He's going to trust me until our first disaster," said Hotchner, a red-headed freckle-faced, amiable imp who might very well have been the model for Howdy Doody.

So far Hotchner has staved off disaster brilliantly through seven dramatizations of Hemingway tales — "The Battler," "The Nun," "The Radio," "Fifty Grand," "Nick Adams," "Capitol of the World" and "The Gambler."

Ernest Hemingway

. . . never reads script

I didn't see 'em all but the ones I did were brilliant, notably "The World of Nick Adams" on "Seven Lively Arts," "Fifty Grand" on "Kraft," and "The Battler" on "Playwrights 56."

HOTCHNER HAS a profound understanding of the man and his work. I think he knows what Hemingway is aiming at and is not so awed by him that he can't get the work done. How, I asked him, did Hemingway feel about having his work changed?

"Very lenient," said Hotchner. "He doesn't demand anything. He doesn't, above all, feel the writer has to cherish every word.

"Hemingway doesn't even read the scripts. He waits until someone shows him a kinescope. Right now, he's in Ketchum, Idaho, in a log house in a town of some 800 finishing a novel.

"This show ("For Whom the Bell Tolls" in two parts on "Playhouse 90" now in rehearsal for presentation March 12 and 19) will be the first time he's ever seen one of his stories actually on television."

While Hemingway has liked all of his stories which Hotch has dramatized on TV, he has generally loathed what the movies have done to his work.

"'The Killers' is the only movie Hemingway liked. That was written for the screen by John Huston who understands Hemingway.

"You have to understand all of it — not just one story or one novel. It helps to know the man as much as you can. Huston, I'm sure, has read almost everything Hemingway has written."

HOTCHNER GRINNED: "Hemingway hated the movie version of 'The Sun Also Rises.' He said to me that any movie in which Errol Flynn emerges as the best actor is a disaster."

He brooded a moment and then added: "I suppose what I'm trying to say is that when you're dramatizing Hemingway you don't write it the way Noel Coward would write it."

As a dramatizer, he many times feels called on to change the action or content or the time sequence of the original. The idea is to preserve the spirit.

"One of my secret satisfactions is reading a review praising me for something Hemingway didn't write. In 'Fifty Grand' one reviewer said something to the effect that the description of the fighter talking to his wife before the fight is as great on the TV screen as it was on the printed page. Well, it wasn't on the printed page. I made it up."

Hotchner does originals, too. Last year on Playhouse 90, he wrote "The Last Clear Chance," an excellent courtroom drama starring Paul Muni and Luther Adler which was repeated during the summer.

The legal aspects came easy because Hotchner is a lawyer who has abandoned the practice of law for the typewriter.

RIGHT NOW he's working on another "Playhouse 90" script called "The Last Four Days of Mussolini." The documentary thing is real big this year and this is a logical successor to "The Plot To Kill Stalin" and "Seven Against the Wall," which was a documentary on the St. Valentine's day massacre in Chicago.

"Doing a documentary type of thing is entirely different from doing anything else. You have to get rid of all your prejudices and create out of the facts, the fiction of drama.

"I like working with Fred Coe (producer of many of Playhouse 90's best shows). When Coe produces, the author has the same status as a playwright on Broadway. You're committed to the show from the beginning to the end.

"Not all shows are like that. U.S. Steel, for example, just buys your script and says goodbye to you."

Persons and Programs

General Motors will sponsor eight Art Carney specials next fall, four of them dramatic shows, the others revues or variety shows. No network has been picked yet.

JO

COOPER

CBS-TV's The Last Word, scheduled to be axed after March 15, has gotten a reprieve through the summer.

Negotiations between Milton Berle and Kraft, which called for Berle to do six NBC-TV specials next fall, fell through because of money.

. . . Peter Gunn on Ch. 7 at 9

7 — TV PLAYHOUSE — There are two good scenes in tonight's play which make the show worth watching. In one Edward G. Robinson, as the chairman of the board of a textile firm and Lee Phillips, as his son who is the firm's president, struggle for control during a board meeting. In the other, Jacqueline Scott, as Phillips' wife, proves a point with a book of matches. The crux of this story is business ethics.

10 — BING CROSBY — Der Bingle will mingle with some nice folks on Bing's second live effort tonight. Jo Stafford and James Garner will be helping out in this show, which is patterned pretty much after his successful outing earlier this season. There are lots of songs, with Garner risking all and joining in. One running gag through the show involves carpenters who never quite finish putting up the sets. Crosby's twin sons, Phillip and Dennis, will be on hand, too. One dance number, by Thelma Tadlock and Tom Hansen, is the only formal production number. The rest is light-hearted, with typical Bing touches.

2 — LANGUAGE IN ACTION — "Where is the Meaning?"

4 — DESILU PLAY — Don't look now, but it's almost baseball season. And the program is rushing the season a bit with another in its series of plays that go heavy on saccharine content. Dan Duryea plays a once-great pitcher who has become a baseball-hating hobo. He wanders into the clutches of William Frawley, as a baseball nut, who tries to rehabilitate him. There's a love interest and, of course, a bunch of kids in the local Little League who badly need a hep manager. Steve Wootton plays the appealing kid, Duff.

10 — MOVIE — "Follow the Fleet," (1936), Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers. A song and dance man joins the Navy, with his pal, Bilge. They have trouble helping two girls.

11:20

7 — JACK PAAR — Some of Paar's fans say his best shows so far have been those from Hollywood. Jack's back there now and the show will be Hollywood-based for the next two weeks. He's brought along some of his New York regulars and these will be augmented by top Hollywood stars. Bob Hope welcomes Jack to Hollywood tonight.

11:25

4 — MOVIE — "Undercover Man," (1949), Glenn Ford, Nina Foch. Story centers around the efforts of government Treasury agents to obtain tax evasion evidence against an underworld overlord.

FUTURE FLORIDA DESIGNER: Fantasies today . . . fashions tomorrow!

Today, it's make-believe . . . tomorrow, perhaps, she'll design for the world as even today all America looks to Florida for the finest sunshine fashions. Just what will her opportunities be?

Today in Florida, fashion is big business . . . and it's growing! Aggressive, forward-looking designers, artists, seamstresses and models are taking the lead in the world of sunshine fashion . . . creating a flair in sunshine wear that is the challenge of style centers around the world. Each year, literally thousands of dollars worth of Florida-made fashions are shown and bought in markets everywhere.

But what about tomorrow? Will this girl with talent and imagination be able to contribute freely? Will she be free to create the fashions the public desires? Or will she be obliged to design utilitarian garments to fit a plan conceived by a meddling bureaucracy? She will be free to serve her patrons and her industry only if we preserve our system of free enterprise . . . the system which has helped build our living standards to the highest in the world . . . a system which allows each of us to think and create freely.

Just as our apparel industry is creating better things in fashion, so Florida Power & Light Company is creating better things electrically. Great new plants and generators, new substations and additional lines now under construction will soon supply literally thousands of added kilowatts for HAPPIER FLORIDA LIVING . . . ELECTRICALLY!

Herald Turf Writer

Pneumonia Cost Dave Erb Cool $8,607 in Flamingo

But for an untimely illness, Dave Erb would have ridden Troilus in his lucrative Flamingo romp.

Erb, the jockey who gained fame as pilot of Needles and Swoon's Son, handled Troilus in his first start this year but came down with pneumonia the day before he was to guide Bayard Sharp's colt in the Bahamas.

For a few hours Troilus was an open mount. But at that time Troilus was rather lightly regarded.

He had been 25-1 in the wagering when he won his only stakes victory at Laurel in November under a mere 114 pounds. He had finished ninth and last in his 1959 debut after "propping" when he hit a sun spot.

Now more than one jockey wishes his agent had foreseen the Sharp colt's amazing ascendancy and gone after that mount.

Fans No Longer Go 'On-and-On'

ERB

JONES

HOTTEST ARGUMENT in the press box last week was not whether Troilus could handle First Landing. It was over a prediction that Calumet's On-and-On would be favored over First Landing in the Kentucky Derby.

One top trainer was heard to declare that On-and-On was "another Tim Tam." Another horseman said the best three-year-old on Saturday's card was in the second race, meaning On-and-On, of course. A well-known turf writer said On-and-On would "terrify the Flamingo field" at Churchill Downs.

After On-and-On's defeat by a selling plater Saturday, the argument that he would be favored in the "Run for the Roses" was quietly dropped.

However, one has a feeling that On-and-On will be heard from again. His last race was too bad to be true.

A Glitter Will Shine Again

CHRIS ROGERS earned 10 per cent of the $86,070 purse won by Troilus Saturday but he had to be up at the crack of dawn Sunday to work Calumet's A Glitter.

The splendid filly, runnerup to Idun for championship honors in her division last year, worked five furlongs in 1:01.

A Glitter threw in a bad one, finishing 13th while Idun won the Columbiana Handicap Feb. 11. However, that was a seven-furlong race and A Glitter drew the extreme outside post in a 15-horse field.

She'll do better in Hialeah's closing-day feature, the nine-furlong Black Helen Handicap on Tuesday. In fact, we look for A Glitter to cap Jimmy Jones' outstanding season at Hialeah by whipping Idun in the Black Helen.

Howie Johnson Wins Baton Rouge Open

BATON ROUGE—(AP)—Howie Johnson swung a steady putter Sunday to a one stroke victory in the $15,000 Baton Rouge Open golf tournament. He had a pair of two-under-par 70s for a 283 total.

Johnson's winning total was the highest in the eight-year history of the tournament. A chill wind and the unaccustomed 36-hole windup on the final day, made necessary when rains delayed the start, sent scores soaring.

Johnson played steady golf as the leaders faltered. He was five strokes out of the lead at the mid-point of the tourney before Sunday's double round.

Jay Herbert of Sanford, Fla., who led by two strokes at the end of the third round, faltered to a three-over-par 75 on the final 18 holes and finished with 284. John McMullins, who led the first two days, finished with rounds of 75 and 72 for a 285 total and third money.

Mays Homers

Giants Batter Hurlers

PHOENIX —(AP)— Giant hitters caught up with their training camp pitchers in a five-inning intra squad game Sunday won by Willie Mays and other regulars, 14-4.

Mays, Ray Jablonski and rookie Catcher Roger McCardell hit homers for the winning team. The winners featured a lineup with which manager Bill Rigney may start the 1959 season.

It had third baseman Jimmy Davenport leading off, leftfielder Jackie Brandt batting second, Mays next, then Orlando Cepeda, first base; Felipe Alou, right field; Daryl Spencer, second base; Andre Rodgers, short stop, and Schmidt, catcher.

Brandt got three for three, a double and a pair of singles. In addition he made a fine running catch of what should have been a double for Bill White, first baseman on the losing team.

From Rebuke, Chris Finds Desire

By EDWIN POPE

Chris Rogers had just about quit riding after the Hialeah meeting of 1947. Untroubled by 5 a.m. risings and the steamy tortures of the Gulfstream Park sweat-box, he was living the good life and enjoying it with a capacity for enjoyment that is patently Chris Rogers'.

Then, late one night, a leading horse trainer button-holed him. "No wonder you're not even trying to ride at Gulfstream," he said casually. "You're washed up anyway. You're nothing any more, and you know it."

It was not so much what the trainer said as the matter-of-fact way he said it. Rogers likes to be laughed with, not at. He bristled. "You're going to eat those words before this meeting is up!"

The next morning Chris was out at dawn, swaddled in thick wool, running the pounds off, working his legs back into condition.

Three days later he was riding at Gulfstream. One day he rode four winners. He wound up the meeting as second leading rider to Jimmy Stout.

And Saturday, of course, 12 years after that trainer told him he was washed up, Chris Rogers won the $136,800 Flamingo on Troilus.

This boy is going to make the Bill Stern show yet.

ROGERS at 35 might be called a "jockey's jockey." His own style is flawless, and he takes pain to help youngsters. At his serious best, the tiny Canadian is as good as the best — excluding no one.

Assuredly he is serious these days. Up at dawn, he exercises horses at Hialeah, whizzes to Gulfstream for more of the same, then returns to Hialeah for a full afternoon of riding.

A 12-hour work day can grow grim, but, because Chris Rogers is indisputably Chris Rogers, humor always follows him. He must be the only jockey who loses as many dental plates as he does races. Chris switches his whip through his teeth, and often the plate goes flopping into the loam during a stretch drive.

Outriders weary of searching back up the track for Rogers' fallen plate have been known to demand dental technicians' scale.

LAST YEAR Rogers brought in Lincoln Road second in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. This year, with the mount on Troilus and considerable time spent in the saddle of Calumet outsider On-and-On, he is almost sure to be at Louisville with another running horse under him.

Once at the Derby, the Rogerses will take no back-seat to even Blue Grass hardboots for racetrack background. Chris has been riding for nearly 20 years. His wife's father — Russ Padgett — was a leading trainer even when blind.

Chris and Joan, his pleasant, pretty missus, bought a home in Hialeah with their cut of

Hialeah Splits Sprint

28 Go Today In Juvenile

By JOE McLAUGHLIN
Herald Turf Editor

There is unfinished stakes business on the Hialeah griddle — the Juvenile today and the Black Helen the following afternoon — before the curtain drops, on the 40-day meeting Tuesday.

The Juvenile attracted 28, the three-furlong dash to be split as the fourth and fifth races. Instead of the $15,000 added money orginally scheduled, there will be $20,000 offered — $10,000 in each division.

The $30,000-added mile and an eighth Black Helen will pit Idun against the field. Idun, four-year-old queen of her age for the past two years, won the recent Columbiana Handicap.

Odds-makers rate Idun — high-weight at 124, including Jockey Bill Hartack — a 6-to-5 choice. Calumet Farm's A Glitter and Rosewood are quoted at 3 to 1. Big Effort, Woodlawn, Moon Glory, Rare Treat, Aysha, New Talent, Point Pleasant and Happy Princess are among other probable starters.

Each division of today's Juvenile, based on 14 starters, would gross $17,425 and net the respective winners $10,876. Thirteen of the entrants already have visited the winner's circle.

One of the most interesting Juvenile candidates is Ernest H. Lane's unbeaten invader from New Orleans, Espanto, boasting three triumphs. The colt is to be ridden by his regular jockey, Vidal Guajardo.

In the same division is Royal Waltz, twice a Hialeah winner. She has Eric Guerin aboard.

Yale's 'Mighty Atom' Stricken at 51

Ex-Grid Great Booth Dies

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Albert J. (Albie) Booth, 51, whose football exploits for Yale provided a sports bright spot for the nation during the dark depression years, died Sunday at a New York hospital shortly after he walked in complaining of chest pains.

Booth, who won eight letters in football, basketball and baseball for Yale in 1929, 1930 and 1931, was en route to his home in Hamden, Conn., when he was stricken. He walked into St. Elizabeth's Hospital at 12:30 a.m., EST.

He died at 2 a.m., apparently of a heart attack. Booth's wife, Marion, was with him when he died.

Booth, an executive of the General Ice Cream Corporation of New Haven, had attended a Broadway show Saturday night. He was riding home in an automobile when he developed the chest pains. He was driven to the hospital, which was nearby.

Booth, a college football official as well as a businessman in recent years, weighed only 147 pounds when he played for Yale. But he was fast and elusive and set a Yale record for points scored, 138.

Booth was known as "The Mighty Atom" and "Little Boy Blue" while starring at halfback. He was captain of Yale's 1931 squad, coached by Marvin Stevens, and led the team to five victories, two losses and a tie.

In addition to his widow, Booth is survived by two daughters.

Booth began his varsity exploits at Yale in the fall of 1929, when the October stock market crash signaled the start of the depression. Booth was born and raised in New Haven, site of Yale, and went on to become the most famous wearer of the Blue since the university began football in 1872.

When he finished his career in 1931, he also was considered one of the best players, pound-for-pound, in football history.

Booth burst into national sports prominence as a sophomore on Oct. 26, 1929. A great Army team, led by All-America Chris Cagle, led Yale, 13-0, late in the first half. Then Booth came off the bench to perform the first of a long string of "Frank Merriwell" feats.

Booth stunned the Cadets with two 60-yard touchdown runs and then dashed 80 yards to give Yale a 21-13 victory. Booth, the last of football's great drop-kickers, drop-kicked Yale's three extra points.

He closed out his football career in equally dramatic fashion. Playing in the annual Yale-Harvard classic at Cambridge, Mass., he drop-kicked a field goal to give his school a 3-0 triumph.

Pettit Hits 38; Hawks Nip Celtics

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Bob Pettit, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer, popped in 38 points Sunday afternoon as the St. Louis Hawks defeated the Boston Celtics, 104-102, in a battle of divisional champions.

A sellout crowd of 11,067 saw the Hawks gain their fifth victory over the Celtics in nine regular season meetings.

Coach Red Auerbach of Boston lodged a vehement protest at the game's end that the Hawks were guilty of goal tending on a last-second shot by Bob Cousy, star Celtic playmaker.

But referees Willie Smith and Sid Borgia ruled the ball hit the rim and then was batted away by Pettit.

St. Louis trailed by 14 points early in the third quarter and didn't catch the Easter Division title holders until the final period, which started 74-72 in Boston's favor.

Pettit now has 1,924 points and needs only 78 more in six remaining games to crack the NBA record of 2,001 set by George Yardley of Detroit last year.

Shue Erupts

DETROIT — Gene Shue exploded for 31 points as the Detroit Pistons ended a three-game losing streak with a 117-101 victory over the Cincinnati Royals before 1,200 fans.

The former Maryland star, who has handed the job of leading the Piston scorers when George Yardley was traded to Syracuse, had his second best day of the season against the Royals.

In winding up their season series with the Royals with a 9-3 advantage, Detroit hit 45 field goals in 110 attempts for .409 per cent. The Royals shot .363 on 37 field goals in 102 tries.

Frustrate Knicks

SYRACUSE — The Syracuse Nationals kept the New York Knickerbockers from clinching second place in the Eastern Division Sunday as they posted their fifth straight home court victory, 140-115.

The Knicks still need one victory or a Syracuse loss to lock up second place.

A 36-point second quarter, while the Knicks were getting only 24, put the fast-breaking Nats far in front. Willie Naulls led the scorers with 28 points.

Boyle's Team Wins at Shores

Mrs. Helen Boyle combined with Bob Lobeck, Charles Matheson and John Ingraham Sunday for a net 115 and the two-day sweepstakes golf prize at Miami Shores Country Club.

Royall, Flock Win Trapshoot Honors

Sunday's event from 23 yards saw Len Crawford win with 94x100. W. W. Watson beat Victor Fite in a shootoff after they had tied for second with 93x100.

Mrs. Flock was high lady with 91x100. Helen DelMonico was second with 90x100.

'Every Trip to Mound I'm Nervous'--Grissom

Marv Grissom
. . . likes his job

ST. PETERSBURG — (UP) — Marvin Grissom, starting his 19th campaign in organized baseball, his tenth in the major leagues, admits he still gets nervous every time he trudges to the mound.

That's quite a confession, coming from a man who has pitched in 554 professional games. More than half have come in emergency relief roles, usually when the bases were clogged and one errant pitch meant the ball game.

"I don't remember a single time that I wasn't nervous when I was called in from the bullpen," said the 41-year-old relief ace of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The grizzled right-hander, acquired in a winter trade with the San Francisco Giants, has been one of the game's standout relief pitchers since 1953. He made 51 mound appearances last year. He hasn't started one of his last 278 games. Has that ever bothered him?

"Not at all," he said. "I've never regretted becoming a relief pitcher. I think it's added at least two or three years to my career. I'm a lucky guy to have stayed around as long as I have."

He didn't get a real big league trial until he was 34. In mid-season of 1953, his first year with the Giants, he forsook starting roles to devote himself exclusively to relief roles. It was his own decision.

"I was 35 and I had gotten to the point where it was getting to be a struggle to go nine innings," he said. "So one day in a Pittsburgh hotel lobby, I told Frank Shellenback, the Giants' pitching coach, what I had in mind. He was delighted. He said that was exactly what he and Manager Leo Durocher had discussed earlier in the day. He assured me I would never regret making the change. And he was right."

That's What Gleason Says

Who's Patterson? Valdes Is Champ

Boxing fans didn't know it (and many won't believe it), but Wednesday night's Nino Valdes-Charley Powell brawl is a heavyweight title fight.

Who says so? Bobby Gleason, and he's the manager of Valdes.

Well, anyway, Gleason Sunday declared he would no longer seek a match with recognized heavyweight Champion Floyd Patterson. Instead, Gleason said he is claiming for Valdes the title of "Professional Heavyweight Champion" and withdrawing him from all ratings listing him only as a "contender."

While Valdes was boxing five rounds in the Miami Beach Fifth Street gymnasium in preparation for his meeting with Powell, Gleason also claimed that the "Governor of Colorado has already recognized Nino's second title defense.

"We will fight Zora Folley on April 7 in Denver. That will be a 12-round title fight. But Powell gets to test Valdes first . . . and if he beats him he gets the title and the Folley match.

"We're not gonna play around like this Patterson guy."

It appeared last Fall that a Valdes-Patterson match was almost a certainty . . . but the title shot fell through at the last moment.

"I've given up," Gleason said. "We'll fight any heavyweight who wants a shot at us. We'll fight eight times a year, just like we did last year.

"What can Patterson do? Sue us? Maybe they will. It's a cinch they won't fight us."

Ted 'Parks' Pair; Aaron Won't Move

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — (AP) — Ted Williams, baseball's highest paid player, reported to the Boston spring training camp Sunday and promptly blasted two tremendous drives over the 375 foot fence in right field.

Hank: Like It Fine in Outfield

BRADENTON—No-siree, says right-fielder Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves, "I'm not going to play second base for anybody."

That was Aaron's reaction when he checked into the Braves' training camp and was asked how he felt about trying his hand at the vacant second base job.

"I like it fine where I am (right field)," said Aaron, who played second and short in the minors and filled in at second for the Braves earlier in his career.

When reminded that Mel Roach, No. 1 candidate for Red Schoendienst's job, would not be ready by opening day because of a knee injury, Aaron flashed a toothy grin and said:

Newk Sharp In Red Drill

TAMPA—More than a dozen of the 25 pitchers in the Cincinnati Reds' spring training camp got in turns on the mound under the watchful eyes of Manager Mayo Smith and Pitching Coach Clyde King.

One of the brightest spots in Sunday's workout was the pitching of the veteran Don Newcombe. He had his fast ball and his change-up curve working beautifully and King commented, "It's sure good to see that big guy pourin' em in that way this early."

Newcombe, who pitched for about 25 minutes of batting practice, said, "I'm usually bothered with arm trouble at this time of the year but so far I haven't had the slightest pain."

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Cardinals announced that Joe Cunningham, one of two remaining holdouts, has been signed. It was estimated he will make about $20,000 for this year's work. He hit .312 last year as an outfielder-first baseman.

Racial Issue Keeps Miss. State Home

Kentucky Gets NCAA Spot by 'Default'

NEW YORK—(AP)—Kentucky, the defending NCAA champion and rated the nation's No. 1 basketball team in the Associated Press poll, will get its chance to defend the NCAA title. But the Wildcats received it by default rather than on their own merits.

A short time after they completed their season by whipping Tennessee, 69-56, Saturday, the Kentucky players were told that they had been designated as Southeastern Conference representatives although they had only tied for second place in the standings.

Mississippi State, the Southeastern winner with a 13-1 conference record, turned down the NCAA when its president, Ben Hilbun, decided to honor an unwritten segregation law. He ruled that Mississippi State couldn't play in a tournament in which other teams had Negro players.

Auburn, which tied Kentucky, was eliminated because it is under NCAA probation. That left Kentucky as the only team available.

Kentucky looked like the conference's best team in the windup games.

Mississippi State wasn't able to overcome Mississippi's stalling tactics and won by only 23-16. Bailey Howell got only six points and ended his career 27 points short of setting a conference scoring record for one season.

Auburn finished with a 69-50 decision over Alabama for a 20-2 season record and 12-2 in the conference.

West Virginia, Michigan State and Navy also gained places in the NCAA Championship Saturday, and California, Cincinnati and Utah, among others, came a step closer.

West Virginia, with Jerry West sinking 27 points, routed The Citadel, 85-66, to win the Southern Conference tournament. It was the 50th straight conference victory for the Mountaineers.

Michigan State also drew an automatic place in the tournament by winning the Big Ten championship. The Spartans polished off Indiana, 86-83, to finish with a 10-3 record.

Navy received an at-large invitation after routing its traditional rival, Army, 69-52.

California clinched at least a tie for the Pacific Coast Conference title by whipping Washington State, 65-45. Utah maintained its one-game lead over Denver in the Skyline Conference race by beating Utah State, 66-63. Cincinnati remained undefeated in the Missouri Valley as Oscar Robertson's 38-point production led the way in a 78-66 victory over Houston.

Cincinnati, 11-0 in the Missouri Valley, has three games to play, the last two against its closest conference rivals, Bradley (10-2) and St. Louis (9-3). It is expected that the runner-up in this circuit will be invited to New York's National Invitation Tournament.

Elsewhere in the tournament picture, North Carolina State, won the draw for top seeding in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament which starts Thursday.

N.C. State is another team on NCAA probation and can't play in the championship if it wins the ACC tournament. In that case, the runnerup will go.

Still undecided are the Mid-American, Yankee and Border Conference races, whose winners get automatic NCAA places, and the Ivy League, for which an at-large bid is reserved.

For 'Best' UM Cagers, Regret . . . and 3 Records

University of Miami's basketball team, still disappointed about being overlooked by the NIT following its 92-85 closing victory over Florida State, gained solace in its three school records Sunday.

The marks are:

Most points in one season — 2,190.

Best average per-game — 86.7 (tops in the country).

Most games won against college competition — 18. (UM lost only seven).

Individually, Dick (The Menace) Hickox and Harry Manushaw set records of their own. Hickox' 453 points were the most ever scored by a UM sophomore.

Miami's well-balanced team had two players scoring more than 400 points, two above 300 and another pair over 200. Norm Nebel, who scored 213 points, set a UM accuracy record with a .486 percentage.

The scoring:

Irate Fisherman Asks License For Water Skiers, Swimmers

Ed Louys, the much-travelled Hialeah outdoor writer and Florida representative of Salt Water Sportsman magazine, is opposed to a salt water fishing license.

"I talked with more than 50 anglers during a recent trip along the East Coast," Louys said. "Nobody approved licensing. Most were bitterly opposed to it."

DUNAWAY

He tried vainly to assume a serious expression, then continued: "Some of the people I interviewed, however, felt that both skin divers and water skiers — because of their sheer numbers and disturbing effect on sports fishing — should be licensed. One irate fisherman suggested that even swimmers be taxed.

"This suggests the possibility that taxes for use of our natural resources may eventually reach a point where an unlicensed person who falls overboard may be subject to fine."

Mixing a bit of sobriety with his ridicule, Louys observed that advocates of the salt water license have not considered the political implications, and the immensity of enforcing and administering such a law, which would affect hundreds of thousands of anglers.

"Licensing," he said, "would be folly without good enforcement. And enforcement on Florida's coastline (longest in the country) would require an army of conservation officers, backed by an administrative and educational staff so large that payroll and operational expenses alone would require a staggering sum of money."

Fees Would Go Up, Up, Up

LOUYS EXPRESSED doubt that the income from a nominal license fee would be enough to cover expenses. He fears that the angler, once licensed, would find himself subject to ever increasing fees before any real benefit to fishing could be realized.

"Marine research," he continued, "is given as the main reason for wanting a license in the first place. But this would surely be the last and least attended item in the formation of such a topheavy organization. In the final analysis, research would become a legislative club with which to demand heavier appropriations. And who would pay? The fisherman, of course, with higher license fees.

"Besides, Florida fishermen don't need a million dollars worth of research to be told that their shoreline fishing is being buried under mountains of rock and sand by real estate developers — or that the tremendous growth of boating traffic, water skiing and skin diving in many sectors has literally driven the fish away."

Florida's Not Ready

ALTHOUGH HE might not have known it when he made these statements, Louys was echoing sentiments expressed to me many times during recent weeks — that administration of a license would cost too much for the potential benefits.

PERSONALLY, I feel that this is not much cause for concern. Either of two operating agencies — the State Board of Conservation, or the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission — could take over administration with little expense other than expanding personnel.

However, as I stated Sunday, I do not believe that Florida is ready for a salt water license — and will not be until very definite objectives and courses of action are planned.

Stanovich, Brue Team For 4-Ball

Herald Service

Brue and Lee Raymond, both former University of Miami golf stars, won here last year. Since Raymond has turned pro and cannot compete, Brue will team with Martin Stanovich in the March 18-22 72-hole medal play event.

Another outstanding team is the Don Essig III — Pete Dye duo. Essig won the National Public Links championship in 1957 and was medalist in last year's Public Links event.

Other recent entries include Art R. Hoff and E. A. Howard Jr; Jacques Houdry and Dick Allman; Dick Foutche and Alfred Sams, and Fordie Pitts Jr. and Joseph F. Mitchell.

Leafs, Rangers Tie, 1-1

Bathgate's goal was his 33rd of the season and tied him with the Montreal Canadiens' Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore. The goal also enabled Bathgate to tie a Ranger club scoring record set back in the 30's by Bill Cook.

In Lightning Regatta

Carlin Retains Sailing Title

John McIntosh of Savannah was Sunday's winner over the Coral Reef Yacht Club's triangular course. Rain caught the 24 competing skippers on the final leg of the race, but there were no mishaps.

Carlin finished fourth and first in Saturday's two heats. His victory enabled him to cart away his own trophy he donated for the sailor compiling most points in the Miami regatta and last week's St. Petersburg regatta.

The Lightning Association trophy for the Deep Southern Circuit champion (Savannah, St. Petersburg and Miami regattas) went to Carl Smither of Buffalo, N.Y.

This was the first year the trophy has been presented and Smither was a fitting winner. A grandfather and life-time sailor, Smither has captured nearly every big Lightning class title existing.

The final top ten finishers:

1. Alec Carlin (4-1-2); 2. John McIntosh (8-5-1); 3. Carl Smither (2-8-6); 4. Bob Crane (6-2-9); 5. Tom Fallon (10-4-3); 6. Oscar Nelson (11-3-5); 7. Jim Davis (5-11-4); 8. Howard Foht (1-dnf-7); 9. Howard Mullen (8-7-10); 10. Sam Zerovich (12-6-11).

Mrs. Glick Defeats Judy Bell for Title

ORMOND BEACH—(AP)—Mrs. Maurice Glick, veteran golfer from Baltimore, Md., won the South Atlantic Women's amateur crown Sunday, 2-1, over defending Champion Judy Bell of Wichita.

The victory was the first for Mrs. Glick who has played in 12 straight tournaments here since they were resumed after World War II. In the 36-hole final, she had a fine short iron game and her putting improved during the afternoon.

Miss Bell, 22-year-old college senior competing in her third tournament here, finished the morning play 1-up. Mrs. Glick evened the match on the 20th hole with a birdie four on the Ellinor Village Country Club Course.

On the 22nd, Miss Bell sent one of her shots into the Palmettos while Mrs. Glick was down in par three to go one up. She was never behind again.

Air is great for bagpipes—but cigars should be full of tobacco!

There are two kinds of cigars. Good ones and ungood ones. The ungood ones are made wrong. They're filled with cheaper tobacco, not enough of it, loosely packed.

White Owls are good ones. Filled with quality tobacco, plenty of it, packed just right. How can they sell them for only ten cents? Volume. Hundreds of millions.

Live a little!

	4	Gay Reaper	R. L. Gilbert	x109	20-1

LOGANA is in good hands; ASSOCIATE is a "drop-down" and a factor; ERRATIC is not without a chance; EYE PATCH won last and could be real dangerous.

732—THIRD—Purse $3,500, 3-year-old maiden colts and geldings. 6 Furlongs. Post 2:26.

632	9	Jimmy Go Round	A. Ferraiuolo	120	20-1

	1	Son O'Taurus	J. DelVecchio	120	10-1
	5	Sinners Quest	D. Erb	120	20-1

ROSE OF SERRO is a speedy filly; BRUD was fourth in recent try after a good win; VENETIAN WAY was a smart winner; COACH WALLY's last was not bad, will improve today.

734—FIFTH—$10,000 Added, Hialeah Juvenile 2nd Div., 2-year-olds, 3 furlongs. Post 3:26.

Ind	PP	Horse,	Jockey	Wt.	Odds

	13	Carrollton	J. Leonard	120	20-1
687	11	Son O'Royal	No Boy	120	20-1

ROYAL WALTZ might be just a dance for this filly; CRAFTY KING will improve with Ussery aboard; ESPANTO was a three-time winner in New Orleans; MARIKAY had a rough trip in last, won earlier over course.

735—SIXTH—Purse $5,000, 3-year-old fillies, allowances, 7 furlongs. Post 3:50.

Ind	PP	Horse,	Jockey	Wt.	Odds
(655)	3	Natalie	No Boy	118	2-1

699	5	Imperial Hill	W. M. Cook	106	20-1

NATALIE has winning ways; FIJI is toting heavy package but is still the contender; WAYWARD MISS can better recent try; ANNSIE PIE is in light enough.

736—SEVENTH—Purse $5,000, 4-year-olds, allowances, 6 furlongs. Post 4:18.

Ind	PP	Horse,	Jockey	Wt.	Odds
(476)	8	King's Navy	J. Culmone	119	2-1

535	6	Blessing Count	R. Dever	110	20-1
437	3	Bairam	C. Stone	110	20-1

a—Calumet entry

KING'S NAVY appears like a repeater; OIL RICH will be the contender; SKITTLES is a recent graduate from the maiden ranks; ALESSTA is a Calumet mate to Skittles.

737—EIGHTH—Purse $4,500 4-year-olds and up, claiming, $15,000, 6 furlongs. Post 4:46.

Ind	PP	Horse,	Jockey	Wt.	Odds

644	7	Tellarian	B. Fisk	116	15-1
647	8	Ever Best	W. Blum	116	10-1

MR. PATRICK is in rare form right now and consistent; FLYING BIRD must be classified a factor; ROYAL SPY usually runs close up; INFORMANT won last, moving up, FOUR FIVES can't be overlooked.

738—NINTH—Purse $4,500, 4-year-olds and up, allowances, 6 furlongs. Post 5:14.

562	9	Galley Hill	C. Stone	116	20-1

MISSILE must be given top consideration; FABULOUS FOX is always fighting at the finish; HOMEWARD ANGEL won last and can't be counted out; BRUSSELS has been working well enough.

Old-Timers Couldn't Act?

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(P)— Robert Culp, one of the few western actors who uses the Stanislawski method, says the old time Western heros couldn't cut it on today's market.

"Most oldtimers couldn't act," says Culp. "Today you can't get by on gimmicks; you have to know your craft."

The old movie cowboys, says Culp, were mostly ex-athletes or stuntmen. He admits that Tom Mix, Buck Jones and Jack Hoxie performed their duties well, but adds: "People are more selective now with television and movie westerns. They demand more and more authenticity."

Leading Role?

Had Doors Swinging Wrong Way

David Niven's Directing Debut Cost Night's Sleep

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. —(AP)— David Niven took a crack at directing but it cost him a night's sleep. He made his directing debut last fall on TV's "Zane Grey Theatre," which his company owns.

"I went to bed early the night before my debut," Niven recalls, "but at 2 a.m. I awoke with a frightening thought. I couldn't remember if I had had the work crew place the doors in the proper position."

It seems the doors were supposed to open left to right for the proper camera shots.

"The more I thought about it, the more I felt I had told them just the opposite."

So Niven drove to the studio.

"Sure enough I blundered. The night watchman and I spent the rest of the night switching doors."

Eddie Albert, star of the episode, told Niven he was the most relaxed director he had ever worked for.

Kidnaped Boy, 7, is Found Safe; 2nd California Case Unsolved

Babysitter Disappears With Boy

ONTARIO, Calif. — (UPI) — A seven-year-old boy, one of two children abducted in separate Southern California kidnapings, was found with a former mental patient at Bishop, Calif., Sunday, police reported.

WAYNE

Authorities still sought the other child, a nine-week-old baby boy taken by a babysitter here Friday night.

Wayne Patrick Murry Jr., lured from play on the beach Saturday by promise of chocolate milk, was found in company of William Harris Elwell, 28, at Bishop, 300 miles from his Venice, Calif., home, authorities said the boy appeared to be all right.

Bishop police said they surprised Elwell in a hotel room after a bus driver reported a man and a boy answering the description of the pair had ridden his bus to that city.

Police said Wayne was playing on the beach with his six-year old brother when he was lured away by Elwell.

The younger boy became frightened and ran home.

Police said Elwell was judged insane in 1955 after being involved in a shooting. He was treated at mental institutions and released.

In Ontario, police said Eric Leon Flores apparently was taken from his home by a babysitter.

Mrs. Ruth Flores discovered the baby missing when she returned home Friday night after being out with friends.

She told police that a woman known to her only as Ann Williams had volunteered to stay with her seven children during the evening.

Police said they have not been able to learn anything about the background of the babysitter. They said Mrs. Flores did not consider the offer to stay with the children unusual because many people have offered to help her since her husband was killed in an explosion last year.

'Big Eye' To Smooth Air Traffic

In a month and a half, the men who control airplane flights over South Florida will have their "big eye" working to help break the traffic jam.

By that time, according to Air Traffic Route Control officials here, new long range radar will be in operation, reaching out 150 miles to "see" planes in flight.

Now under construction at the old Richmond air station southwest of Miami, the installation is expected to be completed by March 13.

For the next 30 days, ATC men will be trained in its operation and use the radar in conjunction with their regular radio control system.

Once in full scale use, the radar is expected to speed the takeoffs and "in-flight" schedules of all aircraft using ATC facilities—which means all passenger airliner.

The new equipment will work closely with radar now being installed at Miami International Airport for local control of aircraft entering and leaving the airport in poor weather and at night.

By seeing where each plane is exactly rather than by sometimes sketchy radio reports, ATC can tighten up the airways putting more planes into the airspace available.

Landings, however, still will be handled here by the airport control tower which will ballance traffic against weather conditions to determine how quickly planes can "come in."

The new radar will permit ATC to put planes in landing positions more quickly than before, moving them from higher to lower altitudes and into the airport tower's control zone.

FT. BRAGG, N.C. — (AP) — Gen. George C. Marshall remained in serious condition at Womack Army Hospital Sunday.

Soprano Dazzles At Concert

By DORIS RENO
Herald Music Editor

A Music Review

Victoria de los Angeles, Spanish soprano who possesses one of the most beautiful voices singing in the world today, brought her artistry to the attention of Miami music-listeners Sunday night, when she appeared as soloist with John Bitter and the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra in Miami Beach auditorium.

The still-young but thoroughly mature artist addressed herself to the three-movement Mozart motet, "Exultate Jubilate," K. 165, and three arias—"L'altra notte in fondo" from Boito's "Mefistofele," the "Una voce poco fa" from Rossini's "Barber of Seville," and the Jewel Song from Gounod's "Faust" as encore.

Her voice has a rare combination of rich color and exceeding purity that seldom exist together, and it possesses that even rarer "floating" quality given only to great natural singers.

It is so easily produced, without even the merest suggestion of strain, that no effort seems to be involved at all.

The range is unusual passing from deep mezzo tones to a glorious top so secure that there remains always the suggestion of further heights still to be scaled at will.

With all these gifts set forth, it is scarcely necessary to state further that the Mozart and all the arias were perfectly sung, leaving no desires unfulfilled with regard to them.

Mr. Bitter and the orchestra gave well-geared accompaniments throughout.

The Schumann "Spring" Symphony, Op. 38, the principal orchestral offering, was perhaps not too good a choice for a program that can compass only one piece de resistance — since Schumann has been fairly generally criticized for his "thick" orchestration and his pianistic writing for orchestra.

The work did not come through in very live terms, nor did its elements coalesce too successfully.

The best orchestral work was done in the two Slavonic Dances of Dvorak, numbers 8 and 10, which were given vivid lively readings. The Bach Fugue in G minor, transcribed by Stokowski, completed the program.

The program will be repeated at 8:30 tonight in Dade County auditorium.

Indonesia Holds Formosa Vessel

MANILA —(UPI)— An Indonesian patrol boat detained a Nationalist Chinese fishing vessel in waters of the North Celebes and towed it to port for further investigation, the Pia News Agency reported from Jakarta Sunday.

The 57-ton vessel was equipped with a radio transmitter and receiving set and manned by a 15-member crew all wearing uniforms "identical to the uniforms" used by the Indonesian rebels in the North Celebes, the agency said.

Reasons Behind It

'Anti-Mix' Paper Just a Petition

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — There are two key reasons behind a so-called manifesto, signed by 20 some legislators, vowing they will vote to abolish public schools if necessary to thwart integration.

BOYLES

The first is, of course, that they want to assure constituents they will fight for some anti-mix legislation on the theory that, although any such measure might be ruled unconstitutional by the courts, legal battles testing the law would consume time and delay desegregation.

Second, and perhaps the prime reason, is that a majority of the Legislature favors some kind of parent-option bill. They want a provision that would permit parents to withdraw children from an integrated school. The consensus may not, however, be in favor of the specific parent-option proposal laid down by Attorney General Richard Ervin and Superintendent of Schools Thomas D. Bailey.

Just Kindling

BUT PROPONENTS of some kind of parent-option plan believe they will have a better chance of pushing it through the Legislature if they indicate more extreme legislation might be enacted.

And although the Bailey-Ervin parent-option plan would keep public schools open, there are rock-ribbed segregationist lawmakers who don't believe a majority of the state's educators will buy it unless they are first threatened with wholesale closing of schools.

It would be more fitting to call the "manifesto" merely a petition that reaffirmed the defiant stand already expressed many times.

In brief, it was both a demonstration of hostility toward moderation, and an expedient effort to bargain with the moderates.

Cheers for UDC

The unit is campaigning to have the site of the Battle of Natural Bridge, a few miles east of Tallahassee, preserved as a national shrine.

It was there that a pick-up contingent of old men, and fuzzy-cheeked cadets from the academy that is now Florida State University saved the city of Tallahassee from federal troops, distinguishing it as the only Confederate state capital east of the Mississippi not to have been captured by Union forces.

The battle was fought March 6, 1865, but the annual pilgrimage to the site will be made Sunday, March 8, with FSU ROTC units participating.

Little has been done to utilize the historic site as a tourist attraction. Markers have been defaced and breastworks trampled down.

Race Fight Breaks Out At Church

NEW ORLEANS — (AP) — An inter-racial fight involving about 15 persons broke out after 9 o'clock mass Sunday at the integrated Catholic Church of St. Joseph the Worker in nearby Marrero.

Three Negroes were hurt, but two of them were discharged from a hospital after treatment.

Jefferson Parish (County) authorities picked up four Negroes and two whites for questioning.

Officers said apparently the only weapon used was a tire tool. The melee occurred in front of the church.

Officers attributed the outbreak to antagonism following a magazine article (Jet, March 5) entitled "How Negro Kids Integrated Louisiana Catholic Church." The author (Marc Crawford) credited the integration to the leadership of teenagers in the church.

After the disorder, Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel of New Orleans issued a statement in which he said the magazine article had been published contrary to his advice. He said that neither he nor The Rev. Anthony Rousso, pastor of the church, was responsible for the publication.

The archbishop expressed shock, regret, grief and disapproval of the incident.

Integration To Stir Up Legislature

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Things are building up for the integration battle to erupt the opening day of the 1959 Legislature, and most everyone hopes it will be over quickly.

It appears now that the two bills which will stir up the most talk will be tossed in at the legislative opening April 7—the last resort school closing bill and the parent option tuition plan.

Both these proposals stand a good chance of final passage, whether or not Gov. LeRoy Collins accepts them. The governor hasn't said how he stands on parent option but has indicated rather clearly he still opposes the last resort proposal he vetoed in 1957.

Also in prospect are bills designed to strengthen the pupil assignment law and one even stronger than the "last resort" bill which conceivably could shut down all public schools if necessary to head off integration. The latter proposal, if introduced, would encounter strong opposition from friends of the public school.

Legislators are doing a lot of talking now about new legislation to strengthen Florida's hand in the fight to block integration, and likely it'll carry into the early days of the session.

But many of the lawmakers say privately that they hope the issues can be decided conclusively in the first two weeks so that other business of the legislature won't be gummed up.

These legislators, and state officials as well, are fearful that if the legislature should get into a prolonged battle over this highly emotional subject, other important work of the session would be buried in a sea of bitterness.

House Speaker Designate Thomas D. Beasley said the agitation for stronger legislation in the racial field was fired up by recent action of the Dade County School Board in admitting four Negroes to a white elementary school in Miami next September.

Framers of the anti-integration "manifesto" signed by more than a score of legislators said the action was prompted by the Dade decision.

A "last resort" bill already has been prepared by the attorney general's office for introduction by Rep. J. W. McAlpin of Hamilton County. A similar bill likely will be put into the Senate opening day also.

Dulles Passes 'Restful Night'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles had "an exceedingly comfortable and restful night" at Walter Reed Medical Center, the State Department reported Sunday.

"He appeared well rested this morning," a department spokesman said, adding:

"The secretary continues to progress satisfactorily" from his hernia operation and cancer therapy.

Dulles got a respite Sunday from the X-ray treatments he has been undergoing for an abdominal cancer. They will be resumed today.

A Dozen Senators Hire Kin

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Relatives of at least a dozen senators are on the Senate payroll but the amount each receives is a secret.

Under its rules the Senate doesn't disclose the identity or pay of any employe as does the House, where nepotism charges have created a flurry recently.

About the only public index of senators' employes is the Senate telephone book, which lists many, but not necessarily all, of those who work on office and committee staffs.

Checks made from listings in this book showed four senators whose daughters are on the February payroll. They include Sens. John Carroll (D., Colo.), Francis Case (R., S.D.), James O. Eastland (D., Miss.) and Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D., N.C.).

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas employs his brother, Sam Houston Johnson, and his brother's wife, Mary, who worked for the senator before she was married. Sam Johnson worked as a congressional secretary before Lyndon Johnson was elected to the House in 1937.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R., Ky.) has a sister, Mrs. Benjamin Heiser, on his payroll as a file clerk and receptionist.

Robert F. Kennedy, chief counsel for the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, is the brother of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), a member of the committee.

Sen. James E. Murray (D., Mont.) employs his son, Charles A. Murray, as his administrative assistant.

Young Murray began working in his father's office here in 1937 as a file clerk at $1,800 annual gross pay. In the next 10 years his pay was raised to $2,400 and $3,200. In 1947 he was appointed administrative assistant at $10,000 annually. A year ago, it was learned, he began receiving $16,300 — the maximum pay for an administrative assistant.

Sens. Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) and Ralph Yarborough (D., Tex.) provide employment for their sons. Sen. John Sparkman (D., Ala.) has had his wife working for him in his office for many years.

Sen. Richard Russell (D., Ga.) has two nephews on his payroll. They are William Don Russell, who works in Washington, and Richard B. Russell III, employed in the senator's Winder, Ga., office.

So far as could be learned, all of the relatives of senators are full time workers.

Detector Faces Test

HONOLULU —(UPI)— An underwater missile detection system which eventually will stretch from Hawaii to Hong Kong is scheduled to be tested this week, it was learned Sunday.

A reliable source said the unique electronic warning system will be in operation at Wake Island "within three or four weeks." The system is made up of lengthy cables which will mark exactly when and where a test missile launched from the Pacific coast hits the water.

The system designed for the Wake Island area reportedly consists of five 70 mile-long cables radiating spoke-like along the ocean floor. They will be capable of pin-pointing any missile falling within a 500-mile radius.

Similar systems have been planned for Kwajelein and Midway with a July 1 completion date set for these projects, the source said.

Critics Lose Out, 52,000 Hear Billy

MELBOURNE, Australia — (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham attracted another huge crowd Sunday despite criticism in some Anglican church circles and a "Billy Go Home" headline in a small news magazine.

GRAHAM

More than 52,000 persons crowded into Sidney Myer Music Bowl Sunday to hear Graham's sermon about the danger of the world being destroyed by atomic war.

The North Carolina Baptist minister has preached to record crowds every day since his five-month Australian Crusade for Christ began here Feb. 15.

Crusade officials reported that more than 10,000 persons have made "Decisions for Christ" at the Melbourne meetings.

Despite these successes, however, there have been some rumblings of disapproval.

"News Day," a new weekly magazine with a small circulation published in the Sydney suburb of Ashfield, carried in its first issue a Graham story headlined "Billy Go Home."

"Billy Graham, the self-appointed heavenly huckster, should pack his carpetbag and go straight back home," News Day said. "Australia has got on pretty well so far without Graham's particular brand of religious emotionalism and his specialized method of selling religion.

"Thoughtful Australians will be horrified by the near blasphemy of his attitude. The voice of God doesn't come bellowing from a loudspeaker."

The magazine said Graham was obviously sincere but his methods were out of place in Australia. Officials of the Graham crusade "team" Sunday dismissed the article as "unworthy of comment."

Another criticism came from the Anglican archbishop of Coulburn and Canberra, Dr. E. H. Burgmann. In his Diocesan magazine, The Southern Churchman, Dr. Burgmann wrote:

"I cannot go along with a modern 'Fundamentalist' crusade such as is now being conducted by Billy Graham. Great crowds do not provide the the atmosphere for serious decisions involving the truths vital for meeting the strain of daily living."

Police Pray For Break In Slaying

No car. No killer. No clues. That was the story Sunday as some 20 Metro homicide detectives continued to press investigation into the murder of pretty Mrs. Mary Meslener.

"We're praying for a break," said Sgt. Pat Gallagher, who is working almost around the clock on the case.

"We've got three teams of divers and a helicopter camera crew searching for her car throughout Dade — but no luck so far."

Gallagher said the two-toned blue 1958 Nash Rambler would probably be "full of blood" since the fatal shooting apparently occurred in the car.

A young off-duty detective who went to a baseball practice session before showing up for work was severely dressed down by his superior.

"How can you play baseball when we have a major murder case on our hands?" demanded Sgt. Gallagher when the detective arrived at his office.

Ervin Sees No School Closings

Florida Atty. Gen. Richard E. Ervin said Sunday he doesn't believe the State Legislature will allow schools to be closed to prevent integration in Dade County or elsewhere.

But Ervin added he doesn't believe integration of all Florida schools is inevitable.

"I believe our parent-option plan is satisfactory and can be upheld in the courts," he said while appearing as a guest on a Channel 10 program.

Ervin said that on the school integration question he thinks of himself as a "realist, certainly not an extremist on either side. I want to be a moderate."

Each county, Ervin said should be allowed to decide its course on school integration, such as Dade school officials who agreed to a token integration of Orchard Villa Elementary school.

The Dade decision, he said, "will help create a mood of tolerance on the part of the National Association for the Advancement for Colored People" which has been pressuring for faster desegregation.

Cafe in Casbah Bombed, 4 Hurt

ALGIERS — (UPI) — An Algerian rebel hurled a grenade into a Casbah cafe crowded with patrons Sunday, seriously injuring four persons. Three of those wounded were Moslems. The fourth was a Frenchman.

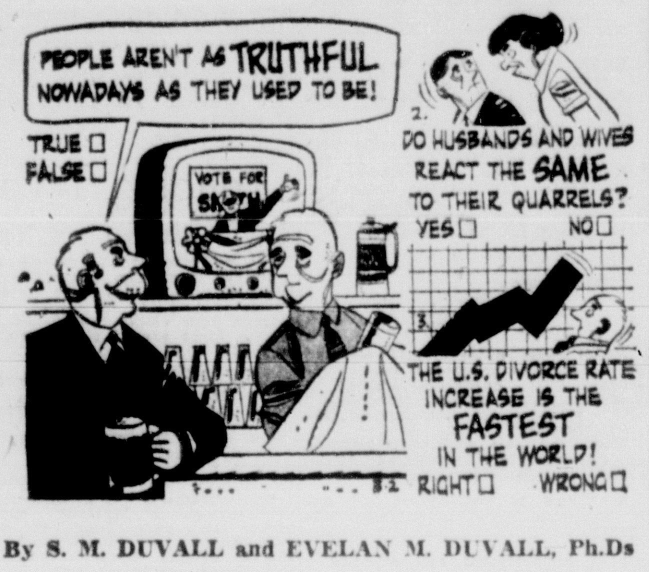
EXPLORE YOUR MIND

How Truthful?



PEOPLE AREN'T AS TRUTHFUL NOWADAYS AS THEY USED TO BE!
TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐
VOTE FOR SMITH
2. DO HUSBANDS AND WIVES REACT THE SAME TO THEIR QUARRELS?
YES ☐ NO ☐
3. THE U.S. DIVORCE RATE INCREASE IS THE FASTEST IN THE WORLD!
RIGHT ☐ WRONG ☐

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

FALSE. IN SOME matters this may be so, but in many important areas of life, we are far more truthful than our ancestors were. We are more truthful about sex, for example. We don't idealize the past the way our "Fourth of July" orators used to. We are far more truthful about the difficulties and complexities of marriage. We are more honest in our appraisals of human nature. By no means all, but most of the gains have been on the side of truth.

2. No. A wife is apt to take the attitude, "Don't come near me until you apologize for what you said and make things right between us." The husband is much more likely to feel, "If she'll just let me love her a little, we'll both feel more like settling our differences." Patching up a quarrel involves sensing how the other person feels about it more than getting your own way about the issue.

3. Wrong. Our rate is high, but between 1920 and 1947 our increase was less than one-tenth the increase of Canada, a thirteenth that of England, a fourth that of Denmark and a third that of Holland. Interestingly enough, Japan's rate, once was higher than ours, declined. Apparently the rise in divorce hit this country earlier than it did other countries, but perhaps not any harder. What's the condition of your own marriage?

Reading Time
1 Minute 45 Seconds

TWO minutes spent reading this ad can spell the difference between success and failure in your choice of a selling career. If you're making your choice wisely the following facts are of prime interest to you:

1. Popularity of product
2. Turnover of sales department
3. Actual earning of present salesmen
4. Reputation for company
   a. For fair dealing
   b. For sales leadership

IN THESE days of phony deals, wild promises and half-baked propositions, a salesman should choose with care. Your first concern should be whether or not you're getting facts or fiction. Only facts are worth any interest on your part.

WE'LL start with fact No. 1: The English Ford is outselling it's competitive makes by more than 4 to 1 in Dade County. Last month we sold more English Fords than any dealer in the United States. Fact No. 2: We have less turnover of salesmen than any similar sales organization. Fact No. 3: In January our low man made $360.99, our top man made $922.08. The average was $542.49. Fact No. 4: Our reputation for fair dealing and sales leadership is known by everyone in Dade County both in and out of the automobile business.

THESE men earned the above on a 6 day week basis with no canvassing or outside solicitation. Our advertising campaign and previous owners provide all the prospects a salesman can handle. Our cars also enjoy the most favorable bank financing in the industry.

IF SELECTED you will drive a new English Ford Demonstrator and receive prizes and bonuses plus a paid vacation.

NATURALLY — we do not hire any Tom, Dick or Harry for the above job. In order to qualify you must have a successful selling record in big ticket items. (Automobile experience not necessary). We prefer married men with plenty of kids who own their own homes and have a record of leadership in their field. Please allow 1 hour for application and interview anytime after 9:00 A.M.

Boston Fire Strands 380 on Train

BOSTON — (UPI) — Some 380 passengers were stranded in a four-car train on an elevated trestle early Sunday by a block-long, five-alarm fire when power was shut off.

The train was halted between stations within one block of the fire, which sent tongues of flames and clouds of smoke high into the air from buildings adjacent to the elevated track.

The fire disrupted service on the Metropolitan Transit Authority's main line between Everett and the Forest Hills section of Boston. Trains were operated only between Everett and downtown Boston. Shuttle bus service was set up to bypass the fire at 2140 to 2168 Washington St. in the Roxbury section.

A dozen firemen, including a district chief and his associate, were felled by smoke.

The fire, which caused an estimated $250,000 loss, destroyed the interiors of multiple-story brick buildings in a densely populated area.

The weather was clear but temperatures were near the freezing point. Stocks of wallpaper fed the flames, which also swept a supermarket, one of several occupants of the cluster of four commercial structures.

MTA guards led all but a handful of the stranded passengers back along a narrow catwalk between the elevated tracks to Northampton Station, the last stop the train had made before it was halted. The fire cut off escape to the next station.

Some 20 persons elected to remain aboard the stalled train until power was restored and it proceeded to the terminal.
Cause of the fire was notde-

BELL

JOHN PEOPLES is a retired Coast Guardsman. When he and Mrs. Peoples think the radio next door is too loud, or are disturbed by noisy parties, they move.

It's easy. They just pull up the anchor of their 42-foot sailing ship and go off to elsewhere: Bimini, St. Thomas, Sarasota, Mobile. It's their home: no grass to mow, shrubs to be eaten by parasites, property taxes 'n such.

They figure the ship cost them about $16,000. They pay about $500 a year for dock rental, which includes an electric plug-in. At sea they generate the light energy, cook with gas.

"Our friends say we're crazy — too old," Peoples says. "But we love it, so why give it up. We bought an apartment house in Coconut Grove. Right away we got tabbed for a $500 street repair bill. We sold out right then. Miami's home. We spend four or five months a year there."

Cancer Feud

W. L. Philbrick has brought Cancer Institute at Miami into a boiling mess, with several charges hurled at Dr. J. Ernest Ayre, director of the Institute. One was that Dr. Ayre accepted cytology slides submitted by osteopathic physicians. Following his blasts, acceptance of those slides was stopped.

Says Dr. Robert P. Keiser, president of Dade County Medical Association, writing in The Bulletin, DCMA monthly: "It is the firm conviction of your president that our association's present attitude is untenable no matter how you embelish or rationalize it. We are recommending that a certain group of patients . . . be deprived of having cytological diagnostic studies performed at a medical institution supported by public donations and a community welfare fund.

"The executive committee of DCMA submitted its recommendations . . . It in no way condones the practice (osteopathy) nor does it advocate consorting, consulting or communicating with others of the healing arts than medical doctors. It merely gives every individual the opportunity to use the Institute for cancer cytology diagnosis."

Dr. Keiser was approving a resolution of the executive committee, which with but one dissenting note approved a resolution which said: "It is our opinion that in the best interests of the general public, the Cancer Institute should not show prejudice against any segment of our patient community by depriving them of an available source to obtain such examinations."

Today's Youth

In the year 5 B.C. Socrates wrote: "Our young people have been corrupted by luxury. Their manners are bad. They are contemptuous of authority. They no longer rise when their elders enter the room. They chatter in the presence of guests, wolf their food, tyranize their teachers."

The old boy sounds like these modern fathers and mothers who view with alarm. I'm in constant turmoil with those who say sadly, "They don't teach our children the way we were taught." I say the same, but gladly. Our children get far better instruction, learn much more and have a much more varied curriculum.

Nor can I agree that children of today are all brats. Our house is full of darned nice children, friends of our girls.

One day a critic hurled one last question at me: "Do your children obey you?"

"They certainly do," I replied indignantly, "Any time they want to."

That stopped her.

Vizcaya Paint Party Is (Almost) Rained Out

Just a Drown-to-Earth Day for Art!

Painters Needed Pitter-Patter Protection
. . . Mrs. Allee Gerard (seated) and Mrs. Eada Blacker braved Vizcaya washout

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

An all-day rain washed most of the color out of Vizcaya's "Artists' Day" painting spree Sunday but some 400 nature-and-art lovers sloshed their way through Dade's prettiest park just the same.

Depressed Miami Art Leaguers turned their eyes skyward through drizzle and downpour and decided to reschedule the arty affair for next Sunday.

The big paint party—which also marked the first day of Vizcaya's 25-cent (instead of $1.75) grounds fee — was to have attracted thousands of visitors and nearly 500 working artists.

But as the gray day dripped away, only ninety-odd painters and sketchers took advantage of their free invitations — and most of them gave up in disgust.

"I never got past the sketching stage," said Mrs. Carol Close of 1893 NW 82nd St. as she tossed her rain-spattered paint box into her car after a long trudge back to Vizcaya's old parking lot.

The parking lot problem also dampened painters' spirits: A new lot, planned to eliminate the long walk through the elements, was still not completed.

"We're giving everybody a rain check to come back next Sunday and we're postponing the Clothes Line Exhibition until March 15," said Mrs. Miriam Jones, artist-in-charge.

Not all the painters minded the pitter-patter on their palettes. In fact, the rain seemed to bring out a special brand of foul-weather artists.

"I've discovered a completely waterproof system," beamed Mrs. Dorothie Kutella of 2400 SW 60th St., from under her blue and yellow umbrella-hat.

"I use prima-color pencils on oil board and it can get soaked wet without running at all — then after it dries I go over it in oil," she added as a concerned companion yanked her out of the rain.

Under Vizcaya's many coral arches, less-hearty younger artists set up their easels in comparative dryness.

But Mrs. Allee Gerard, a professional landscape painter from Warsaw, Ind., and Miami, chose to sit right out in the open, protecting her sketch pad with a shaggy straw hat.

"I often stand out in the snow in ski paints — you get kind of tough being a landscape painter," she said just as a friend, Mrs. Eada Blacker of Hallandale, offered a sheltering umbrella.

One young artist even welcomed the rain. "Rain drawing is a technique," said 14-year-old John Hancock of 4160 Ingraham Highway as he worked his pastel crayon over a sketch of Vizcaya Palace.

"You see how the rain sort of makes it like an impression — kind of blurry?" he sniffled as he stood in the light drizzle.

A moment later, the black clouds let loose a new downpour, washing away almost all of John's blurry impression.

Hoffa Grabs the Reins To Launch City Union

Shapiro Throws Weight to Drive

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Tough Jimmy Hoffa personally took charge at a bar room rally Sunday afternoon to begin a drive to organize Dade's 25,000 city employes.

As 62 camera-shy city employes applauded, Hoffa promised he would fly back to Miami in six weeks for a giant mass meeting.

On the spot the Teamsters signed up a score of members, deputized them stewards, and told them to start passing out union literature this week.

The union will use Shapiro's Lincoln Road law offices as organization headquarters.

Shapiro said he saw no conflict of interests by having a councilman representing the union which wants to take over Dade. A few public officials disagreed Sunday night.

Sunday night, Beach Councilman Mel Richard, a long and vocal foe of racketeering; said:

"I feel like the governor. We don't want Hoffa here. The Teamsters have made no major contributions to the people."

Richard also questioned Shapiro's position. "It is very peculiar. He has to decide his own ethics. I personally wouldn't accept such a position.

Attorney General Richard Ervin said he thought Shapiro may be acting against city interests. Any element of conflict would be improper, he said.

Shapiro said, "I am doing nothing illegal or unethical." He said he had not taken a cent from the Teamsters yet and his fee would be decided later.

Shapiro said he definitely thinks it would be a good thing for Dade's 25,000 employes to belong to the Teamsters. He is running for reelection next June.

Beach Mayor Kenneth Oka said, "I am definitely opposed to the Teamsters." Shapiro, he said, may be facing some personal problems.

"His is an ethical, not legal, problem," Oka said. "No one can serve two masters at the same time."

The rally was in the Irish House Bar at 1432 Alton Rd., Miami Beach — with a few drinks on the house.

When Hoffa spotted a photographer he said, "no photographs of this group! These men may be subjected to severe disciplinary reprisals."

Clenching his fist and talking in a loud voice, Hoffa said he was astonished to learn some city employes work 54 hours a week, that some employes were paid less than a dollar an hour.

Hoffa wants a flat $500 a year increase for all county and municipal workers. That would amount to a $12,500,000 budget (and tax) increase.

Shouted Henry Feinstein, president of the Public Employes Local 237 of New York: "We will march to the County Commission 25,000 strong. And we will all shout together, "We want more money! And they'll hear us!"

Feinstein warned that the cities in Dade will try to put "spies in our midst." He said the union will soon ask the cities to make regular payroll dues deductions for the Teamsters.

He said 12 cities were represented at the Sunday rally, including Miami, Miami Beach, Hialeah, Coral Gables and North Miami Beach.

'Beer Bottle' Gets Stabbed in Neck

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

HARRIS

Stabbed in the neck and throat, Willie (Beer Bottle) Harris staggered drunkenly into St. Francis Hospital at Miami Beach early Sunday.

He appeared near death during the night, but suddenly regained his strength when detectives found out who he was six hours later.

Harris is a long-time Beach punk who is in the habit of carving up faces of people he doesn't like with busted beer bottles.

"It looks like a gangster vendetta," said Miami Beach Detective Sgt. Al Biblo. "We don't know who did it. Willie won't talk."

The wounds, possibly made with an ice pick or stiletto, were from the back.

It was at 3:32 a.m. Sunday that Harris stumbled up to the emergency room desk of Nurse Josephine Healy.

"I've been robbed," he said. "I'm drunk—very drunk. Somebody brought me here in a car and dumped me."

He told doctors he was "George Henry Berger, Flatbush, Brooklyn."

When detectives B. G. Miller, Ronald Minervini and Walter Sternberg arrived to check out the hospital's assault report, Harris was swathed in bandages.

The detectives didn't know who he was, but they suspected something fishy.

He had no billfold. He wore no shirt, just trousers and an expensive blood-splattered suit coat. The label had been torn out.

Detectives found two safety deposit box keys and a key from the Carib Motel in Sunny Isles. No Berger was registered there.

Following up, Detective Sgts. Biblo and Bernard Weider checked the patient in Room 2G at 8:30 a.m.

"Berger" lay on the bed moaning, refusing to say anything because of "great pain." Much of his face was still bandaged.

"He looks like a fat Willie Harris," said Weider.

"Let's check ID for scars," suggested Biblo.

The identification bureau soon telephoned that Willie Harris had tattoos on his shoulders and a hernia scar.

The detectives called for a nurse and started an examination.

Willie, listed as critical during the night, suddenly felt better. He rolled away, clutching the blanket, fighting furiously.

The detectives found the scar. "Why, hello, Willie," said Biblo.

"Hello, sergeants," Willie replied calmly.

Late Sunday, Beach police had no idea where the stabbing occurred.

Harris was ordered off the Beach a year ago, is picked up there on sight, and usually spends his time in Miami and on motel row.

Any number of citizens — hoodlums and others — might have been glad to do him in, police said.

His record — includes charges of murder, robbery, burglary, assault and bookmaking — stretches over 30 years. Willie is 49.

But the acquittals, the nolle prosses, the no actions stretch almost as far.

Three times he has been identified as the man who sliced up people with beer bottles. But he beat all the raps.

This time Beach police charged him with giving false information to the police.

Never Mind Name, It's Same Airport

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

"You wanna go to Wilcox Field? Hop in, buddy, and I'll take you."

The cabby parked in front of Miami's new International Air Terminal had to ask another driver, "Where's Wilcox, pal?"

He was standing right in front of it while he talked.

For Miami International and Wilcox Field are one and the same.

And his confusion was no greater than hundreds of other Miamians and visitors who get tangled up in the dual-naming of Dade County's biggest air facility.

Known all over the world as "Miami International," the airport is on airline schedules under the same name.

But arriving passengers, glancing at the front of the terminal, often are confused by a pair of signs reading "Wilcox Field."

Returning to the airport for homeward bound planes they often ask cab and limousine drivers for "Wilcox."

Only the "old timers" in Miami (who were here before 1956) recognize the name Wilcox as belonging to the late J. Mark Wilcox, Florida representative in Congress and 11-year attorney for the Port Authority.

The County Commission, which also is the Port Authority, decided on the name "Wilcox Field" late in 1956, seven months after Wilcox's death.

The commission ordered a special room in the still-to-be-built International Terminal, and a special plaque for the room.

The next commission tossed out the Wilcox designation, and the room, but said it would let the plaque hang.

Late last fall, at the urging of Circuit Judge Ray Pearson, the commission reversed itself and agreed to designate the airport as "Wilcox Field."

2 Killed On Damp Streets

By EDDIE GONG
Herald Staff Writer

A 61-year-old cab driver, his taxi smashed by a skidding car, and a 78-year-old pedestrian were killed early Sunday in accidents on Miami's rain-wet streets.

HARLEY G. COLWELL, of 4361 SW 15th St., a driver for the Arrow Cab Co., was killed at the Miami end of the 79th St. Causeway. A passenger in the other car was seriously injured.

ALPHONSO SHERIDAN, of 812 SW Fourth Ave., was fatally injured after being struck by a car near the intersection of SW Eighth St. and Fourth Ave. —only a short distance from his home.

The two deaths pushed Dade County's traffic fatality toll this year to 39, compared to 32 by the same date last year.

Miami Accident Investigator M. E. Gracey said Colwell's cab was heading toward Miami on the last drawbridge of the causeway when it was struck by a car driven by Phyllis L. Kreutz, 33, of 160 SW 12th St. He said the woman's car, heading east, bounced off a curb on the bridge and slid some 150 feet into the cab.

Gracey said the Kreutz woman was charged with reckless driving and causing an accident. She was released on $1,000 bond.

Gracey said Sheridan was struck by a car driven by Mrs. Dorothy Kolar, of 4061 SW 102nd Ave. The woman, who who was not charged, told police the man was jaywalking, hesitated in the middle of the street, then stepped into the path of her car.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠AQ94 ♥A106 ♦5 ♣AJ1095
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
1♠	Pass	3♥	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five hearts. A mere raise to four hearts would not be adequate. Up to this point you have not indicated that you have a hand of over minimum values. The sequence, one club, one heart, one spade, may be made on a rock bottom minimum. When partner jumps you should do more than make a forced raise. With two hearts and two diamonds, four hearts would be the proper call. The recommended sequence describes a singleton in the fourth suit.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥AQJ4 ♦KQJ107 ♣5
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. The appropriate way to show the strength of this hand is not by a reverse bid of three hearts or a jump bid in diamonds, both of which shows a strong hand, but both of which might not allow for the possibility that your partner might have a spade suit.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠AQJ64 ♥K92 ♦AK4 ♣K5
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite partner's previous pass, the prospects for a slam are extremely bright. It is almost inconceivable that partner is aceless, but if you have any qualms you may try it out with Blackwood, or at least bid four diamonds to observe partner's reactions. For a mere bid of four spades, a glaring demerit is in order.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠J109742 ♥1083 ♦A4 ♣Q6
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. Your hand has assumed great proportions now that partner has made a take-out-double at the level of three. A bid of only three spades would indicate a forced response and would almost surely be passed by partner.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠KQJ5 ♥AQ ♦K10987 ♣94
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	1♥	2♣

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. This is perhaps a shade light for a reverse bid but we consider it proper procedure in order to guard against being shut out of the spade suit. Partner should realize that you opened with one diamond in anticipation of rebidding one spade over a possible heart response and developments have put you in position where you must make a slightly aggressive bid.

Q. 6—With 60 part score your partner opens one club. You hold:
♠K64 ♥KQJ105 ♦AK63 ♣7
What is your response?

A.—One heart. A jump shift is not recommended at this point. It is better to get in one free round of bidding which may permit a better basis for the decision on the next round. True enough, a jump shift would be forcing tho it completes the game. Nevertheless, with a partner of uncertain quality, the safer procedure is to bid one heart which even the most timid player will not pass.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠KJ653 ♥87 ♦K3 ♣KQ65
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What do you bid now?

A.—One spade. The jump shift is not indicated tho you passed an optional opening. If partner has some shaded third hand opening with nothing in spades, you do not wish to apply the pressure. If he has a sound hand he will bid again and then will come your try for game.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠95 ♥932 ♦AJ4 ♣AK976
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. This is not intended as an ace showing bid. Actually we are deliberately deceiving partner into believing we have a diamond suit so that he might contract for game in no trump if he holds the protection in hearts. Since we have the equivalent of an opening bid and partner has opened, there should be a game.

New Fear Descends On Arabs

By GEORGE WELLER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WELLER

NICOSIA — Israel's gathering in of Romanian Jews has confronted the troubled Arabs with the same strange East-West lineup "against Arab Palestine" as at Israel's birth 10 years ago.

Once again Communist bureaucrats, Israel statesmen and American Zionists are oddly harnessed together in a collective effort that alarms the Arab world. The Arabs see the chances of 1,000,000 Arab refugees' recovering their homes dwindling.

Above this immediate flood of Romanian Jews hangs another huge thundercloud of Russia's three million Jews. Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion has stated Israel's capacity to receive this exact number.

United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser has clutched at Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's promise not to let Ben-Gurion's people go. Nasser said Russia itself had called such Arab fears "fictitious and an imperialist intrigue."

So far Russia has used only water-drop torture on the Arabs, having released about 50,000 Polish and Soviet Jews in the Suez invasion year, 1956, when the Arabs hardly noticed.

Pill-Packing 'Bomber' Is Released

HOUSTON, Tex. — (UPI) — Authorities turned loose a pill-packing ex-convict who threatened to blow up Houston's main post-office if a clerk didn't hand over $1,000.

Clifford Bottomfield, 49, said the threat was part of a plan to get medical attention "one way or another" for his asthma and heart trouble.

He carried no bomb with him. All he had in his pockets were bottles of pills, cough drops, gargles and patent medicines.

Authorities declined to press charges after Bottomfield told them he had no intention of blowing up the post office.

Bottomfield said he has been in prison five times and thought he might get medical care if he was sent back.

U.S. Decides to Bolster Duvalier's Rule Over Haiti

By E. W. KENWORTHY
The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The U.S. has decided to try to shore up the Haitian government on the assumption that its overthrow might plunge Haiti into complete chaos.

In explaining and defending this decision, State Department officials said they were aware of shortcomings ascribed to the regime of Francois Duvalier. But they insisted that Duvalier had given more stability to the impoverished nation than had any of his numerous predecessors in recent years.

The government at Port-Au-Prince is threatened from within by bankruptcy and from without by a "revolutionary front" coalition based in Cuba.

So far the so-called revolutionary front apparently consists of little more than a headquarters staff of three disparate Haitian leaders who are united only by a common situation and a common ambition — they are out of power and want in. The three men are:

LOUIS DEJOIE, a light-skinned Negro, who is reported to be wealthy with interests in real estate, sugar mills and other manufacturing enterprises. In the presidential election of September, 1957, he was the candidate favored by shopkeepers, mulattoes and many women. He ran second in the three-man race but got only about one-third as many votes as Duvalier, who was elected then and took office the next month.

CLEMENT JUMELLE, finance minister under former President Paul Magliore, who resigned in December, 196. Jumelle, who was low man in the 1957 presidential elections, is reported to be in hiding within Haiti.

Tormenting Rectal Itch Stopped In Minutes

Science Finds New Healing Substance That Promptly Stops Itching and Pain of Piles

New York, N. Y. (Special) — One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "itching piles". It is most embarrassing for the victim during the day and especially aggravating at night.

No matter what you've used without results — here's good news. For the first time, science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to promptly stop the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids — without surgery. Medical science has proved this substance produces a remarkably effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. This improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' duration.

The secret is this new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*) — discovery of a world-famous research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as *Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Absolute satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. —Adv.

Men, Let the Air Out of Your Egos 'Cause the Gals Are Just as Smart

By Herald Wire Services

PEOPLE

DR. VAN CLEVE MORRIS, associate professor of education at Rutgers University, has some advise for men: If you have the notion you are smarter than the little woman, forget it.

The belief that men have more brains than women is nothing more than an "amusing male prejudice."

There are four mental traits in which men and women usually differ, Morris says:

1 — Men tend to be theoretical-minded while women are action-minded. For example, Morris says, men invent religions and women put religion to work in everyday life.

2 — Men are idea-oriented while women are person-to-person oriented. He compares the "male's lack of sophistication in human relations" to woman's intuition, which he defines as her superior ability to "tune in to the wave length of other human beings."

Exiled Makarios Returns in Triumph

ARCHBISHOP MAKARIOS, leader of Greek Cypriots in their fight for freedom, returned triumphantly to Cyprus from exile Sunday. He got a tremendous welcome from 150,000 Greek Cypriots. Church bells clanged in his honor as Makarios went from the airport to ceremonies at the archbishopric, from which he was exiled by Britain on March 9, 1956.

He Claws Air Hole From Icy Grave

JOE TOM COLE, a 34-year-old dairy worker, of Knoxville, Tenn., buried under an avalanche of snow-ice for more than an hour, escaped death by clawing a small air passage to the outside. Cole suffered only abrasions on the hand he used to dig the air hole. But his hands were turning purple and he was unable to speak when a rescuer dragged him from the mound of ice-snow.

Dairy officials said Cole was working alone in a small ice house when he was buried. The ice-snow, used to ice down milk, apparently was undermined when some was loaded on trucks earlier in the day.

Reds Tell Pakistan: Don't Sign

LONDON — (AP) — Russia warned Pakistan Sunday against signing a military agreement with the U.S.

Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said the conclusion of an agreement would "merely increase the danger of Pakistan's becoming involved in the military adventures of the Pentagon."

"Common sense," it added, "prompts that only a policy of friendship with one's neighbors, of helping to set up an atom-free zone of peace in the area of the Far East and the Pacific Ocean accords with the national interests of Pakistan."

It's a happy occasion, our first birthday... and the nine proud fathers shown here invite you to our party!

A year ago when I was born, these men said, "What a wonderful opportunity to raise this young sprout to a strong, civic-minded institution — a credit to itself and to the community!"

To this end, the nine Board Members (all of whom have been associated for years with Coral Gables community enterprise and service) agreed:

"Be it resolved that as University Federal grows and develops, we will at all times foster its interests in conjunction with those of the Coral Gables area."

Thus it is that when you see and hear University Federal advertising, during 1959 and the years to come, you will be learning about such scheduled community affairs as lectures... concerts... exhibits... and notable cultural activities of the University of Miami and other schools in Coral Gables. And, when tickets are required for these events, University Federal will have them on sale at its centrally located office.

Our birthday party will last for ten whole days — March 2 - 10 —and anytime you drop in during that period you'll enjoy coffee, cake, orange juice, and all the first-anniversary trimmings! We're looking forward to seeing you!

Lenten Prayer

O Lord, Keep Me Fit Within

By JIM BISHOP

Go With God

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, clergyman, editor, and author, is one of the best-known and most widely read (and quoted) members of the Protestant clergy in America. He is editor of The Christian Herald.

Dr. Poling is the father of the Rev. Clark Poling, one of the four chaplains — two Protestants, one Roman Catholic, one Jew — who gave their lifebelts to enlisted men aboard the transport Dorchester in February 1943, linked arms, and went down together.

I do not ask, O Lord,
A life all free from pain;
I do not seek to be,
In this vast world of need,
Without my load of care.
For this I know, the cross
Is my eternal gain,
And he who struggles on
At last shall enter in,
And be victorious there.
So, Lord, just keep me fit within,
And give me strength to fight,
And I will follow through the din,
From darkness up to light.
Amen.

War on Moles

HUSUM, Germany — (AP) — Frisian islanders plan war this spring against an invasion of moles whose tunnels threaten the dikes that guard the islands from the North Sea. In sporadic campaigning so far, gas has proved the most effective weapon.

HERNIATED DISCS?

"Herniated or slipped discs" are as popular today as sacro-iliac strains were 10 to 20 years ago. Anyone who has back pain, particularly with radiation down the back of the leg, immediately supposes that he has a slipped disc.

Dr. Lance

However, only about 5% of such cases can actually be laid to this cause. In fact there is considerable evidence to indicate that most so-called "herniated discs" are nothing more than displaced spinal vertebrae which irritate nerves.

"Recently the chiropractic profession made a survey of 1,000 diagnosed or symptomatic cases of herniated discs," stated Dr. A. M. Lance of the Dade County Chiropractic Society. "Of this number, 96.6% reported welcome relief under chiropractic care when the spinal displacements and nerve irritations were corrected."

If you have the symptoms of a herniated disc, it would be wise to consult a "back specialist" — your nearest member of the Dade County Chiropractic Society.

Siroil Laboratories, Inc.
Santa Monica, California

August 6, 1958

Gentlemen:

I want to tell you what Siroil has done for my 6-year-old daughter.

Two months ago she was completely covered with lesions and scales except for her hands, feet and a small portion of her face. Her arms were so scaled and sore she could not bend them without pain and bleeding. I was almost a nervous wreck from lack of sleep and worry over her condition. We knew she should start school in the fall and we didn't see how she could.

One morning my older daughter, who was working at a drugstore, said she had talked with a customer who had used Siroil and his Psoriasis was nearly gone. That evening I bought a bottle and I truly thank God for it. In a few days there was so much improvement I was really startled.

Now, two months later, the only signs left are a few small spots, and they are almost faded out of sight. But I will never be without a bottle of Siroil in case it should appear again.

Please print this letter so others suffering will know.

'Love at First Sight' Can Be Dangerous Spell

Donna is a modern love slave and might even have been sold into white slavery by her unscrupulous boy friend, for he was purely selfish and interested primarily in her pocket book. Beware when you fall in love at first sight. And learn how to break this dangerous spell.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

DONNA D., 23, is madly infatuated.

"Dr. Crane, I just feel as if I'd die if I didn't marry Joe," she began, tearfully, "although my parents and friends all say I am crazy even to think about such a thing.

"But the first moment I set eyes on him at a dance, my heart just started racing until I felt as if I'd choke with happiness.

"He didn't pay any attention to me that first night, but I kept going back to the dance hall where he spent a lot of his evenings.

"Finally, I got an introduction. We have been dating for three months and I have promised to marry him.

"It was love at first sight with me, and I feel unable to break off, even though I know he has some faults."

Well, I can feel sympathetic with Donna, for I fell in love at first sight with my wife.

It was at a church in Fort Wayne. She stood up to acknowledge an introduction during the election of officers of the Young People's Society of the Wayne Street Church.

And my heart did a flipflop! I actually felt that way.

So I can speak from personal experience about this sudden type of love which occurs literally at first sight, and can be very dangerous.

THERE ARE two methods by which we usually fall in love. One is the "earned" love affair which develops out of an original casual meeting.

In "earned" love, the couple don't originally feel smitten by love at all but start out as classmates or neighbors. They may even meet on a blind date.

After many months or even years of such pleasant evenings in each other's company, they develop mutual interests and have enjoyed so many parties, movies, concerts and picnics together that they finally wake up to the fact they are essential to each other.

Meanwhile, they have plenty of time to get acquainted and see if they harmonize in religious ideals, hobbies, etc.

But the other type of love starts out with a bang, and the parties thereto are helpless.

They don't even know if they are compatible in interests or religion or hobbies or ideals.

In fact, they are almost hypnotized as they instantly fall under the spell of the other person.

DONNA'S CHOICE was obviously bad. Joe was a twice divorced man, with no special job. He worked for a bookie gambler in Chicago.

He sponged money off his girl friends and Donna had already lent him over $500 which he had lost on the horses.

In fact, he wasn't even in love with Donna, but was using her as a convenient source of easy money.

But she was a slave to his slightest wish. Everybody else saw that she'd be unhappy, but in her starry eyed trance, she wouldn't believe her parents or even her closest friends.

If she married Joe, it was inevitable that she'd be miserable and he'd soon add her to his previous two divorced wives, for he would drop her the moment she quit furnishing him money.

But how can you shatter the "halo" and break the mystic spell which a suitor holds over you, if you are madly in love?

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Miami Herald, newspaper, enclosing a long four cent stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.

'Baptists Part of A Cause'

By ADON TAFT
Herald Religion Editor

A Stranger Goes to Church

Dr. R. B. Culbreth celebrated his first anniversary as the pastor of the Miami Springs Baptist Church, Westward and Pinecrest Drives, Sunday by explaining to the 600 new members who have joined under his ministry just what a Baptist is.

He began at the 8:15 a.m. service when the first group of 250 worshipers nearly filled the small auditorium slated for replacement immediately by a 750-seat one and within five years by a 1,500-seat sanctuary.

The pastor, a former football player, noted at first that Southern Baptists baptized a total of 400,000 persons in the past year and that more than 300 of them were baptized in Miami Springs.

These figures were part of an answer to the question, "who are Baptists?" Dr. Culbreth went on to explain that Baptists are: where — all over the world; when — traced historically to the year 1500, but with groups of similar beliefs found all the way back to New Testament times; why — "because they are in the plan of God."

His sermon then was an elaboration of: "What is a Baptist?"

"Does accepting Christ as Savior, being baptized by immersion, and joining the church make you a Baptist?" asked the youthful minister in the dark blue suit and red, polka-dot tie.

"No," he answered his question. "When you become a Baptist, you don't just join a church, you join a cause."

Dr. Culbreth said that there are seven beliefs generally held by Baptists — some of which are held in common with other Christians — which distinguish them as a group.

"We don't believe we're the only ones going to heaven," he pointed out. "With Christians found in most all other denominations we believe in the divine inspiration of the Scriptures, the Trinity, man's sinful nature, the sacrifice of Christ, the need for repentance, salvation by faith, and the future reward of the righteous and the punishment of the wicked."

Then the husky preacher with the sandy, wavy hair listed the distinctive beliefs of Baptists:

1 — The Bible was written by men divinely inspired. It is true, with no mixture of error. The New Testament is the sole authority for faith and practice.

2 — Jesus Christ is the founder and head of the church. There is no provision in the Bible for a church hierarchy and the only unity of the church comes from devotion to the same spiritual principles.

3 — Each individual can come directly unto God because every believer has been washed in Christ's blood and been made a priest as described in Revelation 1:5,6.

4 — Salvation is by faith in Christ alone without any human worth or work. Man does the surrendering of his soul and God does the saving. The blessing of salvation is available to all, but it is the duty of all to accept God's remedy for sin.

5 — A church is a congregation of baptized believers associated by a common spiritual experience, observing the ordinances of the church, and seeking to spread the Gospel to the world. The word "church" is used to mean the local congregation, or the institution of the church, or the spiritual figure of the bride of Christ. A person cannot love Christ and not love His church.

6 — Christ gave two ordinances — baptism and the Lord's supper — which are administered by the church as symbols and not sacraments. Baptism is a picture of the death, burial and resurrection indicating that the old man is dead to sin and the Christian is raised up a new person to lead a spiritual life.

7 — Complete separation of church and state and religious freedom for all. Baptists have never been a state church and never have taken orders from a state, having many martyrs who gave their life for the freedom of conscience.

Dr. Culbreth concluded by saying that there are four ways a Baptist church accepts members — through a profession of faith in Christ as Savior, by baptizing of a person who already is a Christian, by transferring the church letter of a person from one Baptist church to another, or through a statement of faith from a person who has been a Baptist but for one reason or another has no church letter.

Leading the congregational singing was Lee Stallings, the new minister of music of the church, making his first appearance at a service. The church also has added a minister of education — Winston Childress — under Dr. Culbreth's leadership, has purchased additional property, and has adopted a record budget of $156,000.

Interstate Electric Co. Equipped to Install Wiring for Any Building

The electric wiring of a home or business is not seen or thought of — until something goes wrong with it. Then it is easy to realize how important the wiring is because many activities cease.

"It is our job to repair any damage in your electric wiring at whatever time you call," says Vernon C. Holloway, president of Interstate Electric Co. "We have 20 trucks on call 24-hours a day to handle any emergency in the electrical field.

"We also have complete facilities for re-wiring of homes, businesses and commercial establishments. New building construction also is one of our specialties, as well as pole line construction, airfield construction and underground distribution systems throughout the State.

"Daily routine service calls to homes, businesses, offices and hotels are handled by our staff of experienced electricians. We are never too busy to assist you with any electrical problem."

Vernon C. Holloway
. . . describes services

Interstate Electric Co. has installed wiring in some of the larger industrial plants in South Florida including Superior Window Co., Sunray Chair Co. and Regaline Furniture Manufacturing. Co. Wiring for hotels and apartments, such as Beau Rivage Hotel, Saxony Hotel addition, Parkleigh House, Carlton Terrace Apartments, and Palm Beach Towers, is done with speed and efficiency by Interstate's experienced electricians.

In addition to these, and installations done for the U.S. Navy, Interstate Electric put in the counterpoise and runway lighting system at the new Miami International Airport at 20th St.

Holloway founded Interstate Electric 10 years ago. Under his leadership, the firm has grown so that, today, it is one of the foremost in the field.

Holloway is a leader in the electrical industry in the area also. He is president of the South Florida Chapter of the National Electrical Contractors Assn., chairman of the Electrical Contractors Examining Board for Dade County, member of the International Assn. of Electrical Inspectors, Electrical Inspector for the City of Opa-locka and a member of the State Electrical Masters Assn.

Also active in civic and fraternal work, Holloway is a member of Rotary International and Mahi Shrine.

Interstate Electric Co. is located at 6444 NE Fourth Ave. The number to call for emergency service or free estimates for re-wiring is PLaza 4-9594. Naturally, there is no obligation when an estimate is given.

Now Is Ideal Time to Learn to Drive Safely

One of the quickest ways to create family friction is for a husband to try to teach his wife how to drive. And many fine friendships have been brought to an abrupt end when one friend tries to teach the other the fine points of handling a car in traffic.

"Why not learn easily and safely and avoid all this trouble?" asks W. W. Gordon, owner of Easy Method Auto Driving School. "Our qualified, experienced driving instructors can help you earn your license as you become a safe driver."

Easy Method, the oldest and largest school of its type in South Florida, features a door to door pick up service at no extra charge. Student drivers are instructed in one of 15 late model, dual control cars. This was the first driving school in the area to use dual control cars.

"Each of our 15 instructors is licensed by the State," Gordon added. "This means that each one has taken the required 40-hour driver instruction course, has a good moral background and has a physical examination and chest X-ray at least once a year. These requirements are made by the State to guard your health and safety.

"Whether you have driven a car before or not, we are prepared to teach you the right way—the safe way—to drive. We help you earn your learner's license before you start and earn your operator's license in just a few lessons.

"And remember, you are not required to take any specified number of lessons. Since our rate is very economical, you pay as you learn. We have found that most people learn to drive in five to eight lessons.

"Many insurance companies give a reduced rate when teenage boys and girls learn to drive at a qualified driver training school.

"We have offices in Miami, Fort Lauderdale and North Miami. We can give door to door driver training for anyone from Delray Beach to Florida City."

The number to call for additional information in Miami is HIghland 8-2661; in North Miami, PLaza 4-5725; in Fort Lauderdale, JAckson 3-1745; and in South Dade, CEdar 5-3361. The main office in Miami is located at 2516 W. Flagler St., across from the Florida Highway Patrol office.

"Don't take a chance by having your friends or family try to teach you to drive," Gordon said. "Learn to be a safe driver the easy, simple way by calling Easy Method."

Hankering for a Mascot? You Can Make Your Own

By CAPPY DICK

It's fun to raid Mother's button box to see what you can make with the things you find.

Hobby Club

A brother and sister who are friends of mine found some assorted buttons and beads. They had some fine spool wire, so they set about seeing what they could make.

To make the sailor, gather beads and buttons of assorted shapes as in Figure 1. Choose a fairly large, oval bead for the head, a larger oval bead for the body, flat buttons for the shoes, two small, round beads for the hands and another for the neck.

You will also need some small oval or round beads for the arms and legs. Choose a button of appropriate shape for the hat.

You will need a piece of fine spool wire about a foot long. Bend it in the exact middle. Put end through one hole in the hat button and the other end through the second hole (see Figure 2). Then put both ends through the head bead and the neck bead. Pull apart the two strands of wire so the hat, head and neck are held firmly together.

Use one strand of the wire to make one arm. String four or five round or oval beads of one color, then add the hand bead. Run the wire back around the outside of the hand bead instead of going through it a second time (see Figure 2 again), and string the wire back through the arm beads.

Use the second strand of wire to make the second arm the same way. Then run both ends through the body bead and again divide the strands to make the legs. These are formed the same as the arms.

The dog mascot is made by the same process.

Where You, Grandma?

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — He was walking in his sleep, Clyde said. And he was dreaming. Dreaming that the house he was entering was his grandma's, and a meal of fried chicken and cookies awaited him.

It naturally came as a great surprise, Clyde said, when a woman's scream awakened him and a policeman arrested him on suspicion of burglary.

A judge listened and then sentenced Clyde McCall, 21, to 100 days in jail on a charge of trespassing.

Symington Speaks

Our Defenses Are Obsolete, Says Senator

How effective against Soviet attack are the Nike missile bases that surround many American cities? Is the Strategic Air Command still the "great deterrent" it was considered only a year ago? In this second of a series on the great defense debate now under way, a leading congressional defense authority provides some eye-opening opinions on these vital questions.

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

Sen. Stuart Symington, the Missouri Democrat who served President Truman as secretary for air, charges that the Eisenhower administration is not telling the public the truth about our military weaknesses.

CONSIDINE

"When Charlie Wilson was secretary of defense he assured America that we were ahead of the Russians in rocket development, though he knew from intelligence reports that radar installations in Turkey had picked up hundreds of Russian missiles being tested," Symington told this reporter.

"Vice President Nixon told a handpicked group of Washington correspondents not long ago that we're 'closing the gap.' We're doing no such thing. Mr. McElroy (the defense secretary), speaking for the Defense Department and the administration, now tells us that the Russians will soon have a 3-to-1 edge on us in ICBMs. The administration's own people can't get together on their stories."

Symington, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1960, feels that the Eisenhower administration has consistently underestimated Soviet technology.

"Its position seems to be that Russia isn't worth a damn as a military power, so we can afford to yield quantitative superiority because we've got the qualitative edge. All I know is that they're out-producing us in big missiles, have hundreds more submarines than we have, and that the Russian Academy of Sciences was flourishing 50 years before the Declaration of Independence."

He Doubts SAC's Stature

Symington was instrumental in the formation of the Strategic Air Command in 1946. Now he has his doubts about its stature as a deterrent.

"Any effort by SAC today to move against Russia in retaliation would be a kind of reverse of Pearl Harbor. Russia would be the most alerted country in history. They've unquestionably got all types of anti-aircraft guided-and homing-missiles. They've got thousands of supersonic fighters. SAC has only one type of supersonic bomber, the B58, and darn few of them.

"In time, the B58 will stage out the B47 as our medium bomber. But that will take a long time. B47s make up 75 per cent of SAC's strength, which means that we're depending on a retaliatory air arm that is 75 per cent obsolescent.

"Naval air couldn't help us. The carrier is not a retaliatory weapon. That would leave retaliation up to our ICBMs and the 1,500-mile-range missiles, the Thor and the Jupiter, that we're trying to get our NATO allies to install. So far, only England has accepted any."

The senator is particularly vexed about the American ICBMs.

"Mr. McElroy's position seems to be that we can safely permit the Russians to take a 3-1 lead in intercontinental missiles because we've got an Air Force that is 75 per cent obsolescent and we've got the Polaris — which actually we haven't got. I don't get it.

"First he promised that we'd have our first ICBM squadron — that's 10 missiles — in place at Camp Cook, Calif., by July 1 of this year. Then he said, in effect, 'oops, I mean January 1, 1960.'

"We could more than double our production of Atlas ICBMs with the same floor space now in being. All that would be needed is more tooling. It would be something for the Russians to think about. But the word has gone out to cut, and it's imperiling the security of the nation.

"The administration is asking Congress for 200 million dollars less than last year, and wants to spend 600 million less on missiles. That reminds me of something Bernie Baruch likes to say: 'What's the use of being the richest man in the graveyard?'

"The Air Force must try to replace more than 1,000 B47s with less than 100 B58s. There's a critical shortage of KC135 jet tankers. Congress pressed 1.3 billion dollars in additional funds on the Defense Department last year, after hearing a lot of dire testimony. But defense used only 34 per cent of the money. An additional eight per cent was used for different reasons than what we had intended it to be used for."

Symington agrees with the Rockefeller brothers report which urged that a total of 18 billion dollars additional must be spent in the Defense Department over the next three years — three billion in 1960, six billion in 1961 and nine billion in 1962.

"That wouldn't be any hardship on the country," he insisted to us. "We've figured out that the security of the U.S. cost each American 60 cents a day. Add just a

Space Rocket Hunted

Still No Trace Of Discoverer

They checked reports from widely scattered tracking stations in an attempt to find out if it attained orbit.

Launching of the 78-foot rocket went off without apparent hitch. But tracking stations have failed to pick up signals expected if the Discoverer passed over in polar orbit about the earth.

An Air Force spokesman said the rocket "reached the right point at the right speed where it should have entered orbit."

What might have been the final contact with the Discoverer was picked up Saturday night by a Navy ship 900 miles south of the launching site on the rocket's prescribed route. The signals were faint.

In Washington, Rear Adm. John E. Clark, deputy director of the Advanced Research Project Agency, said this could indicate trouble with the Discoverer's broadcasting equipment.

If the Discoverer failed to enter its prescribed orbit, it could have gone into an off-course orbit or fallen back into the earth's atmosphere and burned up.

The Discoverer — weighing 1,300 pounds and 19 feet long and 5 feet wide — carried 40 pounds of instruments to send back space information. This was the first attempt to put a satellite into North-South Polar orbit. Satellites launched previously from Cape Canaveral, Fla., have orbited close to the equator.

Discoverer was the first of a series of shots from Vandenberg intended to learn means of safely sending man into space.

Sun Shot Poised at Canaveral

CAPE CANAVERAL —(AP)— A breakup in the cold front over Central Florida cleared the way Sunday for the Army's effort to blast a satellite past the moon and into orbit around the sun.

"It looks good," an Army missile man commented when the heavy soup which had enveloped the Cape for several days began clearing away gradually.

Lights flashed around the tall tower housing the moon rocket as the firing crew worked over it, making sure that it would be mechanically ready when the go ahead came from the weather man.

The time is right for the shoot and it could come at any time.

Saturday — the first day of a six-day period in which the moon floats in closest proximity to the earth, 221,000 miles away — passed without any attempt to get the lunar probe rocket away.

The missile test center was entirely hidden by dense, low-hanging overcast and at intervals the Cape was drenched by cold heavy rain.

Lima Conference On Health Opens

LIMA, Peru —(AP)— The third Inter-American Technical Conference on Public Health was formally opened here Sunday.

Public health officials from all American countries except Cuba, Mexico and Argentina, as well as representatives from Ethiopia, Liberia and Libya, are attending the conference which will last a week.

Mobilization Urged

Concern Mounting Over Berlin Crisis

Senators Ask Ike For Action

'Spur of Moment' Move Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional concern mounted Sunday over the possibility Russia may go to war over Berlin.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) voiced fear Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev might "do something on the spur of the moment" that would ignite a conflict.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.) urged President Eisenhower to call up four or five additional divisions as a "diplomatic signal to the Soviets that we mean business" in the Berlin crisis.

Jackson said the President had the authority to call up additional troops and the mobilization now of four or five Army or National Guard divisions might prevent a "national catastrophe."

Mansfield, assistant majority leader of the Senate, said Khrushchev would not start a war deliberately although he said it is "always possible" he might risk one.

Interviewed on a recorded radio program (Reporters' Roundup) Mansfield said "I think he (Khrushchev) cannot be trusted not to do something on the spur of the moment" that would start a shooting war.

Jackson advanced his proposal as Chairman Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the U.S. would be finished as "the other great power in the world" if the West abandoned Berlin.

The outpouring of statements underscored an increasingly obvious fact — that senators of both parties regarded Russia's plan to give East Germany control over access routes to Berlin on May 27 as one of the gravest threats to peace since World War II.

Meanwhile, Communist East Germany Sunday celebrated the third anniversary of its 100,000-man army with military parades and simultaneously began spadework designed to force the issue of Berlin.

Preparations for Khrushchev's visit this week to the Leipzig Spring Fair began in East Berlin Saturday night when Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Pervukhin began talks on a separate East German peace treaty.

Foreign Aid Waste Uncovered

Congressmen Record Abuses

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A congressional committee has found new evidence of stealing and waste in the foreign military assistance program.

The committee found one motor pool in a friendly foreign nation where enough tires were supplied by the U.S. to make 44 tires available in one year for every truck in the pool.

The committee also found evidence that foreign military brass diverted aircraft materiel supplied by the U.S. to manufacture planes for their own personal use.

The committee also learned of apartment houses erected in foreign lands with material and equipment supplied by the U.S. for military construction.

"The scarcity of consumer goods and the low pay scales of military and civil service personnel (in foreign nations) provided an incentive for stealing of U.S. military supplies," said a report of a House foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D., Pa.).

These broad hints of larceny and waste are all the taxpayers of the U.S. can get at this time, because of the usual blanket of official secrecy that has been thrown over the military assistance program by the Pentagon and the Department of State.

Rep. Morgan's subcommittee has held hearings and made a record of the skulduggery aboard, but the Defense and State Departments have bottled up the details, for two reasons.

"First," the committee report states, "many of the events described reflect unfavorably on officials or policies of allied nations.

"Second, publication of full details would provide the Communists with material which would be used to create dissension among our allies."

The subcommittee wistfully admits that if it called a thief a thief, it might create "internal dissension in allied nations," or even bring about a "refusal to cooperate," which would make it more difficult for the U.S. to help defend our client nations.

While unwilling itself to get down to cases and identify thieves among the recipients of military aid, the subcommittee says plaintively:

"It appears that the U.S. has been slow in taking action to prevent pilferage and diversion and that a sufficiently high priority has not yet been given to getting the situation under control."

'A Little Walk' Lasts 43 Years

NORTON, England —(UPI) — Forty-three years ago, Laurent Barnes told his wife he was going for a little walk. He returned Sunday.

"You are just as I pictured you, dear," the 75-year-old Barnes told his 76-year-old wife, Emily. He had been living in Bristol since 1915.

"I have longed for this moment," Mrs. Barnes said. "It has eased a pain in my heart."

This Is the American Liner Constitution

. . . all renovated for a new season, it crashed in fog

Luxury Liner Constitution Rips Bow Off Tanker in Fog

NEW YORK —(UPI)— The American luxury liner Constitution, carrying only a skeleton crew of 110, sheared the bow off a tanker in a dense Atlantic fog 22 miles from the foot of Broadway Sunday. Officials immediately sought to determine whether the ships' radarscopes were working when the collision occurred.

There were no reports of deaths or injuries in the collision, which might have inflicted casualties had the 25-million-dollar, 23,719-ton Constitution been carrying her capacity of 1,100 passengers.

The accident happened at about 10:40 a.m. about five miles off Ambrose Lightship, the famous shipping beacon at the mouth of New York harbor.

Both the Constitution and the 539-foot-long Norwegian tanker Jalanta remained afloat after the crash, but a 120-foot section of the tanker's bow was set adrift and menaced other navigation in the area until a tugboat took it in tow.

The Constitution was unable to drop anchor because of damage to her bow. She circled the tanker, carrying a crew of 40, while a small fleet of tugboats and Coast Guard vessels nosed gently through the fog to shepherd both damaged vessels to a Brooklyn repair yard.

The American Export Line's Constitution was groping through the pea soup fog toward New York, after undergoing multi-million-dollar alterations at Newport News, Va., in preparation for a bumper spring and summer trans-Atlantic tour season.

The 12,228-ton Jalanta was headed south from New York for Venezuela to pick up a cargo of oil.

Both vessels were radar equipped. The Jalanta was built in Kiel, Germany, in 1952. The Constitution was constructed at the Bethlehem shipbuilding yards at Quincy, Mass., incorporating all the latest safety devices. She made her maiden voyage in June, 1951.

The radar issue was raised also in the 1956 collision of the liners Stockholm and Andrea Doria, which sank the Andrea Doria with a loss of 55 lives.

First word of Sunday's accident came when the Constitution radioed at 10:53 a.m.: "We have collieded with a tanker five miles southeast of Ambrose Light vessel. Request Coast Guard assistance immediately. We are in dense fog."

Surprised at Reaction

'Just Electioneering,' Says Nikita of Blast

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev has advised a foreign ambassador here it was a real toothache, and not diplomatic illness, that kept him from flying with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to Kiev last Wednesday.

The ambassador, who asked not to be identified by name, said in an interview Sunday he had asked Khrushchev point blank whether it was a diplomatic illness in view of reported coolness between the two government chiefs. He quoted Khrushchev as replying:

"No, Mr. Macmillan and I were joking about my ailing tooth before he left for Kiev. I told him premiers must have good teeth and Mr. Macmillan answered: 'I think sometimes your teeth are a little too sharp for us.'"

Khrushchev was pictured as surprised at the world reaction to his tough speech at the Kremlin last Tuesday. He had rapped the West on Berlin and other issues in addressing committees of his district in preparation for an election. A new parliament for the Russian federation, the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, will be chosen.

"It was only an electioneering speech," the envoy quoted the premier as saying. "I doubt it has been suggested that I should not have made the speech until Mr. Macmillan left.

"But the election was to be Sunday, before he left, and I owed it to my voters to explain what is happening.

"That is all I did."

The ambassador said Khrushchev also told him he still is not pessimistic about his talks with Macmillan and he insists there must be a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the Western occupation of West Berlin. He is for a peaceful settlement of the German question.

Talks resume today after Macmillan returns from Leningrad.

A lavish Kremlin reception for the British delegation and a TV appearance by Macmillan are on schedule later today.

Australian Critics Fail to Cut Attendance at Graham Services

Billy's Column, 12A

MELBOURNE, Australia — (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham attracted another huge crowds Sunday despite criticism in some Anglican church circles and a "Billy Go Home" headline in a small news magazine.

More than 52,000 persons crowded into Sidney Myer Music Bowl Sunday to hear Graham's sermon about the danger of the world being destroyed by atomic war.

GRAHAM

The North Carolina Baptist minister has preached to record crowds every day since his five-month Australian Crusade for Christ began here Feb. 15.

Crusade officials reported that more than 10,000 persons have made "Decisions for Christ" at the Melbourne meetings.

Despite these successes, however, there have been some rumblings of disapproval.

"News Day," a new weekly magazine with a small circulation published in the Sydney suburb of Ashfield, carried in its first issue a Graham story headlined "Billy Go Home."

"Billy Graham, the self-appointed heavenly huckster, should pack his carpetbag and go straight back home," News Day said. "Australia has got on pretty well so far without Graham's particular brand of religious emotionalism and his specialized method of selling religion.

"Thoughful Australians will be horrified by the near blasphemy of his attitude. The voice of God doesn't come bellowing from a loudspeaker."

The magazine said Graham was obviously sincere but his methods were out of place in Australia. Officials of the Graham crusade "team" Sunday dismissed the article as "unworthy of comment."

Another criticism came from the Anglican archbishop of Coulburn and Canberra, Dr. E. H. Burgmann. In his Diocesan magazine, The Southern Churchman, Dr. Burgmann wrote:

"I cannot go along with a modern 'Fundamentalist' crusade such as is now being conducted by Billy Graham. Great crowds do not provide the the atmosphere for serious decisions involving the truths vital for meeting the strain of daily living."

Severed Cable Is Back in Use

MONTREAL —(UPI)— Full service was restored Sunday on the transatlantic telephone cable that was severed mysteriously Feb. 21, resulting in the boarding of a Russian trawler by the U.S. Navy.

It took crews working around the clock just under eight days to complete the splicing of the cable about 190 miles east of Clarenville, Newfoundland. Four Western Union telegraph cables were still to be repaired.

2 California Hunts Drudge On For Kidnaped Baby, Missing Boy

Ex-Mental Patient Charged

By Herald Wire Services

LOS ANGELES — Two apparent kidnapings were under investigation in this area Sunday.

The FBI entered the probe of the disappearance of an eight-week-old twin boy from his home in Ontario, Calif.

In Venice, Detective Frank R. Brenna said police filed the charge against William Harris Elwell, 28, a 245-pound beach dweller. The missing boy is Wayne Murry.

WAYNE

Police said Wayne's six-year-old brother, Richard, told them:

The brothers met Elwell while playing on the beach Saturday and went to his house when he offered to give them chocolate milk. The younger boy became frightened and ran.

Richard went home and told his father, Wayne Murry Sr. They went to Elwell's house but found no one.

Police said Elwell was judged insane in 1955 after being involved in a shooting. He was treated at mental institutions and released.

In Ontario, police said Eric Leon Flores apparently was taken from his home by a babysitter.

Mrs. Ruth Flores discovered the baby missing when she returned home Friday night after being out with friends.

She told police that a woman known to her only as Ann Williams had volunteered to stay with her seven children during the evening.

Police said they have not been able to learn anything about the background of the babysitter. They said Mrs. Flores did not consider the offer to stay with the children unusual because many people have offered to help her since her husband was killed in an explosion last year.

Women Hold Future: Pope

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — Pope John XXIII said in a speech Sunday "the serenity of a family, the healthy upbringing of children, the future of the (Roman Catholic) Church and of the country rests in the hands of women."

He spoke to 3,000 members of the Italian Catholic Women's Association at a general audience in the Vatican's Hall of Benediction.

He said women should be the "watchful guardians of that very precious gift which is the family and which — we say it with tears in our heart — is threatened by so many dangers."

Cab Driver, Pedestrian Are Killed

A 61-year-old cab driver skidded on wet streets to his death in a collision with another car at the Miami end of the 79th St. Causeway early Sunday.

In a second fatal accident, a 78-year-old pedestrian was killed when he was struck by a car on the Tamiami Trail.

The two deaths pushed Dade County's traffic fatality toll this year to 39, compared to 32 on the same date last year.

Killed in the causeway accident was Harley G. Colwell, of 4361 SW 15th St., a driver for the Arrow Cab Co.

Witnesses said Colwell's cab spun around several times on the wet road and collided with a car coming off the causeway from the other direction.

The accident occurred about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, just after rain had wet down Miami's streets.

The second victim was identified as Alphonso Sheridan, 78, of 812 SW Fourth Ave. The accident occurred about 1 a.m. at SW Eighth St. and Fourth Ave.

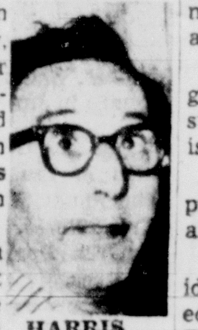
He's In Beach Hospital

Hood Willie Harris Stabbed From Behind

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Stabbed in the neck and throat, Willie (Beer Bottle) Harris staggered drunkenly into St. Francis Hospital at Miami Beach early Sunday, appeared near death, then suddenly regained his strength when detectives identified him six hours later.



HARRIS

Harris is a stick-up artist who has the habit of carving up faces of people he doesn't like with broken beer bottles.

"It looks like a gangster vendetta," said Miami Beach Detective Sgt. Al Biblo. "We don't know who did it. Willie won't talk."

The wounds, possibly made with an ice pick or stiletto, were from the back.

It was at 3:32 a.m. Sunday that Harris stumbled up to the emergency room desk of Nurse Josephine Healy.

"I've been robbed," he said. "I'm drunk—very drunk. Somebody brought me here in a car and dumped me."

He told doctors he was "George Henry Berger, Brooklyn."

When detectives B. G. Miller, Ronald Minervini and Walter Sternberg arrived to check out the hospital's assault report, Harris was swathed in bandages.

They didn't know who he was at first but identification was established through scars.

Harris clammed up. He told them nothing.

Beach police figured the stabbing probably occurred elsewhere. He was ordered off the Beach a year ago, is picked up on sight there, and has been spending most of his time along motel row and in Miami.

The number of citizens — hoodlums and otherwise—who might be tired of seeing Harris are legion.

His record of robbery, burglary, assault and bookmaking stretches over 30 years. Willie is 49.

But the acquittals, the nolle prosses, the no actions stretch almost as far.

Three times he has been identified as the man who sliced up people with beer bottles. But he beat all the raps.

This time Beach police charged him with giving false information to the police.

Tensions Mount on Germany

News Agency reported Pervukhin met with East German Premier Otto Grotewohl and Communist Party Chief Walter Ulbricht on "questions connected with Soviet proposals for conclusion of a German peace treaty and liquidation of the occupation regime in East Berlin." There were no further details.

In Leningrad, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan expressed belief his talks with Soviet leaders, though yielding no immediate results, "will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

"I say that these discussions must lie ahead because I firmly believe that the dangerous situation with which we may be faced cannot be resolved without negotiation," Macmillan declared.

The British leader spoke at a formal dinner given by Leningrad's Mayor N. I. Smirnov. He returns to Moscow by train today for a final talk with Khrushchev.

(Responsible sources in London said Macmillan will return determined to urge President Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle to join him in a summit conference with Khrushchev as the only way of removing the Soviet threat to West Berlin.)

Macmillan spoke in broad terms of his 10-day mission to Moscow after a day of seeing Leningrad's sights in grey, drizzling weather. While he toured the city, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had a 90-minute conference intended to clarify British and Soviet positions prior to the final Macmillan-Khrushchev session.

Dinner guests with Macmillan were Lloyd, Gromyko and Soviet Deputy Doreign Minister Anastas I. Mikoyan.

"We can only be friends in any true meaning of the word if we first know one another better," Macmillan said. "I have already had frank conversations with your leaders in Moscow."

The prime minister then referred to Mikoyan's Friday night speech at Rostov, in which Mikoyan said Macmillan had reversed the normal course of negotiations by starting with the sweet and going on to the sour.

"I see that Mr. Mikoyan had some criticism to make of the conduct of the conversations, but I was glad that he felt they were being useful," Macmillan said.

"It is very good to him to be here tonight and I look forward to further discussions with him and with the other Soviet leaders when I return to Moscow.

"I believe that these talks even though they cannot — and were not intended to — lead to any immediate solutions will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

It's easy. They just pull up the anchor of their 42-foot sailing ship and go off to elsewhere: Bimini, St. Thomas, Sarasota, Mobile. It's their home: no grass to mow, shrubs to be eaten by parasites, property taxes 'n such.

They figure the ship cost them about $16,000. They pay about $500 a year for dock rental, which includes an electric plug-in. At sea they generate the light energy, cook with gas.

Cancer Feud

W. L. Philbrick has brought Cancer Institute at Miami into a boiling mess, with several charges hurled at Dr. J. Ernest Ayre, director of the Institute. One was that Dr. Ayre accepted cytology slides submitted by osteopathic physicians. Following his blasts, acceptance of those slides was stopped.

Says Dr. Robert P. Keiser, president of Dade County Medical Association, writing in The Bulletin, DCMA monthly: "It is the firm conviction of your president that our association's present attitude is untenable no matter how you embelish or rationalize it. We are recommending that a certain group of patients . . . be deprived of having cytological diagnostic studies performed at a medical institution supported by public donations and a community welfare fund.

"The executive committee of DCMA subotted its recommendations . . . It in no way condones the practice (osteopathy) nor does it advocate consorting, consulting or communicating with others of the healing arts than medical doctors. It merely gives every individual the opportunity to use the Institute for cancer cytology diagnosis."

Dr. Keiser was approving a resolution of the executive committee, which with but one dissenting note approved a resolution which said: "It is our opinion that in the best interests of the general public, the Cancer Institute should not show prejudice against any segment of our patient community by depriving them of an available source to obtain such examinations."

'Public Is Misled'

Defenses Obsolete, Says Symington

nickel to that and you'd have the three billion needed for this coming year.

"I asked Wernher von Braun two questions: First, 'when must we start new thinking and make new decisions if we are to remain a great power?' He answered, 'right now.' Then I asked him, 'if we don't do this, when will the position of the U.S. become hopeless?' He answered, 'in about a decade.'

"For this and other reasons, I persuaded Lyndon Johnson to put all the defense department witnesses under oath before they answered our questions. We've got to have the truth at this critical hour."

The truth, Symington says, is capsuled in the following. It is a compilation of his many charges that the will of Congress is being thwarted on defense:

— Congress appropriated 90 million dollars addition to expedite work on the Minuteman ICBM, of which he has said, "no more important new weapon is scheduled." Not one cent of that money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 48 million dollars additional for the Hound Dog missile, an an air-to-ground jet-propelled unit designed to be hurled against defense installations several hundred miles ahead of advancing B52Gs. Not one cent of this money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 140 million dollars to give the Army more mobility. Not one cent of this has been used, or is scheduled to be used, in the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 609 million dollars more to expand the Polaris-submarine program from five such weapons systems to nine. The administration has allocated some of this money for one additional submarine. There is no plan to use the rest of this money during the present fiscal year.

— Money appropriated by Congress for the personnel strength of the Marine Corps was either frozen, or used for purposes not specified by the Congress.

"Fifty-eight per cent of that billion, three hundred million extra we gave to defense this year has been frozen," Symington asserts.

Symington and others were alarmed to learn from the testimony of Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of SAC, that he cannot keep his intercontinental bombers on air alert, that is, keep a certain portion of the SAC strength airborne around the clock, because of the expense involved. It was supposed by many (including Khrushchev) that SAC kept at least a third of its strength airborne and bomb-laden.

In the wake of that testimony, Symington issued this statement:

"If the Soviets have a superiority in ICBMs two to three years hence, they can use that portion of those missiles needed to destroy our ICBMs, and they can use the remainder against as much of our Strategic Air Command as is not airborne at that time.

"Since there will be no warning of this attack, only those SAC bombers which are airborne at that time can be relied upon for effective retaliation.

"If the Soviets have a significant ICBM superiority two to three years hence, as testified, they can in a matter of moments destroy our missile force and the SAC-manned bomber force not in the air at that time. If at that time, as is currently the case, none of our SAC bombers are on airborne alert, the simple conclusion is that with a significant missile superiority the Russians could wipe out our entire manned and unmanned retaliatory force.

"The most useful addition to the current budget would be whatever is required to keep a significant number of our SAC bombers airborne throughout the perilous next two or three years — and be sure the Soviets are appraised of this retaliatory capability in the air.

"Obviously, too, we should have more ICBMs sooner, and also they should be dispersed and these bases hardened as quickly as possible."

Symington is critical of many Defense Department investments.

"We've spent six billion dollars on the Nike program," he points out. "But we built these short-range rocket bases around the cities. Retaliation against Russia isn't going to bcome from cities. It's going to come from air bases. The Nike installations should be around air bases. For instance, there is no defense against submarine-launched missile attacks against, let's say, the site of our first proposed Atlas base at Camp Cook, Calif.

"When I asked the Defense Department why it spent all that money protecting cities the answer I got was 'we don't know. Probably for the psychological effect.' We could could have bought more psychological effect if we had put that money in the Voice of America."

He believes the whole matter of security can be summed up in a three-point list:

1—The U.S. wants a just and lasting peace.

2—The best way to get it is through puncture-proof inspection of nuclear arms-making potentialities.

3—We have a better chance of getting peace if we can negotiate from a position of relative strength, not weakness.

'Gag Line' Leads Cars Off Highway

MODENA, Italy — (UPI) — Police Sunday sought the unfunny pranksters who repainted the center dividing line on the main highway here and caused at least 15 automobiles to go off the road into the bushes.

No injuries were reported since all the cars were traveling at slow speed because of fog. The accidents came after dark.

The pranksters also changed direction signs at several crossroads, sending many motorists the wrong way.

But the most dangerous "prank" was the misdirected center-line strip, which motorists must use as a guide at night, particularly in fog.

Unknown persons blacked out the center strip on a curve of highway 12 which leads north to the Brenner Pass.

Then a new white line was painted in, leading gradually off the highway into the bushes.

Quake Recorded On Fordham Gauges

NEW YORK —(AP)— A fairly severe earthquake was recorded by Fordham University seismologists Sunday some 9,800 miles from here. The quake was probably in the Banda Sea southwest of New Guinea, the university said.

National Summary

A frontal system extended from New York southward through Georgia Sunday resulting in occasional snow mixed with rain over the Appalachians and into the Ohio Valley during mid-day. Rain fell over the Atlantic states with significant amounts in North Carolina, where Hatteras reported 1.70 inches in 24 hours. Temperatures in the eastern states ranged from the 30s and 40s in New England to the 50s in Virginia and the 60s in Florida.

A disturbance over the Northwest produced rain and snow showers accompanied by gusty winds over the northern Rockies where Cutbank, Mont. reported gusts to 68 mph. Occasional rain with periods of sunshine prevailed over the Pacific Northwest.

High pressure areas centered over Texas and Utah were associated with general rain through the southwest. Temperatures in the central portion of th country ranged from the 30s and 40s in the northern border states to the 60s in Texas with Rapid City, S.D., one of the warmer stations where 62 was reached during the morning. Readings in the western states ranged from near 50 in Washington to the 70s in Southern California.

Lever To Pry A Law?

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

BOYLES

TALLAHASSEE — There are two key reasons behind a so-called manifesto, signed by 20 some legislators, vowing they will vote to abolish public schools if necessary to thwart integration.

The first is, of course, that they want to assure constituents they will fight for some anti-mix legislation on the theory that, although any such measure might be ruled unconstitutional by the courts, legal battles testing the law would consume time and delay desegregation.

Second, and perhaps the prime reason, is that a majority of the Legislature favors some kind of parent-option bill. They want a provision that would permit parents to withdraw children from an integrated school. The consensus may not, however, be in favor of the specific parent-option proposal laid down by Attorney General Richard Ervin and Superintendent of Schools Thomas D. Bailey.

Just Kindling

BUT PROPONENTS of some kind of parent-option plan believe they will have a better chance of pushing it through the Legislature if they indicate more extreme legislation might be enacted.

And although the Bailey-Ervin parent-option plan would keep public schools open, there are rock-ribbed segregationist lawmakers who don't believe a majority of the state's educators will buy it unless they are first threatened with wholesale closing of schools.

It would be more fitting to call the "manifesto" merely a petition that reaffirmed the defiant stand already expressed many times.

In brief, it was both a demonstration of hostility toward moderation, and an expedient effort to bargain with the moderates.

Cheers for UDC

CHEERS FOR the Winnie Davis chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The unit is campaigning to have the site of the Battle of Natural Bridge, a few miles east of Tallahassee, preserved as a national shrine.

It was there that a pick-up contingent of old men, and fuzzy-cheeked cadets from the academy that is now Florida State University saved the city of Tallahassee from federal troops, distinguishing it as the only Confederate state capital east of the Mississippi not to have been captured by Union forces.

The battle was fought March 6, 1865, but the annual pilgrimage to the site will be made Sunday, March 8, with FSU ROTC units participating.

Little has been done to utilize the historic site as a tourist attraction. Markers have been defaced and breastworks trampled down.

Child Welfare Roll Increase Becomes Big State Problem

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — The old woman who lived in the shoe didn't have the problems with her children that Florida has with those on its welfare rolls.

The harassed mother of nursery rhyme fame simply fed her large brood, whipped them soundly and put them to bed. The state doesn't have that simple a solution available.

There is a wide range of opinion about what Florida should do with the steadily increasing number of children and their caretakers who are receiving welfare money under the aid to dependent children (ADC) program.

Although the federal government pays more than 82 per cent of the costs, the state still has a sizable bill.

The ADC caseload last month was 26,818. Each case, usually a family, averages almost four persons. In actual numbers, the state helped support 75,876 dependent children and 22,810 caretakers. Usually their mothers.

Howard C. Crooms, assistant director of the welfare board, said about 2,500 applications for ADC are being investigated. He predicted that by June the number of cases will climb to 29,000, by June, 1960, to 31,200, and by June, 1961, to 33,000.

There is some feeling among legislators the state should stop making welfare payments for illegitimate children.

A bill aimed at this probably will be introduced by the interim committee on welfare. This group proposes to prohibit welfare payments to unsuitable homes. These homes would be defined in such a way that those into which illegitimate children were born would be excluded.

The welfare board wants to handle the dependent children problem differently. It has recommended the $81 per month limitation on aid per family be abolished and the amount based entirely on need.

Under the restriction, a home in which there are a dozen dependent children can get only $81 a month, the same as a family with only four dependent children.

Basing its spending request on lifting the restriction, the board asked for about 21 million dollars in state funds, which would be put with about 57 million dollars of federal funds during the next two years.

The Cabinet Budget Commission recommended a program based on no changes in the $81 restriction. It will ask the legislature to appropriate about eight million dollars in state funds for the biennium. Federal funds would total 37 million dollars.

The ADC figures show the caseload has grown by 5,775 cases since July, 1955.

Crooms says he can see no immediate end to the increase. The rise is a natural result of the state's population increases, he said.

But while the number of dependent children has been growing, costs to the state haven't been rising much in recent years. Crooms said this is because the federal government has been taking on more and more of the load.

In July, 1955, when the caseload was 21,040, the state contribution was $242,422. That of the federal government was $911,167.

In June, 1958, when the caseload had risen to 24,793, the state's share was still only $258,989. The federal government's contribution, however, had risen to $1,208,615.

Migrants' V Disease Rate Low

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Blood tests of the first 300 migrant workers checked in a health survey showed 47 of them have had syphilis, the Broward County Tuberculosis and Health Association reported today.

Only about 10 per cent of the 47 cases are active, according to Dr. Paul W. Hughes, county health director. Persons with active cases are notified to begin treatments immediately.

Dr. Hughes said there is no possibility that the disease can be communicated on the vegetables the migrant workers handle.

The Broward County Tuberculosis and Health Association and the health department are cooperating in a survey among migrants for tuberculosis and syphilis.

Only one infectious case was found. Dale Robertson, a consultant employed by the U. S. Public Health Service and attached to the Broward County Health Department, immediately notified the worker to begin treatment.

One active tuberculosis case out of the first 300 has been located and hospitalized.

The syphilitic will get what Dr. Hughes calls a double dose of penicillin three times at weekly intervals. The first double dose is usually enough to effect a cure. The additional treatments are to insure a cure.

Close to 2,000 blood tests will be given to migrant workers. Usually about 10 per cent are positive. Most of those whose blood tests turn out positive have been cured. They will continue to show a positive test for a considerable period, depending on how long they had the disease before treatment.

Robertson said he does not use coercion in persuading a victim to get treatment. If coercion or force were used, it would be difficult to get migrants to submit to tests in the first place.

Health cards are issued to migrants who have been tested for syphilis and tuberculosis. The cards indicate whether they have been treated for either disease.

Other states follow the same procedure. Since the migrants work in several states in the course of a year, they are often treated for syphilis in more than one state.

Engineer, 31, Dies in Skid Near Cape

Killed was H. J. Bartleson of 407 Dempsey Dr., Cocoa Beach.

Daniel Hausner, Celestial Trailer Park, Cocoa Beach, driver of the other car, was injured. Hospital authorities declined to detail his injuries.

Deputy Sheriffs A. C. Fouracker and Tillman McHenry said they had not fully reconstructed the 2 a.m. accident, which occurred during a driving rain.

The two officers said Bartleson apparently lost control of his car and skidded broadside into the path of Hausner's machine on State Rd. 401, about three miles south of Cape Canaveral.

Is Letter Sports? Egghead?

Reprinted from late Sunday editions

The "Civinettes," a girls' student organization, came up with the idea of awarding letters to the scholars and presented them to 29 of the brainy girls and boys.

To qualify for an academic letter a student must maintain an "A" average, with no more than a single "B," through two consecutive semesters.

Meantime, State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey reported the rooting section for the scholars is growing rapidly.

He said the Florida program of rewarding top students by some form of public recognition has caught on nationally.

Bailey wrote the high school principal that Florida Jaycees, for the third year, will present certificates of commendation to every straight "A" student and to every student who makes his school's honor roll.

Last year, the Junior Chamber of Commerce passed out 21,000 honor roll and 5,000 straight "A" certificates.

Bailey long has urged scholarship be given the same recognition as athletic ability. He said his mail indicates the program is stimulating scholarship.

"With the new emphasis being placed upon education since the launching of the Soviet satellite, the wisdom of this program is now even more apparent," he said.

A Seventh Is Charged In Thefts

OCALA—(AP)—A seventh man has been charged in the alleged safecracking ring using state prisoners as accomplices.

Ethan L. Fort, 23, of Wildwood was arrested and charged with breaking and entering in a Citrus County burglary, and with aiding escape of a felon in Marion County.

"He had been under suspicion ever since Clemit Barnes was arrested because Fort and Barnes were "drinking buddies," Police Chief G. E. Nix of Wildwood said.

Barnes and George Altman, 29, of Oxford are under a total of $31,035 bonds each. Ernest Sam Altman, 24, a guard at the men's state correctional institution at Lowell, north of here, is under $30,000 bond.

They pleaded innocent to charges of breaking and entering, aiding escape, and possession of burglary tools.

Three prisoners at the institution have pleaded guilty to breaking and entering. They are Rufus Argo, 40; Norman Lyle, 31, and David Key, 30.

Authorities said the prisoners were let out by the guard so they could aid in burglaries.

Girl, 5, Dies As Car Flips During 'Test'

BOCA RATON—A five-year-old girl was killed Saturday night when she was thrown from a speeding car driven by her father. The victim was Rita Robbins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Robbins Jr., of Delray Beach.

Police Chief W. H. Brown of Boca Raton said Robbins was driving the foreign car in a "test run" on an abandoned airfield. The vehicle struck an elevated segment between two landing strips and flipped over, Brown said.

The child was thrown through the open top and crushed under the car. Robbins, 36, and two other children riding in the car were not seriously injured.

Two ambulance attendants, Ernest Cowan of Delray Beach and Charles Devault, Lake Worth, were injured when their ambulance and a car containing four teenagers collided at an intersection while the ambulance was on its way to the crash scene.

None of the teenagers was hurt.

Convicted of Desertion

Fascell Appeals For Miami Airman

Reprinted from late Sunday editions

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Miami Congressman Dante Fascell appealed to Air Force Secretary James Douglas Saturday to review personally the desertion conviction of a German-born Miami airman whose parents were killed by the Nazis and whose family is destitute.

Fascell said in a letter to Douglas that Airman 3-C Harry Frydman, 31, now imprisoned at Homestead Air Force Base, "has proven that he is an honest person . . . a person with good moral character . . . one who can be trusted."

"I am convinced that this case merits far more than the usual consideration," Fascell said. ". . . I am urgently pleading that you intercede . . . personally review this case."

Frydman, whose wife and three children are in danger of losing their home at 11050 SW 52nd Dr., was convicted of desertion by a court martial at Homestead on Jan. 23. He was sentenced to a dishonorable discharge and six months at hard labor.

Fascell based his appeal on Frydman's past, bringing out testimony that the airman watched his parents being marched off to their deaths in a Nazi concentration camp, and escaped as a 12-year-old to join the British Army.

"This boy has been running, and I mean running, away from all signs of force, practically since the day he first learned to comprehend the spoken word," Fascell told Douglas.

For most of his 3½ years in the British army, Frydman served as an interpreter in Germany. He received an honorable discharge in June, 1948, and was brought to the U.S. by an uncle living in New York.

In June, 1949, Frydman enlisted in the Air Force for a six-year hitch.

In March, 1952, he walked away from McChord Air Force Base, Wash., and never returned.

"I don't really know, sir," Frydman said when asked to explain his behavior. "I ran away. I run away from most everything."

Frydman said he intended to return to the base on his own, but "got scared" when he heard a radio broadcast of his escape.

Frydman worked his way back to Miami Beach, where he obtained hotel work.

To keep his job he had to obtain a police identification card. That meant fingerprinting.

"I knew that I would be picked up now that they had my fingerprints," he testified.

Prisons Full

TOKYO — (AP) — Justice Minister Kiichi Aichi says 80,027 persons were in the nation's penitentiaries or under police detention as of last November. He said the total included 65,721 convicted criminals and 12,814 persons awaiting trial.

Principal Ousted by Flea Fight

TAMPA —(AP) — The city school superintendent has removed A. W. Buchholz as principal of Gary Elementary School.

The action climaxed a running battle between mothers of pupils and school authorities over mites, fleas, roaches, mice and rats at the 45-year-old building.

Superintendent J. Corckett Farnell said Buchholz would be placed in the department's special education section.

He termed the mite and flea investigation incident the "climax of a long string of continuous complaints" relative to Buchholz' leadership.

A group of mothers took their children out of school Wednesday, complaining that the place was crawling with insects and vermin.

Governor's Veto Seen Ineffective

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Things are building up for the integration battle to erupt the opening day of the 1959 Legislature, and most everyone hopes it will be over quickly.

It appears now that the two bills which will stir up the most talk will be tossed in at the legislative opening April 7—the last resort school closing bill and the parent option tuition plan.

Both these proposals stand a good chance of final passage, whether or not Gov. LeRoy Collins accepts them. The governor hasn't said how he stands on parent option but has indicated rather clearly he still opposes the last resort proposal he vetoed in 1957.

Also in prospect are bills designed to strengthen the pupil assignment law and one even stronger than the "last resort" bill which conceivably could shut down all public schools if necessary to head off integration. The latter proposal, if introduced, would encounter strong opposition from friends of the public school.

Legislators are doing a lot of talking now about new legislation to strengthen Florida's hand in the fight to block integration, and likely it'll carry into the early days of the session.

But many of the lawmakers say privately that they hope the issues can be decided conclusively in the first two weeks so that other business of the legislature won't be gummed up.

These legislators, and state officials as well, are fearful that if the legislature should get into a prolonged battle over this highly emotional subject, other important work of the session would be buried in a sea of bitterness.

House Speaker Designate Thomas D. Beasley said the agitation for stronger legislation in the racial field was fired up by recent action of the Dade County School Board in admitting four Negroes to a white elementary school in Miami next September.

Framers of the anti-integration "manifesto" signed by more than a score of legislators said the action was prompted by the Dade decision.

A "last resort" bill already has been prepared by the attorney general's office for introduction by Rep. J. W. McAlpin of Hamilton County. A similar bill likely will be put into the Senate opening day also.

It provides for calling a referendum on the issue of closing down a school upon petition of 15 per cent of the residents of the area affected. Such a plan would be used in event a school was faced with integration.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Ralph Odum is shaping up the parent option tuition plan so it will be ready for introduction opening day. In general it would authorize parents to withdraw children from schools faced with integration and authorize payment of tuition grants to send them to non-church private schools.

Two Groups Working

West Coast Atomic Power Due in 1963

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Technical work has been underway since last March on a 50,000 kilowatt atomic power plant expected to be built on the Florida west coast by June, 1963.

President Philip Sporn of the American Electric Power Co., New York, told a congressional committee studies began then on plant equipment and layout and nuclear reactor design.

Tests on corrosion and heat transfer characteristics will begin soon, he reported.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced Thursday it has signed a contract with two private utilities combines authorizing construction and operation of the plant. Its location has not been designated yet.

Sporn said the combines, East Central Nuclear Group, Inc., and Florida West Coast Nuclear Group, expect to spend over $2,800,000 on the project this year.

Planning, development and construction will cost a total of about 44 million dollars.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠AQ94 ♥A106 ♦5 ♣AJ1095

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
1♠	Pass	3♥	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five hearts. A mere raise to four hearts would not be adequate. Up to this point you have not indicated that you have a hand of over minimum values. The sequence, one club, one heart, one spade, may be made on a rock bottom minimum. When partner jumps you should do more than make a forced raise. With two hearts and two diamonds, four hearts would be the proper call. The recommended sequence describes a singleton in the fourth suit.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥AQJ4 ♦KQJ107 ♣5

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. The appropriate way to show the strength of this hand is not by a reverse bid of three hearts or a jump bid in diamonds, both of which shows a strong hand, but both of which might not allow for the possibility that your partner might have a spade suit.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠AQJ64 ♥K92 ♦AK4 ♣K5

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite partner's previous pass, the prospects for a slam are extremely bright. It is almost inconceivable that partner is aceless, but if you have any qualms you may try it out with Blackwood, or at least bid four diamonds to observe partner's reactions. For a mere bid of four spades, a glaring demerit is in order.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠J109742 ♥1083 ♦A4 ♣Q6

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. Your hand has assumed great proportions now that partner has made a take-out-double at the level of three. A bid of only three spades would indicate a forced response and would almost surely be passed by partner.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠KQJ5 ♥AQ ♦K10987 ♣94

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	1♥	2♣

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. This is perhaps a shade light for a reverse bid but we consider it proper procedure in order to guard against being shut out of the spade suit. Partner should realize that you opened with one diamond in anticipation of rebidding one spade over a possible heart response and developments have put you in position where you must make a slightly aggressive bid.

Q. 6—With 60 part score your partner opens one club. You hold:
♠K64 ♥KQJ105 ♦AK63 ♣7

What is your response?

A.—One heart. A jump shift is not recommended at this point. It is better to get in one free round of bidding which may permit a better basis for the decision on the next round. True enough, a jump shift would be forcing tho it completes the game. Nevertheless, with a partner of uncertain quality, the safer procedure is to bid one heart which even the most timid player will not pass.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠KJ653 ♥87 ♦K3 ♣KQ65

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What do you bid now?

A.—One spade. The jump shift is not indicated tho you passed an optional opening. If partner has some shaded third hand opening with nothing in spades, you do not wish to apply the pressure. If he has a sound hand he will bid again and then will come your try for game.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠95 ♥932 ♦AJ4 ♣AK976

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. This is not intended as an ace showing bid. Actually we are deliberately deceiving partner into believing we have a diamond suit so that he might contract for game in no trump if he holds the protection in hearts. Since we have the equivalent of an opening bid and partner has opened, there should be a game.

New Fear Descends On Arabs

By GEORGE WELLER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

NICOSIA — Israel's gathering in of Romanian Jews has confronted the troubled Arabs with the same strange East-West lineup "against Arab Palestine" as at Israel's birth 10 years ago.

WELLER

Once again Communist bureaucrats, Israel statesmen and American Zionists are oddly harnessed together in a collective effort that alarms the Arab world. The Arabs see the chances of 1,000,000 Arab refugees' recovering their homes dwindling.

Above this immediate flood of Romanian Jews hangs another huge thundercloud of Russia's three million Jews. Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion has stated Israel's capacity to receive this exact number.

United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser has clutched at Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's promise not to let Ben-Gurion's people go. Nasser said Russia itself had called such Arab fears "fictitious and an imperialist intrigue."

So far Russia has used only water-drop torture on the Arabs, having released about 50,000 Polish and Soviet Jews in the Suez invasion year, 1956, when the Arabs hardly noticed.

Pill-Packing 'Bomber' Is Released

HOUSTON, Tex. — (UPI) — Authorities turned loose a pill-packing ex-convict who threatened to blow up Houston's main post-office if a clerk didn't hand over $1,000.

Clifford Bottomfield, 49, said the threat was part of a plan to get medical attention "one way or another" for his asthma and heart trouble.

He carried no bomb with him. All he had in his pockets were bottles of pills, cough drops, gargles and patent medicines.

Authorities declined to press charges after Bottomfield told them he had no intention of blowing up the post office.

Bottomfield said he has been in prison five times and thought he might get medical care if he was sent back.

Symington Speaks

Our Defenses Are Obsolete, Says Senator

How effective against Soviet attack are the Nike missile bases that surround many American cities? Is the Strategic Air Command still the "great deterrent" it was considered only a year ago? In this second of a series on the great defense debate now under way, a leading congressional defense authority provides some eye-opening opinions on these vital questions.

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

Sen. Stuart Symington, the Missouri Democrat who served President Truman as secretary for air, charges that the Eisenhower administration is not telling the public the truth about our military weaknesses.

CONSIDINE

"When Charlie Wilson was secretary of defense he assured America that we were ahead of the Russians in rocket development, though he knew from intelligence reports that radar installations in Turkey had picked up hundreds of Russian missiles being tested," Symington told this reporter.

"Vice President Nixon told a hand-picked group of Washington correspondents not long ago that we're 'closing the gap.' We're doing no such thing. Mr. McElroy (the defense secretary), speaking for the Defense Department and the administration, now tells us that the Russians will soon have a 3-to-1 edge on us in ICBMs. The administration's own people can't get together on their stories."

Symington, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1960, feels that the Eisenhower administration has consistently underestimated Soviet technology.

"Its position seems to be that Russia isn't worth a damn as a military power, so we can afford to yield quantitative superiority because we've got the qualitative edge. All I know is that they're out-producing us in big missiles, have hundreds more submarines than we have, and that the Russian Academy of Sciences was flourishing 50 years before the Declaration of Independence."

He Doubts SAC's Stature

Symington was instrumental in the formation of the Strategic Air Command in 1946. Now he has his doubts about its stature as a deterrent.

"Any effort by SAC today to move against Russia in retaliation would be a kind of reverse of Pearl Harbor. Russia would be the most alerted country in history. They've unquestionably got all types of anti-aircraft guided and homing missiles. They've got thousands of supersonic fighters. SAC has only one type of supersonic bomber, the B58, and darn few of them.

"In time, the B58 will stage out the B47 as our medium bomber. But that will take a long time. B47s make up 75 per cent of SAC's strength, which means that we're depending on a retaliatory air arm that is 75 per cent obsolescent.

"Naval air couldn't help us. The carrier is not a retaliatory weapon. That would leave retaliation up to our ICBMs and the 1,500-mile-range missiles, the Thor and the Jupiter, that we're trying to get our NATO allies to install. So far, only England has accepted any."

The senator is particularly vexed about the American ICBMs.

"Mr. McElroy's position seems to be that we can safely permit the Russians to take a 3-1 lead in intercontinental missiles because we've got an Air Force that is 75 per cent obsolescent and we've got the Polaris — which actually we haven't got. I don't get it.

SYMINGTON

"First he promised that we'd have our first ICBM squadron — that's 10 missiles — in place at Camp Cook, Calif., by July 1 of this year. Then he said, in effect, 'Oops, I mean January 1, 1960.'

"We could more than double our production of Atlas ICBMs with the same floor space now in being. All that would be needed is more tooling. It would be something for the Russians to think about. But the word has gone out to cut, and it's imperiling the security of the nation.

"The administration is asking Congress for 200 million dollars less than last year, and wants to spend 600 million less on missiles. That reminds me of something Bernie Baruch likes to say: 'What's the use of being the richest man in the graveyard?'

"The Air Force must try to replace more than 1,000 B47s with less than 100 B58s. There's a critical shortage of KC135 jet tankers. Congress pressed 1.3 billion dollars in additional funds on the Defense Department last year, after hearing a lot of dire testimony. But defense used only 34 per cent of the money. An additional eight per cent was used for different reasons than what we had intended it to be used for."

Symington agrees with the Rockefeller brothers report which urged that a total of 18 billion additional dollars must be spent in the Defense Department over the next three years — three billion in 1960, six billion in 1961 and nine billion in 1962.

"That wouldn't be any hardship on the country," he insisted to us. "We've figured out that the security of the U.S. cost each American 60 cents a day. Add just a

Space Rocket Hunted

Still No Trace Of Discoverer

They checked reports from widely scattered tracking stations in an attempt to find out if it attained orbit.

Launching of the 78-foot rocket went off without apparent hitch. But tracking stations have failed to pick up signals expected if the Discoverer passed over in polar orbit about the earth.

An Air Force spokesman said the rocket "reached the right point at the right speed where it should have entered orbit."

What might have been the final contact with the Discoverer was picked up Saturday night by a Navy ship 900 miles south of the launching site on the rocket's prescribed route. The signals were faint.

In Washington, Rear Adm. John E. Clark, deputy director of the Advanced Research Project Agency, said this could indicate trouble with the Discoverer's broadcasting equipment.

If the Discoverer failed to enter its prescribed orbit, it could have gone into an off-course orbit or fallen back into the earth's atmosphere and burned up.

The Discoverer — weighing 1,300 pounds and 19 feet long and 5 feet wide — carried 40 pounds of instruments to send back space information. This was the first attempt to put a satellite into north-south polar orbit. Satellites launched previously from Cape Canaveral, Fla., have orbited close to the equator.

Discoverer was the first of a series of shots from Vandenberg intended to learn means of safely sending man into space.

Sun Shot Poised at Canaveral

CAPE CANAVERAL — (AP) — A breakup in the cold front over Central Florida cleared the way Sunday for the Army's effort to blast a satellite past the moon and into orbit around the sun.

"It looks good," an Army missile man commented when the heavy soup which had enveloped the Cape for several days began clearing away gradually.

Lights flashed around the tall tower housing the moon rocket as the firing crew worked over it, making sure that it would be mechanically ready when the go ahead came from the weather man.

The time is right for the shoot and it could come at any time.

Saturday — the first day of a six-day period in which the moon floats in closest proximity to the earth, 221,000 miles away — passed without any attempt to get the lunar probe rocket away.

The missile test center was entirely hidden by dense, low-hanging overcast and at intervals the Cape was drenched by cold heavy rain.

LIMA, Peru — (AP) — The third Inter-American Technical Conference on Public Health was formally opened here Sunday.

Mobilization Urged

Concern Mounting Over Berlin Crisis

Foreign Aid Waste Uncovered

Congressmen Record Abuses

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A congressional committee has found new evidence of stealing and waste in the foreign military assistance program.

The committee found one motor pool in a friendly foreign nation where enough tires were supplied by the U.S. to make 44 tires available in one year for every truck in the pool.

The committee also found evidence that foreign military brass diverted aircraft materiel supplied by the U.S. to manufacture planes for their own personal use.

The committee also learned of apartment houses erected in foreign lands with material and equipment supplied by the U.S. for military construction.

"The scarcity of consumer goods and the low pay scales of military and civil service personnel (in foreign nations) provided an incentive for stealing of U.S. military supplies," said a report of a House foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D., Pa.).

These broad hints of larceny and waste are all the taxpayers of the U.S. can get at this time, because of the usual blanket of official secrecy that has been thrown over the military assistance program by the Pentagon and the Department of State.

Rep. Morgan's subcommittee has held hearings and made a record of the skulduggery aboard, but the Defense and State Departments have bottled up the details, for two reasons.

"First," the committee report states, "many of the events described reflect unfavorably on officials or policies of allied nations.

"Second, publication of full details would provide the Communists with material which would be used to create dissension among our allies."

The subcommittee wistfully admits that if it called a thief a thief, it might create "internal dissension in allied nations," or even bring about a "refusal to cooperate," which would make it more difficult for the U.S. to help defend our client nations.

While unwilling itself to get down to cases and identify thieves among the recipients of military aid, the subcommittee says plaintively:

"It appears that the U.S. has been slow in taking action to prevent pilferage and diversion and that a sufficiently high priority has not yet been given to getting the situation under control."

This Is the American Liner Constitution

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The American luxury liner Constitution, carrying only a skeleton crew of 110, sheared the bow off a tanker in a dense Atlantic fog 22 miles from the foot of Broadway Sunday. Officials immediately sought to determine whether the ships' radarscopes were working when the collision occurred.

There were no reports of deaths or injuries in the collision, which might have inflicted casualties had the 25-million-dollar, 23,719-ton Constitution been carrying her capacity of 1,100 passengers.

The accident happened at about 10:40 a.m. about five miles off Ambrose Lightship, the famous shipping beacon at the mouth of New York harbor.

Both the Constitution and the 539-foot-long Norwegian tanker Jalanta remained afloat after the crash, but a 120-foot section of the tanker's bow was set adrift and menaced other navigation in the area until a tugboat took it in tow.

The Constitution was unable to drop anchor because of damage to her bow. She circled the tanker, carrying a crew of 40, while a small fleet of tugboats and Coast Guard vessels nosed gently through the fog to shepherd both damaged vessels to a Brooklyn repair yard.

The American Export Line's Constitution was groping through the pea soup fog toward New York, after undergoing multi-million-dollar alterations at Newport News, Va., in preparation for a bumper spring and summer trans-Atlantic tour season.

The 12,228-ton Jalanta was headed south from New York for Venezuela to pick up a cargo of oil.

Both vessels were radar equipped. The Jalanta was built in Kiel, Germany, in 1952. The Constitution was constructed at the Bethlehem shipbuilding yards at Quincy, Mass., incorporating all the latest safety devices. She made her maiden voyage in June, 1951.

The radar issue was raised also in the 1956 collision of the liners Stockholm and Andrea Doria, which sank the Andrea Doria with a loss of 55 lives.

First word of Sunday's accident came when the Constitution radioed at 10:53 a.m.: "We have collided with a tanker five miles southeast of Ambrose Light vessel. Request Coast Guard assistance immediately. We are in dense fog."

Severed Cable Is Back in Use

MONTREAL — (UPI) — Full service was restored Sunday on the transatlantic telephone cable that was severed mysteriously Feb. 21, resulting in the boarding of a Russian trawler by the U.S. Navy.

It took crews working around the clock just under eight days to complete the splicing of the cable about 190 miles east of Clarenville, Newfoundland. Four Western Union telegraph cables were still to be repaired.

Surprised at Reaction

'Just Electioneering,' Says Nikita of Blast

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev has advised a foreign ambassador here it was a real toothache, and not diplomatic illness, that kept him from flying with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to Kiev last Wednesday.

The ambassador, who asked not to be identified by name, said in an interview Sunday he had asked Khrushchev point blank whether it was a diplomatic illness in view of reported coolness between the two government chiefs. He quoted Khrushchev as replying:

"No, Mr. Macmillan and I were joking about my ailing tooth before he left for Kiev. I told him premiers must have good teeth and Mr. Macmillan answered: 'I think sometimes your teeth are a little too sharp for us.'"

Khrushchev was pictured as surprised at the world reaction to his tough speech at the Kremlin last Tuesday. He had rapped the West on Berlin and other issues in addressing committees of his district in preparation for an election. A new parliament for the Russian federation, the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, will be chosen.

"It was only an electioneering speech," the envoy quoted the premier as saying. "I doubt it has been suggested that I should not have made the speech until Mr. Macmillan left.

"But the election was to be Sunday, before he left, and I owed it to my voters to explain what is happening.

"That is all I did."

The ambassador said Khrushchev also told him he still is not pessimistic about his talks with Macmillan and he insists there must be a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the Western occupation of West Berlin. He is for a peaceful settlement of the German question.

Talks resume today after Macmillan returns from Leningrad.

A lavish Kremlin reception for the British delegation and a TV appearance by Macmillan are on schedule later today.

Senators Ask Ike For Action

'Spur of Moment' Move Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional concern mounted Sunday over the possibility Russia may go to war over Berlin.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) voiced fear Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev might "do something on the spur of the moment" that would ignite a conflict.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.) urged President Eisenhower to call up four or five additional divisions as a "diplomatic signal to the Soviets that we mean business" in the Berlin crisis.

Jackson said the President has the authority to call up additional troops and the mobilization now of four or five Army or National Guard divisions might prevent a "national catastrophe."

Mansfield, assistant majority leader of the Senate, said Khrushchev would not start a war deliberately although he said it is "always possible" he might risk one.

Interviewed on a recorded radio program (Reporters' Roundup) Mansfield said "I think he (Khrushchev) cannot be trusted not to do something on the spur of the moment" that would start a shooting war.

Jackson advanced his proposal as Chairman Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the U.S. would be finished as "the other great power in the world" if the West abandoned Berlin.

The outpouring of statements underscored an increasingly obvious fact — that senators of both parties regard Russia's plan to give East Germany control over access routes to Berlin on May 27 as one of the gravest threats to peace since World War II.

In Leningrad, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan expressed belief his talks with Soviet leaders, though yielding no immediate results, "will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

"I say that these discussions must lie ahead because I firmly believe that the dangerous situation with which we may be faced cannot be resolved without negotiation," Macmillan declared.

The British leader spoke at a formal dinner given by Leningrad's Mayor N. I. Smirnov. He returns to Moscow by train

Australian Critics Fail to Cut Attendance at Graham Services

MELBOURNE, Australia — (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham attracted another huge crowd Sunday despite criticism in some Anglican church circles and a "Billy Go Home" headline in a small news magazine.

More than 52,000 persons crowded into Sidney Myer Music Bowl Sunday to hear Graham's sermon about the danger of the world being destroyed by atomic war.

GRAHAM

The North Carolina Baptist minister has preached to record crowds every day since his five-month Australian Crusade for Christ began here Feb. 15.

Crusade officials reported that more than 10,000 persons have made "Decisions for Christ" at the Melbourne meetings.

Despite these successes, however, there have been some rumblings of disapproval.

"News Day," a new weekly magazine with a small circulation published in the Sydney suburb of Ashfield, carried in its first issue a Graham story headlined "Billy Go Home."

"Billy Graham, the self-appointed heavenly huckster, should pack his carpetbag and go straight back home," News Day said. "Australia has got on pretty well so far without Graham's particular brand of religious emotionalism and his specialized method of selling religion.

"Thoughtful Australians will be horrified by the near blasphemy of his attitude. The voice of God doesn't come bellowing from a loudspeaker."

The magazine said Graham was obviously sincere but his methods were out of place in Australia. Officials of the Graham crusade "team" Sunday dismissed the article as "unworthy of comment."

Another criticism came from the Anglican archbishop of Coulburn and Canberra, Dr. E. H. Burgmann. In his Diocesan magazine, The Southern Churchman, Dr. Burgmann wrote:

"I cannot go along with a modern 'Fundamentalist' crusade such as is now being conducted by Billy Graham. Great crowds do not provide the the atmosphere for serious decisions involving the truths vital for meeting the strain of daily living."

2 California Hunts Drudge On For Kidnaped Baby, Missing Boy

Ex-Mental Patient Charged

By Herald Wire Services

LOS ANGELES — Two apparent kidnapings were under investigation in this area Sunday.

The FBI entered the probe of the disappearance of an eight-week-old twin boy from his home in Ontario, Calif.

WAYNE

In Venice, Detective Frank R. Brenna said police filed the charge against William Harris Elwell, 28, a 245-pound beach dweller. The missing boy is Wayne Murry.

Police said Wayne's six-year-old brother, Richard, told them:

The brothers met Elwell while playing on the beach Saturday and went to his house when he offered to give them chocolate milk. The younger boy became frightened and ran.

Richard went home and told his father, Wayne Murry Sr. They went to Elwell's house but found no one.

Police said Elwell was judged insane in 1955 after being involved in a shooting. He was treated at mental institutions and released.

In Ontario, police said Eric Leon Flores apparently was taken from his home by a babysitter.

Mrs. Ruth Flores discovered the baby missing when she returned home Friday night after being out with friends.

She told police that a woman known to her only as Ann Williams had volunteered to stay with her seven children during the evening.

Police said they have not been able to learn anything about the background of the babysitter. They said Mrs. Flores did not consider the offer to stay with the children unusual because many people have offered to help her since her husband was killed in an explosion last year.

Women Hold Future: Pope

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — Pope John XXIII said in a speech Sunday "the serenity of a family, the healthy upbringing of children, the future of the (Roman Catholic) Church and of the country rests in the hands of women."

He spoke to 3,000 members of the Italian Catholic Women's Association at a general audience in the Vatican's Hall of Benediction.

He said women should be the "watchful guardians of that very precious gift which is the family and which — we say it with tears in our heart — is threatened by so many dangers."

Old Sol's On His Way Back

March's fabled weather lion, which roared into South Florida early Sunday, will get a tranquilizing partly cloudy sun pill today, the Miami Weather Bureau forecast Sunday.

A fast-moving cold front spun off the tip of Florida after kicking up wind gusts of 31 miles an hour here. Drizzle and rain at Miami International Airport Sunday amounted to .14 of an inch.

"By Tuesday we should have sunny skies and near normal temperatures," he said.

The Federal-State Frost Warning Service in Lakeland said there would be no danger of frost today, but lows would be close to the danger point in north Florida Tuesday morning.

Behind the front, said Sugg, is a dry, cool air mass that will give south Florida north and northwesterly winds for a day or so.

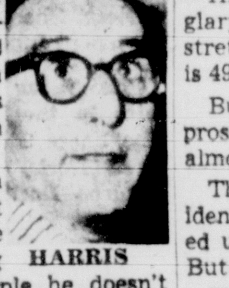
He's In Beach Hospital

Hood Willie Harris Stabbed From Behind

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer



HARRIS

Stabbed in the neck and throat, Willie (Beer Bottle) Harris staggered drunkenly into St. Francis Hospital at Miami Beach early Sunday, appeared near death, then suddenly regained his strength when detectives identified him six hours later.

Harris is a stick-up artist who has the habit of carving up faces of people he doesn't like with broken beer bottles.

"It looks like a gangster vendetta," said Miami Beach Detective Sgt. Al Biblo. "We don't know who did it. Willie won't talk."

The wounds, possibly made with an ice pick or stiletto, were from the back.

It was at 3:32 a.m. Sunday that Harris stumbled up to the emergency room desk of Nurse Josephine Healy.

"I've been robbed," he said. "I'm drunk—very drunk. Somebody brought me here in a car and dumped me."

He told doctors he was "George Henry Berger, Brooklyn."

When detectives B. G. Miller, Ronald Minervini and Walter Sternberg arrived to check out the hospital's assault report, Harris was swathed in bandages.

They didn't know who he was at first but identification was established through scars.

Harris clammed up. He told them nothing.

Beach police figured the stabbing probably occurred elsewhere. He was ordered off the Beach a year ago, is picked up on sight there, and has been spending most of his time along motel row and in Miami.

The number of citizens — hoodlums and otherwise—who might be tired of seeing Harris are legion.

His record of robbery, burglary, assault and bookmaking stretches over 30 years. Willie is 49.

But the acquittals, the nolle prosses, the no actions stretch almost as far.

Three times he has been identified as the man who sliced up people with beer bottles. But he beat all the raps.

This time Beach police charged him with giving false information to the police.

today for a final talk with Khrushchev.

(Responsible sources in London said Macmillan will return determined to urge President Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle to join him in a summit conference with Khrushchev as the only way of removing the Soviet threat to West Berlin.)

Macmillan spoke in broad terms of his 10-day mission to Moscow after a day of seeing Leningrad's sights in grey, drizzling weather. While he toured the city, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had a 90-minute conference intended to clarify British and Soviet positions prior to the final Macmillan-Khrushchev session.

Dinner guests with Macmillan were Lloyd, Gromyko and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Anastas I. Mikoyan.

"We can only be friends in any true meaning of the word if we first know one another better," Macmillan said. "I have already had frank conversations with your leaders in Moscow."

The prime minister then referred to Mikoyan's Friday night speech at Rostov, in which Mikoyan said Macmillan had reversed the normal course of negotiations by starting with the sweet and going on to the sour.

"I see that Mr. Mikoyan had some criticism to make of the conduct of the conversations, but I was glad that he felt they were being useful," Macmillan said.

"It is very good to him to be here tonight and I look forward to further discussions with him and with the other Soviet leaders when I return to Moscow.

"I believe that these talks even though they cannot — and were not intended to — lead to any immediate solutions will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

Meanwhile, Communist East Germany Sunday celebrated the third anniversary of its 100,000-man army with military parades and simultaneously began spadework designed to force the issue of Berlin.

Preparations for Khrushchev's visit this week to the Leipzig Spring Fair began in East Berlin Saturday night when Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Pervukhin began talks on a separate East German peace treaty.

The East German ADN News Agency reported Pervukhin met with East German Premier Otto Grotewohl and Communist Party Chief Walter Ulbricht on "questions connected with Soviet proposals for conclusion of a German peace treaty and liquidation of the occupation regime in East Berlin." There were no further details.

JOHN PEOPLES is a retired Coast Guardsman. When he and Mrs. Peoples think the radio next door is too loud, or are disturbed by noisy parties, they move.

It's easy. They just pull up the anchor of their 42-foot sailing ship and go off to elsewhere: Bimini, St. Thomas, Sarasota, Mobile. It's their home: no grass to mow, shrubs to be eaten by parasites, property taxes 'n such.

They figure the ship cost them about $16,000. They pay about $500 a year for dock rental, which includes an electric plug-in. At sea they generate the light energy, cook with gas.

"Our friends say we're crazy — too old," Peoples says. "But we love it, so why give it up. We bought an apartment house in Coconut Grove. Right away we got tabbed for a $500 street repair bill. We sold out right then. Miami's home. We spend four or five months a year there."

Cancer Feud

W. L. Philbrick has brought Cancer Institute at Miami into a boiling mess, with several charges hurled at Dr. J. Ernest Ayre, director of the Institute. One was that Dr. Ayre accepted cytology slides submitted by osteopathic physicians. Following his blasts, acceptance of those slides was stopped.

Says Dr. Robert P. Keiser, president of Dade County Medical Association, writing in The Bulletin, DCMA monthly: "It is the firm conviction of your president that our association's present attitude is untenable no matter how you embelish or rationalize it. We are recommending that a certain group of patients . . . be deprived of having cytological diagnostic studies performed at a medical institution supported by public donations and a community welfare fund.

"The executive committee of DCMA submitted its recommendations . . . It in no way condones the practice (osteopathy) nor does it advocate consorting, consulting or communicating with others of the healing arts than medical doctors. It merely gives every individual the opportunity to use the Institute for cancer cytology diagnosis."

Dr. Keiser was approving a resolution of the executive committee, which with but one dissenting note approved a resolution which said: "It is our opinion that in the best interests of the general public, the Cancer Institute should not show prejudice against any segment of our patient community by depriving them of an available source to obtain such examinations."

'Public Is Misled'

Defenses Obsolete, Says Symington

nickel to that and you'd have the three billion needed for this coming year.

"I asked Wernher von Braun two questions: First, 'when must we start new thinking and make new decisions if we are to remain a great power?' He answered, 'right now.' Then I asked him, 'if we don't do this, when will the position of the U.S. become hopeless?' He answered, 'in about a decade.'

"For this and other reasons, I persuaded Lyndon Johnson to put all the defense department witnesses under oath before they answered our questions. We've got to have the truth at this critical hour."

The truth, Symington says, is capsuled in the following. It is a compilation of his many charges that the will of Congress is being thwarted on defense:

— Congress appropriated 90 million dollars addition to expedite work on the Minuteman ICBM, of which he has said, "no more important new weapon is scheduled." Not one cent of that money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 48 million dollars additional for the Hound Dog missile, an an air-to-ground jet-propelled unit designed to be hurled against defense installations several hundred miles ahead of advancing B52Gs. Not one cent of this money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 140 million dollars to give the Army more mobility. Not one cent of this has been used, or is scheduled to be used, in the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 609 million dollars more to expand the Polaris-submarine program from five such weapons systems to nine. The administration has allocated some of this money for one additional submarine. There is no plan to use the rest of this money during the present fiscal year.

— Money appropriated by Congress for the personnel strength of the Marine Corps was either frozen, or used for purposes not specified by the Congress.

"Fifty-eight per cent of that billion, three hundred million extra we gave to defense this year has been frozen," Symington asserts.

Symington and others were alarmed to learn from the testimony of Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of SAC, that he cannot keep his intercontinental bombers on air alert, that is, keep a certain portion of the SAC strength airborne around the clock, because of the expense involved. It was supposed by many (including Khrushchev) that SAC kept at least a third of its strength airborne and bomb-laden.

In the wake of that testimony, Symington issued this statement:

"If the Soviets have a superiority in ICBMs two to three years hence, they can use that portion of those missiles needed to destroy our ICBMs, and they can use the remainder against as much of our Strategic Air Command as is not airborne at that time.

"Since there will be no warning of this attack, only those SAC bombers which are airborne at that time can be relied upon for effective retaliation.

"If the Soviets have a significant ICBM superiority two to three years hence, as testified, they can in a matter of moments destroy our missile force and the SAC-manned bomber force not in the air at that time. If at that time, as is currently the case, none of our SAC bombers is on airborne alert, the simple conclusion is that with a significant missile superiority the Russians could wipe out our entire manned and unmanned retaliatory force.

"The most useful addition to the current budget would be whatever is required to keep a significant number of our SAC bombers airborne throughout the perilous next two or three years — and be sure the Soviets are appraised of this retaliatory capability in the air.

"Obviously, too, we should have more ICBMs sooner, and also they should be dispersed and these bases hardened as quickly as possible."

Symington is critical of many Defense Department investments.

"We've spent six billion dollars on the Nike program," he points out. "But we built these short-range rocket bases around the cities. Retaliation against Russia isn't going to come from cities. It's going to come from air bases. The Nike installations should be around air bases. For instance, there is no defense against submarine-launched missile attacks against, let's say, the site of our first proposed Atlas base at Camp Cook, Calif.

"When I asked the Defense Department why it spent all that money protecting cities the answer I got was 'we don't know. Probably for the psychological effect.' We could have bought more psychological effect if we had put that money in the Voice of America."

He believes the whole matter of security can be summed up in a three-point list:

1—The U.S. wants a just and lasting peace.

2—The best way to get it is through puncture-proof inspection of nuclear arms-making potentialities.

3—We have a better chance of getting peace if we can negotiate from a position of relative strength, not weakness.

'Gag Line' Leads Cars Off Highway

MODENA, Italy — (UPI) — Police Sunday sought the unfunny pranksters who repainted the center dividing line on the main highway here and caused at least 15 automobiles to go off the road into the bushes.

No injuries were reported since all the cars were traveling at slow speed because of fog. The accidents came after dark.

The pranksters also changed direction signs at several crossroads, sending many motorists the wrong way.

But the most dangerous "prank" was the misdirected center-line strip, which motorists must use as a guide at night, particularly in fog.

Unknown persons blacked out the center strip on a curve of highway 12 which leads north to the Brenner Pass.

Then a new white line was painted in, leading gradually off the highway into the bushes.

Courts Seeking Justice

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

PATRICK AFB—The room didn't look much like a courtroom, but two lawyers were arguing a case.

"I object! — it's irrelevant and immaterial," declared one.

BROWN

The witness closed his mouth on half-said words.

"If it please the court . . .," began the other attorney.

"Sustained," snapped a dignified lieutenant colonel who was the "judge" at this general court-martial.

The general court-martial room looked strange. It was just a big rectangular room without "bench" or "box" and one in which the judge and the jury seemed to be in the wrong places.

But the arguments of counsel were familiar, and it was clear the case was being carefully tried . . . that the accused was "innocent until proven guilty."

Before the court was the case of the United States vs. A3C Jose D. M. Sisneros, in which the government contended the defendant had beaten and robbed a Brevard County civilian.

Sitting in judgment was a seven-officer panel, headed by Col. Harry Halberstadt. Capt. John Kennedy, a lawyer, was prosecuting for the U.S., and Maj. Arnold C. Castle, another lawyer, was defending Sisneros.

The dignified lieutenant colonel was the legal officer. He ran the trial as a Circuit Court judge would.

Follow Rules

CAPT. KENNEDY'S presentation of the government's case convinced the tribunal Sisneros had assaulted Kenneth L. Trumbull of Melbourne and "wrongfully appropriated" Trumbull's car, but failed to convince the officers Sisneros had stolen six pieces of personal porperty which Trumbull lost during the assault.

This was no fast trial. Maj. Castle had the same opportunities to defend that he would have had in a civilian court.

Before it was over, the facts of the case had been laid bare — in accordance with accepted rules of evidence.

In the end Sisneros was sent to prison for 18 months, "broken" to basic airman, given a bad conduct discharge, and ordered to forfeit two-thirds of all the pay he'll get in prison.

It's Important

FEW BREVARD citizens will ever enter this courtroom, but the court is important to them.

Here any crime — including murder, espionage, or treason — can be tried, and the tribunal is an important one among the courts that mete out the punishment prescribed by law to protect law-abiding citizens.

Airman Sisneros' conviction will be posted at Patrick for other servicemen to see. It might help keep them from committing a crime like his.

That's the same thing Brevard's Circuit Court is trying to do when it punishes a civilian criminal.

SANDY SHOES FESTIVAL MAR. 2-8

Historical Pageant Today Starts Sandy Shoes Event

By DOUG SILVER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE—The Sandy Shoes Festival — the annual whoop-de-doo at which a community knocks itself out to provide visitors with a good time and a look at real Florida life — starts here Monday.

It's March, so the festival comes in like a lion — with a full sized historical pageant today But it goes out like a horse, in fact like hundreds of horses, with the Cattleman's Day Parade Saturday.

The pageant is "Along These Waters" — where history and legend come to life in the story of St. Lucie County's pioneers who got "sand in their shoes" and stayed. It's written and produced by Ada Coats Williams with music by Laura Hewitt Whipple.

The Cattlemen's Parade, under the direction of Sandy Gibson, features more than 300 horses from nearby ranches. It also has elaborate floats, clowns, and bands. More than 1,000 people will take part.

The festival doesn't end with the parades as it is followed by a Lion's Club barbecue, street dance, policemen's ball, art exhibit and golf tournament. The art show is Saturday and Sunday and the golf Sunday.

In between the pageant and the weekend activities there are all kinds of events calculated to entertain visitors and home folks.

Tuesday is Beach Day — put on by the St. Lucie County Recreation Department. This includes swimming, a simulated sea rescue and a fishing derby.

On Wednesday there's a flower show tour — sponsored by the St. Lucie Federation of Garden Clubs. It's known as the "Festival of Flowers."

Thursday is Citrus Day, sponsored by the Fort Pierce Jaycees, with Tommy Sloan in charge. This includes a citrus grove tour and a novel feature, called a Citrus Feast.

Ten unusual citrus dishes are available, plus all the orange juice one can drink — plus the crowning of a local lovely known as "Miss Delicious Dish."

Water Events Day is Friday, produced by the Pelican Yacht Club, and Coast Guard Auxiliary, directed by John B. Park.

Friday is jammed with marine activity, including a closed course ski race, boat races, yacht club pool show with gal swimmers and the Sandy Shoes dancers. The big water show day winds up with a Pelican Yacht Club dance.

8 Persons Killed In Accidents

By the Associated Press

At least eight persons perished this weekend in Florida accidents.

H. J. Bartleson, 31, of Cocoa Beach, a missile engineer, was killed Sunday when his automobile skidded broadside into a truck on the rainswept Cocoa Beach-Cape Canaveral road.

A pedestrian, identified as Alphonso Sheridan, 78, was killed by an automobile on the Tamiami Trail in Miami Sunday.

Ressie Henry Tyre, 48, of Orlando was killed in a traffic crash on State Rd. 15, 13 miles south of Okeechobee, Saturday night.

Five-year-old Rita Robbins of Delray Beach was thrown to pavement from a car and fatally crushed when the machine rolled over on her Saturday at Boca Raton. The child's father, William Jr., about 30, suffered a possible concussion in the upset, which occurred as he test-drove a new foreign car on an abandoned air strip.

Mrs. Elizabeth P. Cason, 53, was killed when her light truck blew a tire and overturned on the Jacksonville Expressway Saturday.

A motorcycle hit a bridge rail at Clearwater Saturday and flung two riders to the ground. Dale Miller, 14, died of internal injuries, and Tommy Parsons, 16, was critically hurt.

The body of Edward Zeek, 12, was found Sunday, noosed to a shower curtain rod by his belt, at his Fort Lauderdale home. Detective Sgt. John Boyd said it appeared the boy had playfully looped the belt over the rod and his head, then slipped.

Utility Levy Fight

Key West Board May Repeal Tax

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — The controversial utility tax will be up for a repeal vote at the meeting of the City Commission tonight, the Herald learned.

Reliable sources disclosed that at least two of the five commissioners are in favor of throwing out the tax, enacted Nov. 17.

The tax, a 10 per cent surcharge across the board on all electricity, telephone and gas bills, has been unpopular.

Voters' petition, with 3,669 signatures, asking repeal, was submitted to the council in December, but rejected as being invalid.

The question of validity is pending in court.

The predicted move to repeal the tax tonight would be the first crack to appear publicly in the solid front maintained by the municipal governing board since it unveiled the tax and a related revenue bond issue for a proposed multi-million dollar civic improvement program.

The tax was adopted despite considerable opposition, and consumers have been paying it since Jan. 1. But the schedule for the improvement program suffered two setbacks in Circuit Court last week.

The court upheld a taxpayers' plea for a full-scale hearing on the petition for repeal of the utility tax, and denied, at least temporarily, validation of the $2,750,000 bond issue.

Observers feel the battle to put over the program and legal reverses have brought a division in the City Commission.

It is still uncertain, however, whether the motion to repeal the utility tax would carry.

Legislators Hope for Quick Decision

Last Resort Bill May Erupt Early

Governor's Veto Seen Ineffective

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Things are building up for the integration battle to erupt the opening day of the 1959 Legislature, and most everyone hopes it will be over quickly.

It appears now that the two bills which will stir up the most talk will be tossed in at the legislative opening April 7— the last resort school closing bill and the parent option tuition plan.

Both these proposals stand a good chance of final passage, whether or not Gov. LeRoy Collins accepts them. The governor hasn't said how he stands on parent option but has indicated rather clearly he still opposes the last resort proposal he vetoed in 1957.

Also in prospect are bills designed to strengthen the pupil assignment law and one even stronger than the "last resort" bill which conceivably could shut down all public schools if necessary to head off integration. The latter proposal, if introduced, would encounter strong opposition from friends of the public school.

Legislators are doing a lot of talking now about new legislation to strengthen Florida's hand in the fight to block integration, and likely it'll carry into the early days of the session.

But many of the lawmakers say privately that they hope the issues can be decided conclusively in the first two weeks so that other business of the legislature won't be gummed up.

These legislators, and state officials as well, are fearful that if the legislature should get into a prolonged battle over this highly emotional subject, other important work of the session would be buried in a sea of bitterness.

House Speaker Designate Thomas D. Beasley said the agitation for stronger legislation in the racial field was fired up by recent action of the Dade County School Board in admitting four Negroes to a white elementary school in Miami next September.

Framers of the anti-integration "manifesto" signed by more than a score of legislators said the action was prompted by the Dade decision.

A "last resort" bill already has been prepared by the attorney general's office for introduction by Rep. J. W. McAlpin of Hamilton County. A similar bill likely will be put into the Senate opening day also.

It provides for calling a referendum on the issue of closing down a school upon petition of 15 per cent of the residents of the area affected. Such a plan would be used in event a school was faced with integration.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Ralph Odum is shaping up the parent option tuition plan so it will be ready for introduction opening day. In general it would authorize parents to withdraw children from schools faced with integration and authorize payment of tuition grants to send them to non-church private schools.

Lifeguard, Surfboard Save Four

By BILL BECK
Delray Bureau Chief

BOCA RATON — A daring lifeguard, using a surfboard, rescued four men at the mouth of the Boca Raton inlet in an action-packed hour Saturday.

Two 16-foot outboards capsized and two men were thrown from the bridge of a 40-foot fishing boat as towering swells, crashing on an offshore sandbar made the narrow inlet all but impassable for small craft.

A total of seven people were fighting for their lives in the boiling surf between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. No one drowned, or was seriously injured.

Three men were in a 16-foot boat, swamped 200 yards offshore. Lifeguard Tom Blake, skimming over the waves on an 11-foot surfboard, ferried them to safety, one at a time.

The first of the three rescued could not swim, according to Blake, and was being held up by a companion.

Minutes before, another boat of the same size overturned, but the two occupants, using life preserver cushions, made it safely to shore.

Before Blake could return to his post at the nearby Boca Raton Hotel cabana club, two men on the flying bridge of a 40-foot boat were pitched overboard, as the craft broached on the crest of a 10-foot wave.

Blake brought in one of the men on his board. The other swam 300 yards to a sand bar and waded the rest of the way.

The boat, identified as the Island Fisher, unmanned and under power, turned and started out to sea.

The Coast Guard reported that a charter boat caught the runaway and anchored it offshore. The boat was towed to the Peanut Island Coast Guard Station.

Firemen and police reported that, in the excitement, they failed to get names of the capsizing victims.

Blake, who rescued two boys from the same inlet with his surfboard less than five months ago, is a professional swimmer and a advocate of the surfboard as a safety device.

Engineer, 31, Dies in Skid Near Cape

Killed was H. J. Bartleson of 407 Dempsey Dr., Cocoa Beach.

Daniel Hausner, Celestial Trailer Park, Cocoa Beach, driver of the other car, was injured. Hospital authorities declined to detail his injuries.

Deputy Sheriffs A. C. Fouracker and Tillman McHenry said they had not fully reconstructed the 2 a.m. accident, which occurred during a driving rain.

Two Groups Working

West Coast Atomic Power Due in 1963

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Technical work has been underway since last March on a 50,000 kilowatt atomic power plant expected to be built on the Florida west coast by June, 1963.

President Philip Sporn of the American Electric Power Co., New York, told a congressional committee studies began then on plant equipment and layout and nuclear reactor design.

Tests on corrosion and heat transfer characteristics will begin soon, he reported.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced Thursday it has signed a contract with two private utilities combines authorizing construction and operation of the plant. Its location has not been designated yet.

Sporn said the combines, East Central Nuclear Group, Inc., and Florida West Coast Nuclear Group, expect to spend over $2,800,000 on the project this year.

Planning, development and construction will cost a total of about 44 million dollars.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠AQ94 ♥A106 ♦5 ♣AJ1095

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
1♠	Pass	3♥	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five hearts. A mere raise to four hearts would not be adequate. Up to this point you have not indicated that you have a hand of over minimum values. The sequence, one club, one heart, one spade, may be made on a rock bottom minimum. When partner jumps you should do more than make a forced raise. With two hearts and two diamonds, four hearts would be the proper call. The recommended sequence describes a singleton in the fourth suit.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥AQJ4 ♦KQJ107 ♣5

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. The appropriate way to show the strength of this hand is not by a reverse bid of three hearts or a jump bid in diamonds, both of which shows a strong hand, but both of which might not allow for the possibility that your partner might have a spade suit.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠AQJ64 ♥K92 ♦AK4 ♣K5

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite partner's previous pass, the prospects for a slam are extremely bright. It is almost inconceivable that partner is aceless, but if you have any quaims you may try it out with Blackwood, or at least bid four diamonds to observe partner's reactions. For a mere bid of four spades, a glaring demerit is in order.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠J109742 ♥1083 ♦A4 ♣Q6

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. Your hand has assumed great proportions now that partner has made a take-out-double at the level of three. A bid of only three spades would indicate a forced response and would almost surely be passed by partner.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠KQJ5 ♥AQ ♦K10987 ♣94

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	1♥	2♣

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. This is perhaps a shade light for a reverse bid but we consider it proper procedure in order to guard against being shut out of the spade suit. Partner should realize that you opened with one diamond in anticipation of rebidding one spade over a possible heart response and developments have put you in position where you must make a slightly aggressive bid.

Q. 6—With 60 part score your partner opens one club. You hold:
♠K64 ♥KQJ105 ♦AK63 ♣7

What is your response?

A.—One heart. A jump shift is not recommended at this point. It is better to get in one free round of bidding which may permit a better basis for the decision on the next round. True enough, a jump shift would be forcing tho it completes the game. Nevertheless, with a partner of uncertain quality, the safer procedure is to bid one heart which even the most timid player will not pass.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠KJ653 ♥87 ♦K3 ♣KQ65

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What do you bid now?

A.—One spade. The jump shift is not indicated tho you passed an optional opening. If partner has some shaded third hand opening with nothing in spades, you do not wish to apply the pressure. If he has a sound hand he will bid again and then will come your try for game.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠95 ♥932 ♦AJ4 ♣AK976

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. This is not intended as an ace showing bid. Actually we are deliberately deceiving partner into believing we have a diamond suit so that he might contract for game in no trump if he holds the protection in hearts. Since we have the equivalent of an opening bid and partner has opened, there should be a game.

New Fear Descends On Arabs

By GEORGE WELLER

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WELLER

NICOSIA — Israel's gathering in of Romanian Jews has confronted the troubled Arabs with the same strange East-West lineup "against Arab Palestine" as at Israel's birth 10 years ago.

Once again Communist bureaucrats, Israel statesmen and American Zionists are oddly harnessed together in a collective effort that alarms the Arab world. The Arabs see the chances of 1,000,000 Arab refugees' recovering their homes dwindling.

Above this immediate flood of Romanian Jews hangs another huge thundercloud of Russia's three million Jews. Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion has stated Israel's capacity to receive this exact number.

United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser has clutched at Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's promise not to let Ben-Gurion's people go. Nasser said Russia itself had called such Arab fears "fictitious and an imperialist intrigue."

So far Russia has used only water-drop torture on the Arabs, having released about 50,000 Polish and Soviet Jews in the Suez invasion year, 1956, when the Arabs hardly noticed.

Pill-Packing 'Bomber' Is Released

HOUSTON, Tex. — (UPI) — Authorities turned loose a pill-packing ex-convict who threatened to blow up Houston's main post-office if a clerk didn't hand over $1,000.

Clifford Bottomfield, 49, said the threat was part of a plan to get medical attention "one way or another" for his asthma and heart trouble.

He carried no bomb with him. All he had in his pockets were bottles of pills, cough drops, gargles and patent medicines.

Authorities declined to press charges after Bottomfield told them he had no intention of blowing up the post office.

Bottomfield said he has been in prison five times and thought he might get medical care if he was sent back.

Lever To Pry A Law?

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — There are two key reasons behind a so-called manifesto, signed by 20 some legislators, vowing they will vote to abolish public schools if necessary to thwart integration.

BOYLES

The first is, of course, that they want to assure constituents they will fight for some anti-mix legislation on the theory that, although any such measure might be ruled unconstitutional by the courts, legal battles testing the law would consume time and delay desegregation.

Second, and perhaps the prime reason, is that a majority of the Legislature favors some kind of parent-option bill. They want a provision that would permit parents to withdraw children from an integrated school. The consensus may not, however, be in favor of the specific parent-option proposal laid down by Attorney General Richard Ervin and Superintendent of Schools Thomas D. Bailey.

Just Kindling

BUT PROPONENTS of some kind of parent-option plan believe they will have a better chance of pushing it through the Legislature if they indicate more extreme legislation might be enacted.

And although the Bailey-Ervin parent-option plan would keep public schools open, there are rock-ribbed segregationist lawmakers who don't believe a majority of the state's educators will buy it unless they are first threatened with wholesale closing of schools.

It would be more fitting to call the "manifesto" merely a petition that reaffirmed the defiant stand already expressed many times.

In brief, it was both a demonstration of hostility toward moderation, and an expedient effort to bargain with the moderates.

The unit is campaigning to have the site of the Battle of Natural Bridge, a few miles east of Tallahassee, preserved as a national shrine.

It was there that a pick-up contingent of old men, and fuzzy-cheeked cadets from the academy that is now Florida State University saved the city of Tallahassee from federal troops, distinguishing it as the only Confederate state capital east of the Mississippi not to have been captured by Union forces.

The battle was fought March 6, 1865, but the annual pilgrimage to the site will be made Sunday, March 8, with FSU ROTC units participating.

Little has been done to utilize the historic site as a tourist attraction. Markers have been defaced and breastworks trampled down.

Triple Play Opening at Playhouse

Window Pain

When John Papp, 1801 SW 31st Ave., hopped into his car to go to work Saturday morning he found something the windshield wiper couldn't flip away. Sometime during the night, vandals hurled a football-sized hunk of coral rock into the front glass. Papp told Miami police. He estimated damage at $200.

Child Welfare Roll Increase Becomes Big State Problem

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — The old woman who lived in the shoe didn't have the problems with her children that Florida has with those on its welfare rolls.

The harassed mother of nursery rhyme fame simply fed her large brood, whipped them soundly and put them to bed. The state doesn't have that simple a solution available.

There is a wide range of opinion about what Florida should do with the steadily increasing number of children and their caretakers who are receiving welfare money under the aid to dependent children (ADC) program.

Although the federal government pays more than 82 per cent of the costs, the state still has a sizable bill.

The ADC caseload last month was 26,818. Each case, usually a family, averages almost four persons. In actual numbers, the state helped support 75,876 dependent children and 22,810 caretakers. Usually their mothers.

Howard C. Crooms, assistant director of the welfare board, said about 2,500 applications for ADC are being investigated. He predicted that by June the number of cases will climb to 29,000, by June, 1960, to 31,200, and by June, 1961, to 33,000.

There is some feeling among legislators the state should stop making welfare payments for illegitimate children.

A bill aimed at this probably will be introduced by the interim committee on welfare. This group proposes to prohibit welfare payments to unsuitable homes. These homes would be defined in such a way that those into which illegitimate children were born would be excluded.

The welfare board wants to handle the dependent children problem differently. It has recommended the $81 per month limitation on aid per family be abolished and the amount based entirely on need.

Under the restriction, a home in which there are a dozen dependent children can get only $81 a month, the same as a family with only four dependent children.

Basing its spending request on lifting the restriction, the board asked for about 21 million dollars in state funds, which would be put with about 57 million dollars of federal funds during the next two years.

The Cabinet Budget Commission recommended a program based on no changes in the $81 restriction. It will ask the legislature to appropriate about eight million dollars in state funds for the biennium. Federal funds would total 37 million dollars.

The ADC figures show the caseload has grown by 5,775 cases since July, 1955.

Crooms says he can see no immediate end to the increase. The rise is a natural result of the state's population increases, he said.

But while the number of dependent children has been growing, costs to the state haven't been rising much in recent years. Crooms said this is because the federal government has been taking on more and more of the load.

In July, 1955, when the caseload was 21,040, the state contribution was $242,422. That of the federal government was $911,167.

In June, 1958, when the caseload had risen to 24,793, the state's share was still only $258,989. The federal government's contribution, however, had risen to $1,208,615.

Migrants' V Disease Rate Low

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Blood tests of the first 300 migrant workers checked in a health survey showed 47 of them have had syphilis, the Broward County Tuberculosis and Health Association reported today.

Only about 10 per cent of the 47 cases are active, according to Dr. Paul W. Hughes, county health director. Persons with active cases are notified to begin treatments immediately.

Dr. Hughes said there is no possibility that the disease can be communicated on the vegetables the migrant workers handle.

The Broward County Tuberculosis and Health Association and the health department are cooperating in a survey among migrants for tuberculosis and syphilis.

Only one infectious case was found. Dale Robertson, a consultant employed by the U. S. Public Health Service and attached to the Broward County Health Department, immediately notified the worker to begin treatment.

One active tuberculosis case out of the first 300 has been located and hospitalized.

The syphilitic will get what Dr. Hughes calls a double dose of penicillin three times at weekly intervals. The first double dose is usually enough to effect a cure. The additional treatments are to insure a cure.

Close to 2,000 blood tests will be given to migrant workers. Usually about 10 per cent are positive. Most of those whose blood tests turn out positive have been cured. They will continue to show a positive test for a considerable period, depending on how long they had the disease before treatment.

Robertson said he does not use coercion in persuading a victim to get treatment. If coercion or force were used, it would be difficult to get migrants to submit to tests in the first place.

Health cards are issued to migrants who have been tested for syphilis and tuberculosis. The cards indicate whether they have been treated for either disease.

Other states follow the same procedure. Since the migrants work in several states in the course of a year, they are often treated for syphilis in more than one state.

Girl, 5, Dies As Car Flips During 'Test'

BOCA RATON—A five-year-old girl was killed Saturday night when she was thrown from a speeding car driven by her father. The victim was Rita Robbins, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Robbins Jr., of Delray Beach.

Police Chief W. H. Brown of Boca Raton said Robbins was driving the foreign car in a "test run" on an abandoned airfield. The vehicle struck an elevated segment between two landing strips and flipped over, Brown said.

The child was thrown through the open top and crushed under the car. Robbins, 36, and two other children riding in the car were not seriously injured.

Two ambulance attendants, Ernest Cowan of Delray Beach and Charles Devault, Lake Worth, were injured when their ambulance and a car containing four teenagers collided at an intersection while the ambulance was on its way to the crash scene.

None of the teenagers was hurt.

East, West To Meet at Club Fete

Herald Bureau

PALM BEACH—The granddaughter of Anna's King of Siam thinks the twain of East and West can meet.

Princess Rudivoravan, reared in the City of Forbidden Women in the Grand Palace at Bangkok, will talk on "East and West Can Meet" at a scholarship fund benefit sponsored by the Palm Beach Round Table in the Everglades Club at 4 p.m. today.

Her grandfather was King Mongkut, made famous in the book "Anna and the King of Siam" and Broadway-Hollywood production of "The King and I."

Rudivoravan, herself a meeting of East and West, is the 22nd child of her prince father. She was separated from her commoner mother early in life and brought up among the royal children of the King of Siam's court.

Exposed to English schooling, she rebelled against the restrictions of the Siamese way of life. Casting aside her title she tried to make her own way as a business woman in Bangkok, married a commoner and finally came to America.

She now broadcasts to the women of Thialand over the Voice of America from Washington. She is the author of "The Treasured One."

2 Sculptors Win Prizes

WEST PALM BEACH — First prize in the Second All-Florida Sculpture Exhibition at the Norton Gallery was won by Miss Anne Chapman, assistant professor of art at the University of Florida, Gainesville. She received $300 for a terra-cotta sculpture titled "Configurations."

Second prize, of $200, went to Ronald W. Yurewitz, senior art student at UF, for an untitled piece in welded steel.

The exhibition will be on view through March 15. It is comprised of 78 sculptures by 55 sculptors and is sponsored by the Associated Florida Sculptors in cooperation with Norton Gallery.

Hensley to Be Circuit Judge

TALLAHASSEE — County Judge Robert E. Hensley of Manatee County will be appointed to the circuit bench, succeeding the late Judge William T. Harrison of Palmetto, Gov. LeRoy Collins said.

Judge Hensley, 36, of Bradenton, will be named as soon as he resigns as County Judge, Collins said. The circuit includes DeSoto, Charlotte, Collier, Glades, Hendry, Lee, Manatee, and Sarasota Counties.

Concern Mounting Over Berlin Crisis

Symington Speaks

Our Defenses Are Obsolete, Says Senator

How effective against Soviet attack are the Nike missile bases that surround many American cities? Is the Strategic Air Command still the "great deterrent" it was considered only a year ago? In this second of a series on the great defense debate now under way, a leading congressional defense authority provides some eye-opening opinions on these vital questions.

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

Sen. Stuart Symington, the Missouri Democrat who served President Truman as secretary for air, charges that the Eisenhower administration is not telling the public the truth about our military weaknesses.

CONSIDINE

"When Charlie Wilson was secretary of defense he assured America that we were ahead of the Russians in rocket development, though he knew from intelligence reports that radar installations in Turkey had picked up hundreds of Russian missiles being tested," Symington told this reporter.

"Vice President Nixon told a handpicked group of Washington correspondents not long ago that we're 'closing the gap.' We're doing no such thing. Mr. McElroy (the defense secretary), speaking for the Defense Department and the administration, now tells us that the Russians will soon have a 3-to-1 edge on us in ICBMs. The administration's own people can't get together on their stories."

Symington, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1960, feels that the Eisenhower administration has consistently underestimated Soviet technology.

"Its position seems to be that Russia isn't worth a damn as a military power, so we can afford to yield quantitative superiority because we've got the qualitative edge. All I know is that they're out-producing us in big missiles, have hundreds more submarines than we have, and that the Russian Academy of Sciences was flourishing 50 years before the Declaration of Independence."

He Doubts SAC's Stature

Symington was instrumental in the formation of the Strategic Air Command in 1946. Now he has his doubts about its stature as a deterrent.

"Any effort by SAC today to move against Russia in retaliation would be a kind of reverse of Pearl Harbor. Russia would be the most alerted country in history. They've unquestionably got all types of anti-aircraft guided and homing missiles. They've got thousands of supersonic fighters. SAC has only one type of supersonic bomber, the B58, and darn few of them.

"In time, the B58 will stage out the B47 as our medium bomber. But that will take a long time. B47s make up 75 per cent of SAC's strength, which means that we're depending on a retaliatory air arm that is 75 per cent obsolescent.

"Naval air couldn't help us. The carrier is not a retaliatory weapon. That would leave retaliation up to our ICBMs and the 1,500-mile-range missiles, the Thor and the Jupiter, that we're trying to get our NATO allies to install. So far, only England has accepted any."

The senator is particularly vexed about the American ICBMs.

"Mr. McElroy's position seems to be that we can safely permit the Russians to take a 3-1 lead in intercontinental missiles because we've got an Air Force that is 75 per cent obsolescent and we've got the Polaris — which actually we haven't got. I don't get it.

SYMINGTON

"First he promised that we'd have our first ICBM squadron — that's 10 missiles — in place at Camp Cook, Calif., by July 1 of this year. Then he said, in effect, 'Oops, I mean January 1, 1960.'

"We could more than double our production of Atlas ICBMs with the same floor space now in being. All that would be needed is more tooling. It would be something for the Russians to think about. But the word has gone out to cut, and it's imperiling the security of the nation.

"The administration is asking Congress for 200 million dollars less than last year, and wants to spend 600 million less on missiles. That reminds me of something Bernie Baruch likes to say: 'What's the use of being the richest man in the graveyard?'

"The Air Force must try to replace more than 1,000 B47s with less than 100 B58s. There's a critical shortage of KC135 jet tankers. Congress pressed 1.3 billion dollars in additional funds on the Defense Department last year, after hearing a lot of dire testimony. But defense used only 34 per cent of the money. An additional eight per cent was used for different reasons than what we had intended it to be used for."

Symington agrees with the Rockefeller brothers report which urged that a total of 18 billion additional dollars must be spent in the Defense Department over the next three years — three billion in 1960, six billion in 1961 and nine billion in 1962.

"That wouldn't be any hardship on the country," he insisted to us. "We've figured out that the security of the U.S. cost each American 60 cents a day. Add just a

Space Rocket Hunted

Still No Trace Of Discoverer

They checked reports from widely scattered tracking stations in an attempt to find out if it attained orbit.

Launching of the 78-foot rocket went off without apparent hitch. But tracking stations have failed to pick up signals expected if the Discoverer passed over in polar orbit about the earth.

An Air Force spokesman said the rocket "reached the right point at the right speed where it should have entered orbit."

What might have been the final contact with the Discoverer was picked up Saturday night by a Navy ship 900 miles south of the launching site on the rocket's prescribed route. The signals were faint.

In Washington, Rear Adm. John E. Clark, deputy director of the Advanced Research Project Agency, said this could indicate trouble with the Discoverer's broadcasting equipment.

If the Discoverer failed to enter its prescribed orbit, it could have gone into an off-course orbit or fallen back into the earth's atmosphere and burned up.

The Discoverer — weighing 1,300 pounds and 19 feet long and 5 feet wide — carried 40 pounds of instruments to send back space information. This was the first attempt to put a satellite into north-south polar orbit. Satellites launched previously from Cape Canaveral, Fla., have orbited close to the equator.

Discoverer was the first of a series of shots from Vandenberg intended to learn means of safely sending man into space.

Sun Shot Poised at Canaveral

CAPE CANAVERAL — (AP) — A breakup in the cold front over Central Florida cleared the way Sunday for the Army's effort to blast a satellite past the moon and into orbit around the sun.

"It looks good," an Army missile man commented when the heavy soup which had enveloped the Cape for several days began clearing away gradually.

Lights flashed around the tall tower housing the moon rocket as the firing crew worked over it, making sure that it would be mechanically ready when the go ahead came from the weather man.

The time is right for the shoot and it could come at any time.

Saturday — the first day of a six-day period in which the moon floats in closest proximity to the earth, 221,000 miles away — passed without any attempt to get the lunar probe rocket away.

The missile test center was entirely hidden by dense, low-hanging overcast and at intervals the Cape was drenched by cold heavy rain.

Lima Conference On Health Opens

LIMA, Peru — (AP) — The third Inter-American Technical Conference on Public Health was formally opened here Sunday.

Public health officials from all American countries except Cuba, Mexico and Argentina, as well as representatives from Ethiopia, Liberia and Libya, are attending the conference which will last a week.

Foreign Aid Waste Uncovered

Congressmen Record Abuses

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A congressional committee has found new evidence of stealing and waste in the foreign military assistance program.

The committee found one motor pool in a friendly foreign nation where enough tires were supplied by the U.S. to make 44 tires available in one year for every truck in the pool.

The committee also found evidence that foreign military brass diverted aircraft materiel supplied by the U.S. to manufacture planes for their own personal use.

The committee also learned of apartment houses erected in foreign lands with material and equipment supplied by the U.S. for military construction.

"The scarcity of consumer goods and the low pay scales of military and civil service personnel (in foreign nations) provided an incentive for stealing of U.S. military supplies," said a report of a House foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D., Pa.).

These broad hints of larceny and waste are all the taxpayers of the U.S. can get at this time, because of the usual blanket of official secrecy that has been thrown over the military assistance program by the Pentagon and the Department of State.

Rep. Morgan's subcommittee has held hearings and made a record of the skulduggery aboard, but the Defense and State Departments have bottled up the details, for two reasons.

"First," the committee report states, "many of the events described reflect unfavorably on officials or policies of allied nations.

"Second, publication of full details would provide the Communists with material which would be used to create dissension among our allies."

The subcommittee wistfully admits that if it called a thief a thief, it might create "internal dissension in allied nations," or even bring about a "refusal to cooperate," which would make it more difficult for the U.S. to help defend our client nations.

While unwilling itself to get down to cases and identify thieves among the recipients of military aid, the subcommittee says plaintively:

"It appears that the U.S. has been slow in taking action to prevent pilferage and diversion and that a sufficiently high priority has not yet been given to getting the situation under control."

This Is the American Liner Constitution

. . . all renovated for a new season, it crashed in fog

Luxury Liner Constitution Rips Bow Off Tanker in Fog

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The American luxury liner Constitution, carrying only a skeleton crew of 110, sheared the bow off a tanker in a dense Atlantic fog 22 miles from the foot of Broadway Sunday. Officials immediately sought to determine whether the ships' radarscopes were working when the collision occurred.

There were no reports of deaths or injuries in the collision, which might have inflicted casualties had the 25-million-dollar, 23,719-ton Constitution been carrying her capacity of 1,100 passengers.

The accident happened at about 10:40 a.m. about five miles off Ambrose Lightship, the famous shipping beacon at the mouth of New York harbor.

Both the Constitution and the 539-foot-long Norwegian tanker Jalanta remained afloat after the crash, but a 120-foot section of the tanker's bow was set adrift and menaced other navigation in the area until a tugboat took it in tow.

The Constitution was unable to drop anchor because of damage to her bow. She circled the tanker, carrying a crew of 40, while a small fleet of tugboats and Coast Guard vessels nosed gently through the fog to shepherd both damaged vessels to a Brooklyn repair yard.

The American Export Line's Constitution was groping through the pea soup fog toward New York, after undergoing multi-million-dollar alterations at Newport News, Va., in preparation for a bumper spring and summer trans-Atlantic tour season.

The 12,228-ton Jalanta was headed south from New York for Venezuela to pick up a cargo of oil.

Both vessels were radar equipped. The Jalanta was built in Kiel, Germany, in 1952. The Constitution was constructed at the Bethlehem shipbuilding yards at Quincy, Mass., incorporating all the latest safety devices. She made her maiden voyage in June, 1951.

The radar issue was raised also in the 1956 collision of the liners Stockholm and Andrea Doria, which sank the Andrea Doria with a loss of 55 lives.

First word of Sunday's accident came when the Constitution radioed at 10:53 a.m.: "We have collided with a tanker five miles southeast of Ambrose Light vessel. Request Coast Guard assistance immediately. We are in dense fog."

Severed Cable Is Back in Use

MONTREAL — (UPI) — Full service was restored Sunday on the transatlantic telephone cable that was severed mysteriously Feb. 21, resulting in the boarding of a Russian trawler by the U.S. Navy.

It took crews working around the clock just under eight days to complete the splicing of the cable about 190 miles east of Clarenville, Newfoundland. Four Western Union telegraph cables were still to be repaired.

Surprised at Reaction

'Just Electioneering,' Says Nikita of Blast

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev has advised a foreign ambassador here it was a real toothache, and not diplomatic illness, that kept him from flying with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to Kiev last Wednesday.

The ambassador, who asked not to be identified by name, said in an interview Sunday he had asked Khrushchev point blank whether it was a diplomatic illness in view of reported coolness between the two government chiefs. He quoted Khrushchev as replying:

"No, Mr. Macmillan and I were joking about my ailing tooth before he left for Kiev. I told him premiers must have good teeth and Mr. Macmillan answered: 'I think sometimes your teeth are a little too sharp for us.'"

Khrushchev was pictured as surprised at the world reaction to his tough speech at the Kremlin last Tuesday. He had rapped the West on Berlin and other issues in addressing committees of his district in preparation for an election. A new parliament for the Russian federation, the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, will be chosen.

"It was only an electioneering speech," the envoy quoted the premier as saying. "I doubt it has been suggested that I should not have made the speech until Mr. Macmillan left.

"But the election was to be Sunday, before he left, and I owed it to my voters to explain what is happening.

"That is all I did."

The ambassador said Khrushchev also told him he still is not pessimistic about his talks with Macmillan and he insists there must be a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the Western occupation of West Berlin. He is for a peaceful settlement of the German question.

Talks resume today after Macmillan returns from Leningrad.

A lavish Kremlin reception for the British delegation and a TV appearance by Macmillan are on schedule later today.

Senators Ask Ike For Action

'Spur of Moment' Move Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional concern mounted Sunday over the possibility Russia may go to war over Berlin.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) voiced fear Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev might "do something on the spur of the moment" that would ignite a conflict.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.) urged President Eisenhower to call up four or five additional divisions as a "diplomatic signal to the Soviets that we mean business" in the Berlin crisis.

Jackson said the President has the authority to call up additional troops and the mobilization now of four or five Army or National Guard divisions might prevent a "national catastrophe."

Mansfield, assistant majority leader of the Senate, said Khrushchev would not start a war deliberately although he said it is "always possible" he might risk one.

Interviewed on a recorded radio program (Reporters' Roundup) Mansfield said "I think he (Khrushchev) cannot be trusted not to do something on the spur of the moment" that would start a shooting war.

Jackson advanced his proposal as Chairman Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the U.S. would be finished as "the other great power in the world" if the West abandoned Berlin.

The outpouring of statements underscored an increasingly obvious fact — that senators of both parties regard Russia's plan to give East Germany control over access routes to Berlin on May 27 as one of the gravest threats to peace since World War II.

In Leningrad, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan expressed belief his talks with Soviet leaders, though yielding no immediate results, "will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

"I say that these discussions must lie ahead because I firmly believe that the dangerous situation with which we may be faced cannot be resolved without negotiation," Macmillan declared.

The British leader spoke at a formal dinner given by Leningrad's Mayor N. I. Smirnov. He returns to Moscow by train

Australian Critics Fail to Cut Attendance at Graham Services

MELBOURNE, Australia — (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham attracted another huge crowd Sunday despite criticism in some Anglican church circles and a "Billy Go Home" headline in a small news magazine.

More than 52,000 persons crowded into Sidney Myer Music Bowl Sunday to hear Graham's sermon about the danger of the world being destroyed by atomic war.

GRAHAM

The North Carolina Baptist minister has preached to record crowds every day since his five-month Australian Crusade for Christ began here Feb. 15.

Crusade officials reported that more than 10,000 persons have made "Decisions for Christ" at the Melbourne meetings.

Despite these successes, however, there have been some rumblings of disapproval.

"News Day," a new weekly magazine with a small circulation published in the Sydney suburb of Ashfield, carried in its first issue a Graham story headlined "Billy Go Home."

"Billy Graham, the self-appointed heavenly huckster, should pack his carpetbag and go straight back home," News Day said. "Australia has got on pretty well so far without Graham's particular brand of religious emotionalism and his specialized method of selling religion.

"Thoughtful Australians will be horrified by the near blasphemy of his attitude. The voice of God doesn't come bellowing from a loudspeaker."

The magazine said Graham was obviously sincere but his methods were out of place in Australia. Officials of the Graham crusade "team" Sunday dismissed the article as "unworthy of comment."

Another criticism came from the Anglican archbishop of Coulburn and Canberra, Dr. E. H. Burgmann. In his Diocesan magazine, The Southern Churchman, Dr. Burgmann wrote:

"I cannot go along with a modern 'Fundamentalist' crusade such as is now being conducted by Billy Graham. Great crowds do not provide the the atmosphere for serious decisions involving the truths vital for meeting the strain of daily living."

2 California Hunts Drudge On For Kidnaped Baby, Missing Boy

Ex-Mental Patient Charged

By Herald Wire Services

LOS ANGELES — Two apparent kidnapings were under investigation in this area Sunday.

The FBI entered the probe of the disappearance of an eight-week-old twin boy from his home in Ontario, Calif.

WAYNE

In Venice, Detective Frank R. Brenna said police filed the charge against William Harris Elwell, 28, a 245-pound beach dweller. The missing boy is Wayne Murry.

Police said Wayne's six-year-old brother, Richard, told them: The brothers met Elwell while playing on the beach Saturday and went to his house when he offered to give them chocolate milk. The younger boy became frightened and ran.

Richard went home and told his father, Wayne Murry Sr. They went to Elwell's house but found no one.

Police said Elwell was judged insane in 1955 after being involved in a shooting. He was treated at mental institutions and released.

In Ontario, police said Eric Leon Flores apparently was taken from his home by a babysitter.

Mrs. Ruth Flores discovered the baby missing when she returned home Friday night after being out with friends.

She told police that a woman known to her only as Ann Williams had volunteered to stay with her seven children during the evening.

Police said they have not been able to learn anything about the background of the babysitter. They said Mrs. Flores did not consider the offer to stay with the children unusual because many people have offered to help her since her husband was killed in an explosion last year.

Women Hold Future: Pope

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — Pope John XXIII said in a speech Sunday "the serenity of a family, the healthy upbringing of children, the future of the (Roman Catholic) Church and of the country rests in the hands of women."

He spoke to 3,000 members of the Italian Catholic Women's Association at a general audience in the Vatican's Hall of Benediction.

He said women should be the "watchful guardians of that very precious gift which is the family and which — we say it with tears in our heart — is threatened by so many dangers."

Miss For Miami

Old Sol's On His Way Back

March's fabled weather lion, which roared into South Florida early Sunday, will get a tranquilizing partly cloudy sun pill today, the Miami Weather Bureau forecast Sunday.

A fast-moving cold front spun off the tip of Florida after kicking up wind gusts of 31 miles an hour here. Drizzle and rain at Miami International Airport Sunday amounted to .14 of an inch.

"By Tuesday we should have sunny skies and near normal temperatures," he said.

Late February averaged about seven degrees above normal.

The Federal-State Frost Warning Service in Lakeland said there would be no danger of frost today, but lows would be close to the danger point in north Florida Tuesday morning.

Behind the front, said Sugg, is a dry, cool air mass that will give south Florida north and northwesterly winds for a day or so.

He's In Beach Hospital

Hood Willie Harris Stabbed From Behind

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Stabbed in the neck and throat, Willie (Beer Bottle) Harris staggered drunkenly into St. Francis Hospital at Miami Beach early Sunday, appeared near death, then suddenly regained his strength when detectives identified him six hours later.

HARRIS

Harris is a stick-up artist who has the habit of carving up faces of people he doesn't like with broken beer bottles.

"It looks like a gangster vendetta," said Miami Beach Detective Sgt. Al Biblo. "We don't know who did it. Willie won't talk."

The wounds, possibly made with an ice pick or stiletto, were from the back.

It was at 3:32 a.m. Sunday that Harris stumbled up to the emergency room desk of Nurse Josephine Healy.

"I've been robbed," he said. "I'm drunk—very drunk. Somebody brought me here in a car and dumped me."

He told doctors he was "George Henry Berger, Brooklyn."

When detectives B. G. Miller, Ronald Minervini and Walter Sternberg arrived to check out the hospital's assault report, Harris was swathed in bandages.

They didn't know who he was at first but identification was established through scars.

Harris clammed up. He told them nothing.

Beach police figured the stabbing probably occurred elsewhere. He was ordered off the Beach a year ago, is picked up on sight there, and has been spending most of his time along motel row and in Miami.

The number of citizens — hoodlums and otherwise—who might be tired of seeing Harris are legion.

His record of robbery, burglary, assault and bookmaking stretches over 30 years. Willie is 49.

But the acquittals, the nolle prosses, the no actions stretch almost as far.

Three times he has been identified as the man who sliced up people with beer bottles. But he beat all the raps.

This time Beach police charged him with giving false information to the police.

today for a final talk with Khrushchev.

(Responsible sources in London said Macmillan will return determined to urge President Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle to join him in a summit conference with Khrushchev as the only way of removing the Soviet threat to West Berlin.)

Macmillan spoke in broad terms of his 10-day mission to Moscow after a day of seeing Leningrad's sights in grey, drizzling weather. While he toured the city, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had a 90-minute conference intended to clarify British and Soviet positions prior to the final Macmillan-Khrushchev session.

Dinner guests with Macmillan were Lloyd, Gromyko and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Anastas I. Mikoyan.

"We can only be friends in any true meaning of the word if we first know one another better," Macmillan said. "I have already had frank conversations with your leaders in Moscow."

The prime minister then referred to Mikoyan's Friday night speech at Rostov, in which Mikoyan said Macmillan had reversed the normal course of negotiations by starting with the sweet and going on to the sour.

"I see that Mr. Mikoyan had some criticism to make of the conduct of the conversations, but I was glad that he felt they were being useful," Macmillan said.

"It is very good to him to be here tonight and I look forward to further discussions with him and with the other Soviet leaders when I return to Moscow.

"I believe that these talks even though they cannot — and were not intended to — lead to any immediate solutions will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

Meanwhile, Communist East Germany Sunday celebrated the third anniversary of its 100,000-man army with military parades and simultaneously began spadework designed to force the issue of Berlin.

Preparations for Khrushchev's visit this week to the Leipzig Spring Fair began in East Berlin Saturday night when Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Pervukhin began talks on a separate East German peace treaty.

The East German ADN News Agency reported Pervukhin met with East German Premier Otto Grotewohl and Communist Party Chief Walter Ulbricht on "questions connected with Soviet proposals for conclusion of a German peace treaty and liquidation of the occupation regime in East Berlin." There were no further details.

JOHN PEOPLES is a retired Coast Guardsman. When he and Mrs. Peoples think the radio next door is too loud, or are disturbed by noisy parties, they move.

It's easy. They just pull up the anchor of their 42-foot sailing ship and go off to elsewhere: Bimini, St. Thomas, Sarasota, Mobile. It's their home: no grass to mow, shrubs to be eaten by parasites, property taxes 'n such.

They figure the ship cost them about $16,000. They pay about $500 a year for dock rental, which includes an electric plug-in. At sea they generate the light energy, cook with gas.

"Our friends say we're crazy — too old," Peoples says. "But we love it, so why give it up. We bought an apartment house in Coconut Grove. Right away we got tabbed for a $500 street repair bill. We sold out right then. Miami's home. We spend four or five months a year there."

Cancer Feud

W. L. Philbrick has brought Cancer Institute at Miami into a boiling mess, with several charges hurled at Dr. J. Ernest Ayre, director of the Institute. One was that Dr. Ayre accepted cytology slides submitted by osteopathic physicians. Following his blasts, acceptance of those slides was stopped.

Says Dr. Robert P. Keiser, president of Dade County Medical Association, writing in The Bulletin, DCMA monthly: "It is the firm conviction of your president that our association's present attitude is untenable no matter how you embelish or rationalize it. We are recommending that a certain group of patients . . . be deprived of having cytological diagnostic studies performed at a medical institution supported by public donations and a community welfare fund.

"The executive committee of DCMA submitted its recommendations . . . It in no way condones the practice (osteopathy) nor does it advocate consorting, consulting or communicating with others of the healing arts than medical doctors. It merely gives every individual the opportunity to use the Institute for cancer cytology diagnosis."

Dr. Keiser was approving a resolution of the executive committee, which with but one dissenting note approved a resolution which said: "It is our opinion that in the best interests of the general public, the Cancer Institute should not show prejudice against any segment of our patient community by depriving them of an available source to obtain such examinations."

'Public Is Misled'

nickel to that and you'd have the three billion needed for this coming year.

"I asked Wernher von Braun two questions: First, 'when must we start new thinking and make new decisions if we are to remain a great power?' He answered, 'right now.' Then I asked him, 'if we don't do this, when will the position of the U.S. become hopeless?' He answered, 'in about a decade.'

"For this and other reasons, I persuaded Lyndon Johnson to put all the defense department witnesses under oath before they answered our questions. We've got to have the truth at this critical hour."

The truth, Symington says, is capsuled in the following. It is a compilation of his many charges that the will of Congress is being thwarted on defense:

— Congress appropriated 90 million dollars addition to expedite work on the Minuteman ICBM, of which he has said, "no more important new weapon is scheduled." Not one cent of that money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 48 million dollars additional for the Hound Dog missile, an air-to-ground jet-propelled unit designed to be hurled against defense installations several hundred miles ahead of advancing B52Gs. Not one cent of this money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 140 million dollars to give the Army more mobility. Not one cent of this has been used, or is scheduled to be used, in the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 609 million dollars more to expand the Polaris-submarine program from five such weapons systems to nine. The administration has allocated some of this money for one additional submarine. There is no plan to use the rest of this money during the present fiscal year.

— Money appropriated by Congress for the personnel strength of the Marine Corps was either frozen, or used for purposes not specified by the Congress.

"Fifty-eight per cent of that billion, three hundred million extra we gave to defense this year has been frozen," Symington asserts.

Symington and others were alarmed to learn from the testimony of Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of SAC, that he cannot keep his intercontinental bombers on air alert, that is, keep a certain portion of the SAC strength airborne around the clock, because of the expense involved. It was supposed by many (including Khrushchev) that SAC kept at least a third of its strength airborne and bomb-laden.

In the wake of that testimony, Symington issued this statement:

"If the Soviets have a superiority in ICBMs two to three years hence, they can use that portion of those missiles needed to destroy our ICBMs, and they can use the remainder against as much of our Strategic Air Command as is not airborne at that time.

"Since there will be no warning of this attack, only those SAC bombers which are airborne at that time can be relied upon for effective retaliation.

"If the Soviets have a significant ICBM superiority two to three years hence, as testified, they can in a matter of moments destroy our missile force and the SAC-manned bomber force not in the air at that time. If at that time, as is currently the case, none of our SAC bombers is on airborne alert, the simple conclusion is that with a significant missile superiority the Russians could wipe out our entire manned and unmanned retaliatory force.

"The most useful addition to the current budget would be whatever is required to keep a significant number of our SAC bombers airborne throughout the perilous next two or three years — and be sure the Soviets are appraised of this retaliatory capability in the air.

"Obviously, too, we should have more ICBMs sooner, and also they should be dispersed and these bases hardened as quickly as possible."

Symington is critical of many Defense Department investments.

"We've spent six billion dollars on the Nike program," he points out. "But we built these short-range rocket bases around the cities. Retaliation against Russia isn't going to come from cities. It's going to come from air bases. The Nike installations should be around air bases. For instance, there is no defense against submarine-launched missile attacks against, let's say, the site of our first proposed Atlas base at Camp Cook, Calif.

"When I asked the Defense Department why it spent all that money protecting cities the answer I got was 'we don't know. Probably for the psychological effect.' We could have bought more psychological effect if we had put that money in the Voice of America."

He believes the whole matter of security can be summed up in a three-point list:

1—The U.S. wants a just and lasting peace.

2—The best way to get it is through puncture-proof inspection of nuclear arms-making potentialities.

3—We have a better chance of getting peace if we can negotiate from a position of relative strength, not weakness.

'Gag Line' Leads Cars Off Highway

MODENA, Italy — (UPI) — Police Sunday sought the unfunny pranksters who repainted the center dividing line on the main highway here and caused at least 15 automobiles to go off the road into the bushes.

No injuries were reported since all the cars were traveling at slow speed because of fog. The accidents came after dark.

The pranksters also changed direction signs at several crossroads, sending many motorists the wrong way.

But the most dangerous "prank" was the misdirected center-line strip, which motorists must use as a guide at night, particularly in fog.

Unknown persons blacked out the center strip on a curve of highway 12 which leads north to the Brenner Pass.

Then a new white line was painted in, leading gradually off the highway into the bushes.

Quake Recorded On Fordham Gauges

NEW YORK —(AP)— A fairly severe earthquake was recorded by Fordham University seismologists Sunday some 9,800 miles from here. The quake was probably in the Banda Sea southwest of New Guinea, the university said.

National Summary

A frontal system extended from New York southward through Georgia Sunday resulting in occasional snow mixed with rain over the Appalachians and into the Ohio Valley during mid-day. Rain fell over the Atlantic states with significant amounts in North Carolina, where Hatteras reported 1.70 inches in 24 hours. Temperatures in the eastern states ranged from the 30s and 40s in New England to the 50s in Virginia and the 60s in Florida.

A disturbance over the Northwest produced rain and snow showers accompanied by gusty winds over the northern Rockies where Cutbank, Mont. reported gusts to 68 mph. Occasional rain with periods of sunshine prevailed over the Pacific Northwest.

High pressure areas centered over Texas and Utah were associated with general rain through the southwest. Temperatures in the central portion of th country ranged from the 30s and 40s in the northern border states to the 60s in Texas with Rapid City, S.D., one of the warmer stations where 62 was reached during the morning. Readings in the western states ranged from near 50 in Washington to the 70s in Southern California.

Hollywood Is Humming

To the Tune of 'Stability'

By STAN JOHNSON
Herald Business Writer

MORE GOLD

OUR GOLD COAST

HOLLYWOOD — Businessmen here are predicting that Hollywood will make some of its greatest commercial gains this year and next.

Their optimism isn't due to a sudden spurt of sales, but to a long-range forecast based on recent events.

Some of the straws in wind:

LANDLORDS along newly-renovated Hollywood Blvd. are getting inquiries from some big national chain stores about space availability and rates.

SEARS ROEBUCK & CO. has decided to open an appliance store in Hollywood, and is negotiating with Dave Keating, a local builder, for a 6,000-square-foot building in the 2400 block of Hollywood Blvd.

NEW BUSINESSES are opening at a rapid rate. The city clerk's office has sold 3,897 business licenses in the first five months of the current fiscal year. That's 50 per cent more than were sold in all of 1954-55.

NEW HOMES in the $15,000 to $45,000 price range are being sold almost as fast as they are built in the next two years, present commitments indicate.

BANK DEPOSITS and debits are at an all-time high.

PER CAPITA INCOME, consistently the highest in Broward County, has reached $1,978, well above the $1,733 average for all of Broward County.

UNEMPLOYMENT has fallen off as a result of increased construction and manufacturing activity.

Businessmen are taking these signs collectively as an indication that business is bound to improve.

Right now, merchants say their retail sales are better than they were last year, but slightly lower than they were during the 1957-58 season.

"We're getting plenty of customers, but they seem to be buying less expensive merchandise," said Lew Cohen, manager of a men's clothing store.

Louis Dermer, a partner in the Town Drug Store, says his business has doubled in the two years since it opened.

He thinks 1960 will be the biggest business year in Hollywood's history.

There have been rumors lately that a large department store will take over the old Town House Hotel facing Young Circle, but they are apparently based on wishful thinking instead of facts.

The new Sears Roebuck store, when it is built, will be the first Hollywood outlet of a nationwide department store chain.

Keating said the company hopes to expand the store to 30,000 square feet in three years, if sales volume justifies the move.

But S. Broward Has Classroom Cramps

Look Again, They'll Build Another School

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Take a good look around South Broward. If you don't see a new school project or one in the works in your area, there'll probably be one soon.

"And like the rest of the county, all this building or planned construction still won't house all the children expected in the next few years," says Charles Lowery, school planner.

"We'll still have to use portables and double sessions."

South Broward got another high school last September when McArthur High was opened. Work is underway on a 10-classroom addition to South Broward High and another 10 rooms are planned there for sometime next year.

AT OLSEN Junior High, Dania, 12 classrooms, two art rooms and cafetorium are being added.

West of Hallandale, a 15-classroom and library addition has just been completed at Watkins Elementary.

New plants recently occupied are Collins Elementary in Dania and Carver Ranches Elementary in West Hollywood.

Before the hammering and sawing dies down on present work, new jobs will be started.

Last week a contract was let for a 24-classroom Oak Ridge Elementary in Hollywood. And in the next week to a month bids will be received on four additions:

1. COLBERT ELEMENTARY in Hollywood—library, cafetorium and five classrooms.
2. HALLANDALE ELEMENTARY—Library, cafetorium, eight classrooms.
3. HOLLYWOOD HILLS—10 classrooms, cafetorium, library to be converted from existing classrooms.
4. DAVIE ELEMENTARY—six classrooms, cafetorium.

In addition to all this, there are other facilities in the planning stage, Lowery said.

"THE BOARD has asked the state to sell bonds for construction of Perry Junior High in Miramar. We hope to open this school next fall with a capacity for 1,000 students."

Also planned are Driftwood Elementary, 24 classrooms, and an addition of 13 classrooms, library and cafetorium to West Hollywood Elementary.

"Next summer we plan to start building additions to Attucks Elementary and High and Lanier Junior High, but the size of the additions has not been decided," he said.

Gaming 'Fix' Isn't Likely

THERE'S SOME fear, apparently, of a return to the old "liberal" policy toward gambling in the north end of the county. One story says that a Las Vegas outfit already is set to move in.

However, Ben Grigsby, the chief criminal investigator for Sheriff Quill Lloyd, makes this point: No gambling ring could operate with purely local protection. It would have to also fix the sheriff's department — which has shown that it can't be fixed.

Grigsby also believes that no syndicate would try to move in with a full-scale gambling operation unless it had absolute assurance that there would be no interference. The cost of setting up is too great.

A Good Word to the Wise

No Handout for Sunrise

BACKERS OF the Sunrise Junior High swimming pool project have their fingers crossed while they wait for the bids on it to be opened by the city commission Tuesday.

The city is being counted on to put up part of the cost. The backers hope that when the commissioners take it up for consideration, they'll keep in mind that the people of the school area aren't simply seeking something for nothing. They backed up the project with their own funds; some 730 persons contributed $5 or more.

Dope on Retirement Handy

THE LOCAL Social Security office has a new pamphlet on the SS amendments of 1958 which it is anxious to get into the hands of all those interested. It outlines the worker's benefit rights and protections under the law, and even for anyone not contemplating retirement any time soon it should be handy to have in the house . . . The Beach Kiwanis Club plans to send a bus to the Hollywood Beach Hotel March 8 and bring conventioning members of the National Association of Manufacturers here to see the Trade Fair . . . Logan Brown, who's been here for about 35 years, says there are more tourists in town than he's ever seen before. Some beach places are having to turn down reservations for March . . . City Commissioner Ed Johns says the talk about him running for the county commission next year "is news to me."

Courtesy Gets Contagious

COURTESY, Ted Huss says, can be catching.

Driving east on Sunrise Blvd. the other day, he slowed to let a car come out of Sunrise Shopping Center. The driver of that car, in turn, slowed to let another driver into line at the next intersection.

There is hardly an act that can make a driver feel as good in this traffic-mad world as to yield a little in order to let him out of a driveway, a crossroad, or a parking space.

All in all, it happens with gratifying frequency. The drivers who come out of the northwest section in the morning, going east across N. Andrews Ave. at Sixth St., seem particularly good about it.

Near Pompano

Laborer Shoots 2 In Brawl

By ERWIN POTTS
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A frightened Puerto Rican farm laborer shot two of his labor camp buddies, killing one and critically wounding the other, in a bloody brawl near Pompano early Sunday.

Sheriff's Deputy Montie Smith said Antonio Bonillas Cruz, 32, shot and killed Antonio Pagan-Neives, 23, then critically wounded Pedro Duren, 24, after the two broke into Cruz's room at Hogan's labor camp and tried to take $50 from him.

Smith said Cruz is being held for investigation of homicide, but added, "it appears to be justifiable homicide."

Smith said an eye-witness to the shooting, Cruz's roommate Andre Rodrigues, 27, said the two men came to Cruz's door after midnight and pounded on it, demanding to be let in.

According to Rodrigues, Cruz refused to open the door and Pagan-Neives and Duren broke it open, then began using the splintered wood to beat Cruz.

Rodrigues said Cruz then produced a .22 caliber pistol and shot both men in the head. Pagan-Neives died instantly. Duren was in critical condition at Provident Hospital late Sunday.

Rodrigues told police that the two men had been trying to borrow money from Cruz since noon Saturday.

Hogan's is a farm labor camp located just west of the turnpike and north of Hammondville Rd.

Police said Cruz turned himself in after the shooting.

Legislators Hope for Quick Decision

Last Resort Bill May Erupt Early

Governor's Veto Seen Ineffective

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Things are building up for the integration battle to erupt the opening day of the 1959 Legislature, and most everyone hopes it will be over quickly.

It appears now that the two bills which will stir up the most talk will be tossed in at the legislative opening April 7—the last resort school closing bill and the parent option tuition plan.

Both these proposals stand a good chance of final passage, whether or not Gov. LeRoy Collins accepts them. The governor hasn't said how he stands on parent option but has indicated rather clearly he still opposes the last resort proposal he vetoed in 1957.

Also in prospect are bills designed to strengthen the pupil assignment law and one even stronger than the "last resort" bill which conceivably could shut down all public schools if necessary to head off integration. The latter proposal, if introduced, would encounter strong opposition from friends of the public school.

Legislators are doing a lot of talking now about new legislation to strengthen Florida's hand in the fight to block integration, and likely it'll carry into the early days of the session.

But many of the lawmakers say privately that they hope the issues can be decided conclusively in the first two weeks so that other business of the legislature won't be gummed up.

These legislators, and state officials as well, are fearful that if the legislature should get into a prolonged battle over this highly emotional subject, other important work of the session would be buried in a sea of bitterness.

House Speaker Designate Thomas D. Beasley said the agitation for stronger legislation in the racial field was fired up by recent action of the Dade County School Board in admitting four Negroes to a white elementary school in Miami next September.

Framers of the anti-integration "manifesto" signed by more than a score of legislators said the action was prompted by the Dade decision.

A "last resort" bill already has been prepared by the attorney general's office for introduction by Rep. J. W. McAlpin of Hamilton County. A similar bill likely will be put into the Senate opening day also.

Unlovely Model A Matures As Belle of Old Car Lovers

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Model A Ford, passed by 26 years ago as an unlovely creature, is making a comeback hereabouts.

Used car lot managers say they'd like to get their hands on them. The few people who own Model A's in running condition value them at up to three times their original cost.

James L. Dial, 1104 NW Third Ave., who owns two roadsters, a 1929 and a 1931, says he frequently gets offers for them.

"I wouldn't take $2,000 for my 1929 roadster," he said. Thirty years ago it cost about $600.

It took him months to find it. He knew what he wanted — a yellow roadster exactly like the one in which he courted his wife and which they drove after they were married.

He made inquiries as he drove last summer from Fort Lauderdale to Buffalo, N.Y., with no success. On his way back he found it in Virginia.

Even though it wasn't in running condition, he had to pay $275. He towed it back to Fort Lauderdale and set about reconditioning it.

The sheet metal is far heavier than that used in today's cars and, although rusted in spots, it was still thick and strong. He sandblasted the undersides of the fenders and painted them himself.

The frame was in excellent condition. For the weight of the car (less than 2,000 pounds), the frame was heavier than those in new cars.

The springs and shock absorbers were still good. It was hard to tell what the mileage was. The engine required little work.

He had a new top and new plastic upholstery made. The car looks practically new and runs like a new car.

"They're 'one of the best cars ever built,'" said Dial. "They were only made for four years, but you still see more of them than you do any other prewar car."

His 1929 will do 65 miles an hour and run all day at 55 to 60 without overheating. It gets 20 to 30 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

"People every few days are asking me where they can pick one up," he said. "If Ford had continued to build something similar, the foreign car market wouldn't be so large."

Because of his sentimental attachment for the 1929 car, he has lavished most of his attention on it. He expects to get around to doing as much for his 1931.

Harke said Baino has tentative plans to cast Hoover as a member of an Everglades riverboat family in a film series.

THE DEAD body of a 12-year-old mentally retarded Fort Lauderdale youth was found hanging from a bathroom shower curtain rod by his horrified 11-year-old sister Saturday.

The boy, Edward Zeek, was at the Schulten School for Mentally Retarded, 2914 Poinsettia St. Another mental patient found the boy hanging from the rod, thought he was playing a joke, and called the boy's sister, who is also a patient.

Det. Sgt. John Boyd said it appeared the boy had "playfully" looped the belt over the rod, then stuck his head through, and slipped.

Is Letter Sports? Egghead?

Reprinted from late Sunday editions

The "eggheads" are wearing "letters" just like the football players do.

The "Civinettes," a girls' student organization, came up with the idea of awarding letters to the scholars and presented them to 29 of the brainy girls and boys.

To qualify for an academic letter a student must maintain an "A" average, with no more than a single "B," through two consecutive semesters.

Meantime, State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey reported the rooting section for the scholars is growing rapidly.

He said the Florida program of rewarding top students by some form of public recognition has caught on nationally.

Bailey wrote the high school principal that Florida Jaycees, for the third year, will present certificates of commendation to every straight "A" student and to every student who makes his school's honor roll.

Last year, the Junior Chamber of Commerce passed out 21,000 honor roll and 5,000 straight "A" certificates.

Bailey long has urged scholarship be given the same recognition as athletic ability. He said his mail indicates the program is stimulating scholarship.

"With the new emphasis being placed upon education since the launching of the Soviet satellite, the wisdom of this program is now even more apparent," he said.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠AQ94 ♥A106 ♦5 ♣AJ1095

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
1♠	Pass	3♥	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five hearts. A mere raise to four hearts would not be adequate. Up to this point you have not indicated that you have a hand of over minimum values. The sequence, one club, one heart, one spade, may be made on a rock bottom minimum. When partner jumps you should do more than make a forced raise. With two hearts and two diamonds, four hearts would be the proper call. The recommended sequence describes a singleton in the fourth suit.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥AQJ4 ♦KQJ107 ♣5

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. The appropriate way to show the strength of this hand is not by a reverse bid of three hearts or a jump bid in diamonds, both of which shows a strong hand, but both of which might not allow for the possibility that your partner might have a spade suit.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠AQJ64 ♥K92 ♦AK4 ♣K5

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite partner's previous pass, the prospects for a slam are extremely bright. It is almost inconceivable that partner is aceless, but if you have any qualms you may try it out with Blackwood, or at least bid four diamonds to observe partner's reactions. For a mere bid of four spades, a glaring demerit is in order.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠J109742 ♥1083 ♦A4 ♣Q6

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. Your hand has assumed great proportions now that partner has made a take-out-double at the level of three. A bid of only three spades would indicate a forced response and would almost surely be passed by partner.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠KQJ5 ♥AQ ♦K10987 ♣94

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	1♥	2♣

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. This is perhaps a shade light for a reverse bid but we consider it proper procedure in order to guard against being shut out of the spade suit. Partner should realize that you opened with one diamond in anticipation of rebidding one spade over a possible heart response and developments have put you in position where you must make a slightly aggressive bid.

Q. 6—With 60 part score your partner opens one club. You hold:
♠K64 ♥KQJ105 ♦AK63 ♣7

What is your response?

A.—One heart. A jump shift is not recommended at this point. It is better to get in one free round of bidding which may permit a better basis for the decision on the next round. True enough, a jump shift would be forcing tho it completes the game. Nevertheless, with a partner of uncertain quality, the safer procedure is to bid one heart which even the most timid player will not pass.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠KJ[illegible]3 ♥87 ♦K3 ♣KQ65

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East

What do you bid now?

A.—One spade. The jump shift is not indicated tho you passed an optional opening. If partner has some shaded third hand opening with nothing in spades, you do not wish to apply the pressure. If he has a sound hand he will bid again and then will come your try for game.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠95 ♥932 ♦AJ4 ♣AK976

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. This is not intended as an ace showing bid. Actually we are deliberately deceiving partner into believing we have a diamond suit so that he might contract for game in no trump if he holds the protection in hearts. Since we have the equivalent of an opening bid and partner has opened, there should be a game.

New Fear Descends On Arabs

By GEORGE WELLER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WELLER

NICOSIA — Israel's gathering in of Romanian Jews has confronted the troubled Arabs with the same strange East-West lineup "against Arab Palestine" as at Israel's birth 10 years ago.

Once again Communist bureaucrats, Israel statesmen and American Zionists are oddly harnessed together in a collective effort that alarms the Arab world. The Arabs see the chances of 1,000,000 Arab refugees' recovering their homes dwindling.

Above this immediate flood of Romanian Jews hangs another huge thundercloud of Russia's three million Jews. Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion has stated Israel's capacity to receive this exact number.

United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser has clutched at Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's promise not to let Ben-Gurion's people go. Nasser said Russia itself had called such Arab fears "fictitious and an imperialist intrigue."

So far Russia has used only water-drop torture on the Arabs, having released about 50,000 Polish and Soviet Jews in the Suez invasion year, 1956, when the Arabs hardly noticed.

Pill-Packing 'Bomber' Is Released

HOUSTON, Tex. — (UPI) — Authorities turned loose a pill-packing ex-convict who threatened to blow up Houston's main post-office if a clerk didn't hand over $1,000.

Clifford Bottomfield, 49, said the threat was part of a plan to get medical attention "one way or another" for his asthma and heart trouble.

He carried no bomb with him. All he had in his pockets were bottles of pills, cough drops, gargles and patent medicines.

Authorities declined to press charges after Bottomfield told them he had no intention of blowing up the post office.

Bottomfield said he has been in prison five times and thought he might get medical care if he was sent back.

Symington Speaks

Our Defenses Are Obsolete, Says Senator

How effective against Soviet attack are the Nike missile bases that surround many American cities? Is the Strategic Air Command still the "great deterrent" it was considered only a year ago? In this second of a series on the great defense debate now under way, a leading congressional defense authority provides some eye-opening opinions on these vital questions.

By BOB CONSIDINE
Herald Columnist

Sen. Stuart Symington, the Missouri Democrat who served President Truman as secretary for air, charges that the Eisenhower administration is not telling the public the truth about our military weaknesses.

CONSIDINE

"When Charlie Wilson was secretary of defense he assured America that we were ahead of the Russians in rocket development, though he knew from intelligence reports that radar installations in Turkey had picked up hundreds of Russian missiles being tested," Symington told this reporter.

"Vice President Nixon told a hand-picked group of Washington correspondents not long ago that we're 'closing the gap.' We're doing no such thing. Mr. McElroy (the defense secretary), speaking for the Defense Department and the administration, now tells us that the Russians will soon have a 3-to-1 edge on us in ICBMs. The administration's own people can't get together on their stories."

Symington, who has been mentioned as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1960, feels that the Eisenhower administration has consistently underestimated Soviet technology.

"Its position seems to be that Russia isn't worth a damn as a military power, so we can afford to yield quantitative superiority because we've got the qualitative edge. All I know is that they're out-producing us in big missiles, have hundreds more submarines than we have, and that the Russian Academy of Sciences was flourishing 50 years before the Declaration of Independence."

He Doubts SAC's Stature

Symington was instrumental in the formation of the Strategic Air Command in 1946. Now he has his doubts about its stature as a deterrent.

"Any effort by SAC today to move against Russia in retaliation would be a kind of reverse of Pearl Harbor. Russia would be the most alerted country in history. They've unquestionably got all types of anti-aircraft guided and homing missiles. They've got thousands of supersonic fighters. SAC has only one type of supersonic bomber, the B58, and darn few of them.

"In time, the B58 will stage out the B47 as our medium bomber. But that will take a long time. B47s make up 75 per cent of SAC's strength, which means that we're depending on a retaliatory air arm that is 75 per cent obsolescent.

"Naval air couldn't help us. The carrier is not a retaliatory weapon. That would leave retaliation up to our ICBMs and the 1,500-mile-range missiles, the Thor and the Jupiter, that we're trying to get our NATO allies to install. So far, only England has accepted any."

The senator is particularly vexed about the American ICBMs.

"Mr. McElroy's position seems to be that we can safely permit the Russians to take a 3-1 lead in intercontinental missiles because we've got an Air Force that is 75 per cent obsolescent and we've got the Polaris — which actually we haven't got. I don't get it.

SYMINGTON

"First he promised that we'd have our first ICBM squadron — that's 10 missiles — in place at Camp Cook, Calif., by July 1 of this year. Then he said, in effect, 'Oops, I mean January 1, 1960.'

"We could more than double our production of Atlas ICBMs with the same floor space now in being. All that would be needed is more tooling. It would be something for the Russians to think about. But the word has gone out to cut, and it's imperiling the security of the nation.

"The administration is asking Congress for 200 million dollars less than last year, and wants to spend 600 million less on missiles. That reminds me of something Bernie Baruch likes to say: 'What's the use of being the richest man in the graveyard?'

"The Air Force must try to replace more than 1,000 B47s with less than 100 B58s. There's a critical shortage of KC135 jet tankers. Congress pressed 1.3 billion dollars in additional funds on the Defense Department last year, after hearing a lot of dire testimony. But defense used only 34 per cent of the money. An additional eight per cent was used for different reasons than what we had intended it to be used for."

Symington agrees with the Rockefeller brothers report which urged that a total of 18 billion additional dollars must be spent in the Defense Department over the next three years — three billion in 1960, six billion in 1961 and nine billion in 1962.

"That wouldn't be any hardship on the country," he insisted to us. "We've figured out that the security of the U.S. cost each American 60 cents a day. Add just a

Space Rocket Hunted

Still No Trace Of Discoverer

They checked reports from widely scattered tracking stations in an attempt to find out if it attained orbit.

Launching of the 78-foot rocket went off without apparent hitch. But tracking stations have failed to pick up signals expected if the Discoverer passed over in polar orbit about the earth.

An Air Force spokesman said the rocket "reached the right point at the right speed where it should have entered orbit."

What might have been the final contact with the Discoverer was picked up Saturday night by a Navy ship 900 miles south of the launching site on the rocket's prescribed route. The signals were faint.

In Washington, Rear Adm. John E. Clark, deputy director of the Advanced Research Project Agency, said this could indicate trouble with the Discoverer's broadcasting equipment.

If the Discoverer failed to enter its prescribed orbit, it could have gone into an off-course orbit or fallen back into the earth's atmosphere and burned up.

The Discoverer — weighing 1,300 pounds and 19 feet long and 5 feet wide — carried 40 pounds of instruments to send back space information. This was the first attempt to put a satellite into north-south polar orbit. Satellites launched previously from Cape Canaveral, Fla., have orbited close to the equator.

Discoverer was the first of a series of shots from Vandenberg intended to learn means of safely sending man into space.

Sun Shot Poised at Canaveral

CAPE CANAVERAL —(AP)— A breakup in the cold front over Central Florida cleared the way Sunday for the Army's effort to blast a satellite past the moon and into orbit around the sun.

"It looks good," an Army missile man commented when the heavy soup which had enveloped the Cape for several days began clearing away gradually.

Lights flashed around the tall tower housing the moon rocket as the firing crew worked over it, making sure that it would be mechanically ready when the go ahead came from the weather man.

The time is right for the shoot and it could come at any time.

Saturday — the first day of a six-day period in which the moon floats in closest proximity to the earth, 221,000 miles away — passed without any attempt to get the lunar probe rocket away.

The missile test center was entirely hidden by dense, low-hanging overcast and at intervals the Cape was drenched by cold heavy rain.

Concern Mounting Over Berlin Crisis

Foreign Aid Waste Uncovered

Congressmen Record Abuses

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A congressional committee has found new evidence of stealing and waste in the foreign military assistance program.

The committee found one motor pool in a friendly foreign nation where enough tires were supplied by the U.S. to make 44 tires available in one year for every truck in the pool.

The committee also found evidence that foreign military brass diverted aircraft materiel supplied by the U.S. to manufacture planes for their own personal use.

The committee also learned of apartment houses erected in foreign lands with material and equipment supplied by the U.S. for military construction.

"The scarcity of consumer goods and the low pay scales of military and civil service personnel (in foreign nations) provided an incentive for stealing of U.S. military supplies," said a report of a House foreign affairs subcommittee headed by Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D., Pa.).

These broad hints of larceny and waste are all the taxpayers of the U.S. can get at this time, because of the usual blanket of official secrecy that has been thrown over the military assistance program by the Pentagon and the Department of State.

Rep. Morgan's subcommittee has held hearings and made a record of the skulduggery aboard, but the Defense and State Departments have bottled up the details, for two reasons.

"First," the committee report states, "many of the events described reflect unfavorably on officials or policies of allied nations.

"Second, publication of full details would provide the Communists with material which would be used to create dissension among our allies."

The subcommittee wistfully admits that if it called a thief a thief, it might create "internal dissension in allied nations," or even bring about a "refusal to cooperate," which would make it more difficult for the U.S. to help defend our client nations.

While unwilling itself to get down to cases and identify thieves among the recipients of military aid, the subcommittee says plaintively:

"It appears that the U.S. has been slow in taking action to prevent pilferage and diversion and that a sufficiently high priority has not yet been given to getting the situation under control."

Luxury Liner Constitution Rips Bow Off Tanker in Fog

NEW YORK —(UPI)— The American luxury liner Constitution, carrying only a skeleton crew of 110, sheared the bow off a tanker in a dense Atlantic fog 22 miles from the foot of Broadway Sunday. Officials immediately sought to determine whether the ships' radarscopes were working when the collision occurred.

There were no reports of deaths or injuries in the collision, which might have inflicted casualties had the 25-million-dollar, 23,719-ton Constitution been carrying her capacity of 1,100 passengers.

The accident happened at about 10:40 a.m. about five miles off Ambrose Lightship, the famous shipping beacon at the mouth of New York harbor.

Both the Constitution and the 539-foot-long Norwegian tanker Jalanta remained afloat after the crash, but a 120-foot section of the tanker's bow was set adrift and menaced other navigation in the area until a tugboat took it in tow.

The Constitution was unable to drop anchor because of damage to her bow. She circled the tanker, carrying a crew of 40, while a small fleet of tugboats and Coast Guard vessels nosed gently through the fog to shepherd both damaged vessels to a Brooklyn repair yard.

The American Export Line's Constitution was groping through the pea soup fog toward New York, after undergoing multi-million-dollar alterations at Newport News, Va., in preparation for a bumper spring and summer trans-Atlantic tour season.

The 12,228-ton Jalanta was headed south from New York for Venezuela to pick up a cargo of oil.

Both vessels were radar equipped. The Jalanta was built in Kiel, Germany, in 1952. The Constitution was constructed at the Bethlehem shipbuilding yards at Quincy, Mass., incorporating all the latest safety devices. She made her maiden voyage in June, 1951.

The radar issue was raised also in the 1956 collision of the liners Stockholm and Andrea Doria, which sank the Andrea Doria with a loss of 55 lives.

First word of Sunday's accident came when the Constitution radioed at 10:53 a.m.: "We have collided with a tanker five miles southeast of Ambrose Light vessel. Request Coast Guard assistance immediately. We are in dense fog."

Severed Cable Is Back in Use

MONTREAL —(UPI)— Full service was restored Sunday on the transatlantic telephone cable that was severed mysteriously Feb. 21, resulting in the boarding of a Russian trawler by the U.S. Navy.

It took crews working around the clock just under eight days to complete the splicing of the cable about 190 miles east of Clarenville, Newfoundland. Four Western Union telegraph cables were still to be repaired.

Surprised at Reaction

'Just Electioneering,' Says Nikita of Blast

MOSCOW — (AP) — Premier Nikita Khrushchev has advised a foreign ambassador here it was a real toothache, and not diplomatic illness, that kept him from flying with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to Kiev last Wednesday.

The ambassador, who asked not to be identified by name, said in an interview Sunday he had asked Khrushchev point blank whether it was a diplomatic illness in view of reported coolness between the two government chiefs. He quoted Khrushchev as replying:

"No, Mr. Macmillan and I were joking about my ailing tooth before he left for Kiev. I told him premiers must have good teeth and Mr. Macmillan answered: 'I think sometimes your teeth are a little too sharp for us.'"

Khrushchev was pictured as surprised at the world reaction to his tough speech at the Kremlin last Tuesday. He had rapped the West on Berlin and other issues in addressing committees of his district in preparation for an election. A new parliament for the Russian federation, the largest of the Soviet Union's 15 republics, will be chosen.

"It was only an electioneering speech," the envoy quoted the premier as saying. "I doubt it has been suggested that I should not have made the speech until Mr. Macmillan left.

"But the election was to be Sunday, before he left, and I owed it to my voters to explain what is happening.

"That is all I did."

The ambassador said Khrushchev also told him he still is not pessimistic about his talks with Macmillan and he insists there must be a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the Western occupation of West Berlin. He is for a peaceful settlement of the German question.

Talks resume today after Macmillan returns from Leningrad.

A lavish Kremlin reception for the British delegation and a TV appearance by Macmillan are on schedule later today.

Senators Ask Ike For Action

'Spur of Moment' Move Is Feared

By Herald Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Congressional concern mounted Sunday over the possibility Russia may go to war over Berlin.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) voiced fear Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev might "do something on the spur of the moment" that would ignite a conflict.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.) urged President Eisenhower to call up four or five additional divisions as a "diplomatic signal to the Soviets that we mean business" in the Berlin crisis.

Jackson said the President has the authority to call up additional troops and the mobilization now of four or five Army or National Guard divisions might prevent a "national catastrophe."

Mansfield, assistant majority leader of the Senate, said Khrushchev would not start a war deliberately although he said it is "always possible" he might risk one.

Interviewed on a recorded radio program (Reporters' Roundup) Mansfield said "I think he (Khrushchev) cannot be trusted not to do something on the spur of the moment" that would start a shooting war.

Jackson advanced his proposal as Chairman Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the U.S. would be finished as "the other great power in the world" if the West abandoned Berlin.

The outpouring of statements underscored an increasingly obvious fact — that senators of both parties regard Russia's plan to give East Germany control over access routes to Berlin on May 27 as one of the gravest threats to peace since World War II.

In Leningrad, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan expressed belief his talks with Soviet leaders, though yielding no immediate results, "will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

"I say that these discussions must lie ahead because I firmly believe that the dangerous situation with which we may be faced cannot be resolved without negotiation," Macmillan declared.

The British leader spoke at a formal dinner given by Leningrad's Mayor N. I. Smirnov. He returns to Moscow by train

Australian Critics Fail to Cut Attendance at Graham Services

MELBOURNE, Australia — (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham attracted another huge crowd Sunday despite criticism in some Anglican church circles and a "Billy Go Home" headline in a small news magazine.

More than 52,000 persons crowded into Sidney Myer Music Bowl Sunday to hear Graham's sermon about the danger of the world being destroyed by atomic war.

GRAHAM

The North Carolina Baptist minister has preached to record crowds every day since his five-month Australian Crusade for Christ began here Feb. 15.

Crusade officials reported that more than 10,000 persons have made "Decisions for Christ" at the Melbourne meetings.

Despite these successes, however, there have been some rumblings of disapproval.

"News Day," a new weekly magazine with a small circulation published in the Sydney suburb of Ashfield, carried in its first issue a Graham story headlined "Billy Go Home."

"Billy Graham, the self-appointed heavenly huckster, should pack his carpetbag and go straight back home," News Day said. "Australia has got on pretty well so far without Graham's particular brand of religious emotionalism and his specialized method of selling religion.

"Thoughtful Australians will be horrified by the near blasphemy of his attitude. The voice of God doesn't come bellowing from a loudspeaker."

The magazine said Graham was obviously sincere but his methods were out of place in Australia. Officials of the Graham crusade "team" Sunday dismissed the article as "unworthy of comment."

Another criticism came from the Anglican archbishop of Coulburn and Canberra, Dr. E. H. Burgmann. In his Diocesan magazine, The Southern Churchman, Dr. Burgmann wrote:

"I cannot go along with a modern 'Fundamentalist' crusade such as is now being conducted by Billy Graham. Great crowds do not provide the the atmosphere for serious decisions involving the truths vital for meeting the strain of daily living."

2 California Hunts Drudge On For Kidnaped Baby, Missing Boy

Ex-Mental Patient Charged

By Herald Wire Services

LOS ANGELES — Two apparent kidnapings were under investigation in this area Sunday.

The FBI entered the probe of the disappearance of an eight-week-old twin boy from his home in Ontario, Calif.

In Venice, Detective Frank R. Brenna said police filed the charge against William Harris Elwell, 28, a 245-pound beach dweller. The missing boy is Wayne Murry.

WAYNE

Police said Wayne's six-year-old brother, Richard, told them:

The brothers met Elwell while playing on the beach Saturday and went to his house when he offered to give them chocolate milk. The younger boy became frightened and ran.

Richard went home and told his father, Wayne Murry Sr. They went to Elwell's house but found no one.

Police said Elwell was judged insane in 1955 after being involved in a shooting. He was treated at mental institutions and released.

In Ontario, police said Eric Leon Flores apparently was taken from his home by a babysitter.

Mrs. Ruth Flores discovered the baby missing when she returned home Friday night after being out with friends.

She told police that a woman known to her only as Ann Williams had volunteered to stay with her seven children during the evening.

Police said they have not been able to learn anything about the background of the babysitter. They said Mrs. Flores did not consider the offer to stay with the children unusual because many people have offered to help her since her husband was killed in an explosion last year.

Women Hold Future: Pope

VATICAN CITY — (AP) — Pope John XXIII said in a speech Sunday "the serenity of a family, the healthy upbringing of children, the future of the (Roman Catholic) Church and of the country rests in the hands of women."

He spoke to 3,000 members of the Italian Catholic Women's Association at a general audience in the Vatican's Hall of Benediction.

He said women should be the "watchful guardians of that very precious gift which is the family and which — we say it with tears in our heart — is threatened by so many dangers."

Old Sol's On His Way Back

March's fabled weather lion, which roared into South Florida early Sunday, will get a tranquilizing partly cloudy sun pill today, the Miami Weather Bureau forecast Sunday.

A fast-moving cold front spun off the tip of Florida after kicking up wind gusts of 31 miles an hour here. Drizzle and rain at Miami International Airport Sunday amounted to .14 of an inch.

"By Tuesday we should have sunny skies and near normal temperatures," he said.

The Federal-State Frost Warning Service in Lakeland said there would be no danger of frost today, but lows would be close to the danger point in north Florida Tuesday morning.

Behind the front, said Sugg, is a dry, cool air mass that will give south Florida north and northwesterly winds for a day or so.

He's In Beach Hospital

Hood Willie Harris Stabbed From Behind

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Stabbed in the neck and throat, Willie (Beer Bottle) Harris staggered drunkenly into St. Francis Hospital at Miami Beach early Sunday, appeared near death, then suddenly regained his strength when detectives identified him six hours later.

HARRIS

Harris is a stick-up artist who has the habit of carving up faces of people he doesn't like with broken beer bottles.

"It looks like a gangster vendetta," said Miami Beach Detective Sgt. Al Biblo. "We don't know who did it. Willie won't talk."

The wounds, possibly made with an ice pick or stiletto, were from the back.

It was at 3:32 a.m. Sunday that Harris stumbled up to the emergency room desk of Nurse Josephine Healy.

"I've been robbed," he said. "I'm drunk—very drunk. Somebody brought me here in a car and dumped me."

He told doctors he was "George Henry Berger, Brooklyn."

When detectives B. G. Miller, Ronald Minervini and Walter Sternberg arrived to check out the hospital's assault report, Harris was swathed in bandages.

They didn't know who he was at first but identification was established through scars.

Harris clammed up. He told them nothing.

Beach police figured the stabbing probably occurred elsewhere. He was ordered off the Beach a year ago, is picked up on sight there, and has been spending most of his time along motel row and in Miami.

The number of citizens — hoodlums and otherwise—who might be tired of seeing Harris are legion.

His record of robbery, burglary, assault and bookmaking stretches over 30 years. Willie is 49.

But the acquittals, the nolle prosses, the no actions stretch almost as far.

Three times he has been identified as the man who sliced up people with beer bottles. But he beat all the raps.

today for a final talk with Khrushchev.

(Responsible sources in London said Macmillan will return determined to urge President Eisenhower and French President Charles de Gaulle to join him in a summit conference with Khrushchev as the only way of removing the Soviet threat to West Berlin.)

Macmillan spoke in broad terms of his 10-day mission to Moscow after a day of seeing Leningrad's sights in grey, drizzling weather. While he toured the city, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had a 90-minute conference intended to clarify British and Soviet positions prior to the final Macmillan-Khrushchev session.

Dinner guests with Macmillan were Lloyd, Gromyko and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Anastas I. Mikoyan.

"We can only be friends in any true meaning of the word if we first know one another better," Macmillan said. "I have already had frank conversations with your leaders in Moscow."

The prime minister then referred to Mikoyan's Friday night speech at Rostov, in which Mikoyan said Macmillan had reversed the normal course of negotiations by starting with the sweet and going on to the sour.

"I see that Mr. Mikoyan had some criticism to make of the conduct of the conversations, but I was glad that he felt they were being useful," Macmillan said.

"It is very good to him to be here tonight and I look forward to further discussions with him and with the other Soviet leaders when I return to Moscow.

"I believe that these talks even though they cannot — and were not intended to — lead to any immediate solutions will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

Meanwhile, Communist East Germany Sunday celebrated the third anniversary of its 100,000-man army with military parades and simultaneously began spadework designed to force the issue of Berlin.

Preparations for Khrushchev's visit this week to the Leipzig Spring Fair began in East Berlin Saturday night when Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Pervukhin began talks on a separate East German peace treaty.

The East German ADN News Agency reported Pervukhin met with East German Premier Otto Grotewohl and Communist Party Chief Walter Ulbricht on "questions connected with Soviet proposals for conclusion of a German peace treaty and liquidation of the occupation regime in East Berlin." There were no further details.

It's easy. They just pull up the anchor of their 42-foot sailing ship and go off to elsewhere: Bimini, St. Thomas, Sarasota, Mobile. It's their home: no grass to mow, shrubs to be eaten by parasites, property taxes 'n such.

They figure the ship cost them about $16,000. They pay about $500 a year for dock rental, which includes an electric plug-in. At sea they generate the light energy, cook with gas.

"Our friends say we're crazy — too old," Peoples says. "But we love it, so why give it up. We bought an apartment house in Coconut Grove. Right away we got tabbed for a $500 street repair bill. We sold out right then. Miami's home. We spend four or five months a year there."

Cancer Feud

W. L. Philbrick has brought Cancer Institute at Miami into a boiling mess, with several charges hurled at Dr. J. Ernest Ayre, director of the Institute. One was that Dr. Ayre accepted cytology slides submitted by osteopathic physicians. Following his blasts, acceptance of those slides was stopped.

Says Dr. Robert P. Keiser, president of Dade County Medical Association, writing in The Bulletin, DCMA monthly: "It is the firm conviction of your president that our association's present attitude is untenable no matter how you embelish or rationalize it. We are recommending that a certain group of patients . . . be deprived of having cytological diagnostic studies performed at a medical institution supported by public donations and a community welfare fund.

"The executive committee of DCMA submitted its recommendations . . . It in no way condones the practice (osteopathy) nor does it advocate consorting, consulting or communicating with others of the healing arts than medical doctors. It merely gives every individual the opportunity to use the Institute for cancer cytology diagnosis."

Dr. Keiser was approving a resolution of the executive committee, which with but one dissenting note approved a resolution which said: "It is our opinion that in the best interests of the general public, the Cancer Institute should not show prejudice against any segment of our patient community by depriving them of an available source to obtain such examinations."

'Public Is Misled'

Defenses Obsolete, Says Symington

nickel to that and you'd have the three billion needed for this coming year.

"I asked Wernher von Braun two questions: First, 'when must we start new thinking and make new decisions if we are to remain a great power?' He answered, 'right now.' Then I asked him, 'if we don't do this, when will the position of the U.S. become hopeless?' He answered, 'in about a decade.'

"For this and other reasons, I persuaded Lyndon Johnson to put all the defense department witnesses under oath before they answered our questions. We've got to have the truth at this critical hour."

The truth, Symington says, is capsuled in the following. It is a compilation of his many charges that the will of Congress is being thwarted on defense:

— Congress appropriated 90 million dollars addition to expedite work on the Minuteman ICBM, of which he has said, "no more important new weapon is scheduled." Not one cent of that money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 48 million dollars additional for the Hound Dog missile, an an air-to-ground jet-propelled unit designed to be hurled against defense installations several hundred miles ahead of advancing B52Gs. Not one cent of this money has been used, or is scheduled to be used, during the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 140 million dollars to give the Army more mobility. Not one cent of this has been used, or is scheduled to be used, in the present fiscal year.

— Congress appropriated 609 million dollars more to expand the Polaris-submarine program from five such weapons systems to nine. The administration has allocated some of this money for one additional submarine. There is no plan to use the rest of this money during the present fiscal year.

— Money appropriated by Congress for the personnel strength of the Marine Corps was either frozen, or used for purposes not specified by the Congress.

"Fifty-eight per cent of that billion, three hundred million extra we gave to defense this year has been frozen," Symington asserts.

Symington and others were alarmed to learn from the testimony of Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of SAC, that he cannot keep his intercontinental bombers on air alert, that is, keep a certain portion of the SAC strength airborne around the clock, because of the expense involved. It was supposed by many (including Khrushchev) that SAC kept at least a third of its strength airborne and bomb-laden.

In the wake of that testimony, Symington issued this statement:

"If the Soviets have a superiority in ICBMs two to three years hence, they can use that portion of those missiles needed to destroy our ICBMs, and they can use the remainder against as much of our Strategic Air Command as is not airborne at that time.

"Since there will be no warning of this attack, only those SAC bombers which are airborne at that time can be relied upon for effective retaliation.

"If the Soviets have a significant ICBM superiority two to three years hence, as testified, they can in a matter of moments destroy our missile force and the SAC-manned bomber force not in the air at that time. If at that time, as is currently the case, none of our SAC bombers is on airborne alert, the simple conclusion is that with a significant missile superiority the Russians could wipe out our entire manned and unmanned retaliatory force.

"The most useful addition to the current budget would be whatever is required to keep a significant number of our SAC bombers airborne throughout the perilous next two or three years — and be sure the Soviets are appraised of this retaliatory capability in the air.

"Obviously, too, we should have more ICBMs sooner, and also they should be dispersed and these bases hardened as quickly as possible."

Symington is critical of many Defense Department investments.

"We've spent six billion dollars on the Nike program," he points out. "But we built these short-range rocket bases around the cities. Retaliation against Russia isn't going to come from cities. It's going to come from air bases. The Nike installations should be around air bases. For instance, there is no defense against submarine-launched missile attacks against, let's say, the site of our first proposed Atlas base at Camp Cook, Calif.

"When I asked the Defense Department why it spent all that money protecting cities the answer I got was 'we don't know. Probably for the psychological effect.' We could have bought more psychological effect if we had put that money in the Voice of America."

He believes the whole matter of security can be summed up in a three-point list:

1—The U.S. wants a just and lasting peace.

2—The best way to get it is through puncture-proof inspection of nuclear arms-making potentialities.

3—We have a better chance of getting peace if we can negotiate from a position of relative strength, not weakness.

'Gag Line' Leads Cars Off Highway

MODENA, Italy — (UPI) — Police Sunday sought the unfunny pranksters who repainted the center dividing line on the main highway here and caused at least 15 automobiles to go off the road into the bushes.

No injuries were reported since all the cars were traveling at slow speed because of fog. The accidents came after dark.

The pranksters also changed direction signs at several crossroads, sending many motorists the wrong way.

But the most dangerous "prank" was the misdirected center-line strip, which motorists must use as a guide at night, particularly in fog.

Unknown persons blacked out the center strip on a curve of highway 12 which leads north to the Brenner Pass.

Then a new white line was painted in, leading gradually off the highway into the bushes.

Quake Recorded On Fordham Gauges

NEW YORK —(AP)— A fairly severe earthquake was recorded by Fordham University seismologists Sunday some 9,800 miles from here. The quake was probably in the Banda Sea southwest of New Guinea, the university said.

National Summary

A frontal system extended from New York southward through Georgia Sunday resulting in occasional snow mixed with rain over the Appalachians and into the Ohio Valley during mid-day. Rain fell over the Atlantic states with significant amounts in North Carolina, where Hatteras reported 1.70 inches in 24 hours. Temperatures in the eastern states ranged from the 30s and 40s in New England to the 50s in Virginia and the 60s in Florida.

A disturbance over the Northwest produced rain and snow showers accompanied by gusty winds over the northern Rockies where Cutbank, Mont. reported gusts to 68 mph. Occasional rain with periods of sunshine prevailed over the Pacific Northwest.

High pressure areas centered over Texas and Utah were associated with general rain through the southwest. Temperatures in the central portion of th country ranged from the 30s and 40s in the northern border states to the 60s in Texas with Rapid City, S.D., one of the warmer stations where 62 was reached during the morning. Courts Seeking Justice

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

BROWN

PATRICK AFB—The room didn't look much like a courtroom, but two lawyers were arguing a case.

"I object! — it's irrelevant and immaterial," declared one.

The witness closed his mouth on half-said words.

"If it please the court . . .," began the other attorney.

"Sustained," snapped a dignified lieutenant colonel who was the "judge" at this general court-martial.

The general court-martial room looked strange. It was just a big rectangular room without "bench" or "box" and one in which the judge and the jury seemed to be in the wrong places.

But the arguments of counsel were familiar, and it was clear the case was being carefully tried . . . that the accused was "innocent until proven guilty."

Before the court was the case of the United States vs. A3C Jose D. M. Sisneros, in which the government contended the defendant had beaten and robbed a Brevard County civilian.

Sitting in judgment was a seven-officer panel, headed by Col. Harry Halberstadt. Capt. John Kennedy, a lawyer, was prosecuting for the U.S., and Maj. Arnold C. Castle, another lawyer, was defending Sisneros.

The dignified lieutenant colonel was the legal officer. He ran the trial as a Circuit Court judge would.

Follow Rules

CAPT. KENNEDY'S presentation of the government's case convinced the tribunal Sisneros had assaulted Kenneth L. Trumbull of Melbourne and "wrongfully appropriated" Trumbull's car, but failed to convince the officers Sisneros had stolen six pieces of personal porperty which Trumbull lost during the assault.

This was no fast trial. Maj. Castle had the same opportunities to defend that he would have had in a civilian court.

Before it was over, the facts of the case had been laid bare — in accordance with accepted rules of evidence.

In the end Sisneros was sent to prison for 18 months, "broken" to basic airman, given a bad conduct discharge, and ordered to forfeit two-thirds of all the pay he'll get in prison.

* * *

It's Important

FEW BREVARD citizens will ever enter this courtroom, but the court is important to them.

Here any crime — including murder, espionage, or treason — can be tried, and the tribunal is an important one among the courts that mete out the punishment prescribed by law to protect law-abiding citizens.

Airman Sisneros' conviction will be posted at Patrick for other servicemen to see. It might help keep them from committing a crime like his.

That's the same thing Brevard's Circuit Court is trying to do when it punishes a civilian criminal.

Three Injured In Road Crash

MELBOURNE — Three persons, including a deputy sheriff responding to a call, were sent to the hospital here Sunday after a three-car crash on S. Dixie Hwy.

Melbourne Police Sgt. Frank George listed the injured as: Deputy D. G. Gardner of Malabar, broken jaw and right knee lacerations; Blanch Camble, of Palm Bay, leg and internal injuries, and Betty Minchew, of Wabasso, leg lacerations.

Sgt. George said Mrs. Camble driving north, turned in front of the deputy's car. The impact knocked her car into another driven by Harris T. Minchew of Wabasso.

SANDY SHOES FESTIVAL MAR. 2-8

Whoa, Pardner!

Wyatt E. (what else but Earp?) Jenkins appears to be getting ready to halt traffic on U.S. 1 in Fort Pierce for the start of the annual Sandy Shoes Festival there today. Wyatt, perhaps the youngest active cowpoke, is the five-month old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Jenkins of Fort Pierce.

Historical Pageant Today Starts Sandy Shoes Event

By DOUG SILVER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE—The Sandy Shoes Festival — the annual whoop-de-doo at which a community knocks itself out to provide visitors with a good time and a look at real Florida life — starts here Monday.

It's March, so the festival comes in like a lion — with a full sized historical pageant today But it goes out like a horse, in fact like hundreds of horses, with the Cattleman's Day Parade Saturday.

The pageant is "Along These Waters" — where history and legend come to life in the story of St. Lucie County's pioneers who got "sand in their shoes" and stayed. It's written and produced by Ada Coats Williams with music by Laura Hewitt Whipple.

The Cattlemen's Parade, under the direction of Sandy Gibson, features more than 300 horses from nearby ranches. It also has elaborate floats, clowns, and bands. More than 1,000 people will take part.

The festival doesn't end with the parades as it is followed by a Lion's Club barbecue, street dance, policemen's ball, art exhibit and golf tournament. The art show is Saturday and Sunday and the golf Sunday.

In between the pageant and the weekend activities there are all kinds of events calculated to entertain visitors and home folks.

Tuesday is Beach Day — put on by the St. Lucie County Recreation Department. This includes swimming, a simulated sea rescue and a fishing derby.

On Wednesday there's a flower show tour — sponsored by the St. Lucie Federation of Garden Clubs. It's known as the "Festival of Flowers."

Thursday is Citrus Day, sponsored by the Fort Pierce Jaycees, with Tommy Sloan in charge. This includes a citrus grove tour and a novel feature, called a Citrus Feast.

Ten unusual citrus dishes are available, plus all the orange juice one can drink — plus the crowning of a local lovely known as "Miss Delicious Dish."

Water Events Day is Friday, produced by the Pelican Yacht Club, and Coast Guard Auxiliary, directed by John B. Park.

Friday is jammed with marine activity, including a closed course ski race, boat races, yacht club pool show with gal swimmers and the Sandy Shoes dancers. The big water show day winds up with a Pelican Yacht Club dance.

8 Persons Killed In Accidents

By the Associated Press

At least eight persons perished this weekend in Florida accidents.

H. J. Bartleson, 31, of Cocoa Beach, a missile engineer, was killed Sunday when his automobile skidded broadside into a truck on the rainswept Cocoa Beach-Cape Canaveral road.

A pedestrian, identified as Alphonso Sheridan, 78, was killed by an automobile on the Tamiami Trail in Miami Sunday.

Ressie Henry Tyre, 48, of Orlando was killed in a traffic crash on State Rd. 15, 13 miles south of Okeechobee, Saturday night.

Five-year-old Rita Robbins of Delray Beach was thrown to pavement from a car and fatally crushed when the machine rolled over on her Saturday at Boca Raton. The child's father, William Jr., about 30, suffered a possible concussion in the upset, which occurred as he test-drove a new foreign car on an abandoned air strip.

Mrs. Elizabeth P. Cason, 53, was killed when her light truck blew a tire and overturned on the Jacksonville Expressway Saturday.

A motorcycle hit a bridge rail at Clearwater Saturday and flung two riders to the ground. Dale Miller, 14, died of internal injuries, and Tommy Parsons, 16, was critically hurt.

The body of Edward Zeek, 12, was found Sunday, noosed to a shower curtain rod by his belt, at his Fort Lauderdale home. Detective Sgt. John Boyd said it appeared the boy had playfully looped the belt over the rod and his head, then slipped.

Utility Levy Fight

Key West Board May Repeal Tax

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — The controversial utility tax will be up for a repeal vote at the meeting of the City Commission tonight, the Herald learned.

Reliable sources disclosed that at least two of the five commissioners are in favor of throwing out the tax, enacted Nov. 17.

The tax, a 10 per cent surcharge across the board on all electricity, telephone and gas bills, has been unpopular.

Voters' petition, with 3,669 signatures, asking repeal, was submitted to the council in December, but rejected as being invalid.

The question of validity is pending in court.

The predicted move to repeal the tax tonight would be the first crack to appear publicly in the solid front maintained by the municipal governing board since it unveiled the tax and a related revenue bond issue for a proposed multi-million dollar civic improvement program.

The tax was adopted despite considerable opposition, and consumers have been paying it since Jan. 1. But the schedule for the improvement program suffered two setbacks in Circuit Court last week.

The court upheld a taxpayers' plea for a full-scale hearing on the petition for repeal of the utility tax, and denied, at least temporarily, validation of the $2,750,000 bond issue.

Observers feel the battle to put over the program and legal reverses have brought a division in the City Commission.

It is still uncertain, however, whether the motion to repeal the utility tax would carry.

Legislators Hope for Quick Decision

Last Resort Bill May Erupt Early

Governor's Veto Seen Ineffective

TALLAHASSEE—(AP)—Things are building up for the integration battle to erupt the opening day of the 1959 Legislature, and most everyone hopes it will be over quickly.

It appears now that the two bills which will stir up the most talk will be tossed in at the legislative opening April 7—the last resort school closing bill and the parent option tuition plan.

Both these proposals stand a good chance of final passage, whether or not Gov. LeRoy Collins accepts them. The governor hasn't said how he stands on parent option but has indicated rather clearly he still opposes the last resort proposal he vetoed in 1957.

Also in prospect are bills designed to strengthen the pupil assignment law and one even stronger than the "last resort" bill which conceivably could shut down all public schools if necessary to head off integration. The latter proposal, if introduced, would encounter strong opposition from friends of the public school.

Legislators are doing a lot of talking now about new legislation to strengthen Florida's hand in the fight to block integration, and likely it'll carry into the early days of the session.

But many of the lawmakers say privately that they hope the issues can be decided conclusively in the first two weeks so that other business of the legislature won't be gummed up.

These legislators, and state officials as well, are fearful that if the legislature should get into a prolonged battle over this highly emotional subject, other important work of the session would be buried in a sea of bitterness.

House Speaker Designate Thomas D. Beasley said the agitation for stronger legislation in the racial field was fired up by recent action of the Dade County School Board in admitting four Negroes to a white elementary school in Miami next September.

Framers of the anti-integration "manifesto" signed by more than a score of legislators said the action was prompted by the Dade decision.

A "last resort" bill already has been prepared by the attorney general's office for introduction by Rep. J. W. McAlpin of Hamilton County. A similar bill likely will be put into the Senate opening day also.

It provides for calling a referendum on the issue of closing down a school upon petition of 15 per cent of the residents of the area affected. Such a plan would be used in event a school was faced with integration.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Ralph Odum is shaping up the parent option tuition plan so it will be ready for introduction opening day. In general it would authorize parents to withdraw children from schools faced with integration and authorize payment of tuition grants to send them to non-church private schools.

Lifeguard, Surfboard Save Four

By BILL BECK
Delray Bureau Chief

BOCA RATON — A daring lifeguard, using a surfboard, rescued four men at the mouth of the Boca Raton inlet in an action-packed hour Saturday.

Two 16-foot outboards capsized and two men were thrown from the bridge of a 40-foot fishing boat as towering swells, crashing on an offshore sandbar made the narrow inlet all but impassable for small craft.

A total of seven people were fighting for their lives in the boiling surf between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. No one drowned, or was seriously injured.

Three men were in a 16-foot boat, swamped 200 yards offshore. Lifeguard Tom Blake, skimming over the waves on an 11-foot surfboard, ferried them to safety, one at a time.

The first of the three rescued could not swim, according to Blake, and was being held up by a companion.

Minutes before, another boat of the same size overturned, but the two occupants, using life preserver cushions, made it safely to shore.

Before Blake could return to his post at the nearby Boca Raton Hotel cabana club, two men on the flying bridge of a 40-foot boat were pitched overboard, as the craft broached on the crest of a 10-foot wave.

Blake brought in one of the men on his board. The other swam 300 yards to a sand bar and waded the rest of the way.

The boat, identified as the Island Fisher, unmanned and under power, turned and started out to sea.

The Coast Guard reported that a charter boat caught the runaway and anchored it offshore. The boat was towed to the Peanut Island Coast Guard Station.

Firemen and police reported that, in the excitement, they failed to get names of the capsizing victims.

Blake, who rescued two boys from the same inlet with his surfboard less than five months ago, is a professional swimmer and a advocate of the surfboard as a safety device.

Slatons Divorced

WEST PALM BEACH — Jeannette C. Slaton won her final decree Friday against her husband, George W. Slaton, former chairman of the Palm Beach County School Board. The decree was signed by Circuit Judge James R. Knott.

Dutch Ship Will Load Grapefruit

Herald Service

FORT PIERCE — The MV Degero, of the Holland American Line, is due here Friday to load 15,000 half boxes of grapefruit — the first fruit to leave Fort Pierce for Europe by water since May.

Conrad Hardie, manager of the Indian River Refrigeration Terminal said about half the grapefruit will be from the Indian River.

The freeze last year cut off the flow of ships which had been sailing regularly to Europe with citrus.

WEST PALM BEACH — Franklin Mitchell, 32-year-old Negro of 706½ Seventh St. was held here Saturday for the murder of David Pickett, 38, of 614½ Seventh St. Police said Pickett was shot to death late Friday night and that Mitchell admitted to the shooting. Pickett was shot twice with bullets from a .22 caliber "vest-pocket" postol, police said.

Engineer, 31, Dies in Skid Near Cape

Herald Bureau

COCOA BEACH — A 31-year-old missile engineer died early Sunday when his car skidded into the path of another on a rain slick highway to Cape Canaveral.

Killed was H. J. Bartleson of 407 Dempsey Dr., Cocoa Beach.

Daniel Hausner, Celestial Trailer Park, Cocoa Beach, driver of the other car, was injured. Hospital authorities declined to detail his injuries.

Deputy Sheriffs A. C. Fouracker and Tillman McHenry said they had not fully reconstructed the 2 a.m. accident, which occurred during a driving rain.

The two officers said Bartleson apparently lost control of his car and skidded broadside into the path of Hausner's machine on State Rd. 401, about three miles south of Cape Canaveral.

Two Groups Working

West Coast Atomic Power Due in 1963

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Technical work has been underway since last March on a 50,000 kilowatt atomic power plant expected to be built on the Florida west coast by June, 1963.

President Philip Sporn of the American Electric Power Co., New York, told a congressional committee studies began then on plant equipment and layout and nuclear reactor design.

Tests on corrosion and heat transfer characteristics will begin soon, he reported.

The Atomic Energy Commission announced Thursday it has signed a contract with two private utilities combines authorizing construction and operation of the plant. Its location has not been designated yet.

Sporn said the combines, East Central Nuclear Group, Inc., and Florida West Coast Nuclear Group, expect to spend over $2,800,000 on the project this year.

Planning, development and construction will cost a total of about 44 million dollars.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠AQ94 ♥A106 ♦5 ♣AJ1095

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♥	Pass
1♠	Pass	3♥	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Five hearts. A mere raise to four hearts would not be adequate. Up to this point you have not indicated that you have a hand of over minimum values. The sequence, one club, one heart, one spade, may be made on a rock bottom minimum. When partner jumps you should do more than make a forced raise. With two hearts and two diamonds, four hearts would be the proper call. The recommended sequence describes a singleton in the fourth suit.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠AQ6 ♥AQJ4 ♦KQJ107 ♣5

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Double. The appropriate way to show the strength of this hand is not by a reverse bid of three hearts or a jump bid in diamonds, both of which shows a strong hand, but both of which might not allow for the possibility that your partner might have a spade suit.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠AQJ64 ♥K92 ♦AK4 ♣K5

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite partner's previous pass, the prospects for a slam are extremely bright. It is almost inconceivable that partner is aceless, but if you have any qualms you may try it out with Blackwood, or at least bid four diamonds to observe partner's reactions. For a mere bid of four spades, a glaring demerit is in order.

Q. 4—As South you hold:
♠J109742 ♥1083 ♦A4 ♣Q6

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♦	3♣	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. Your hand has assumed great proportions now that partner has made a take-out-double at the level of three. A bid of only three spades would indicate a forced response and would almost surely be passed by partner.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠KQJ5 ♥AQ ♦K10987 ♣94

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♦	Pass	1♥	2♣

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. This is perhaps a shade light for a reverse bid but we consider it proper procedure in order to guard against being shut out of the spade suit. Partner should realize that you opened with one diamond in anticipation of rebidding one spade over a possible heart response and developments have put you in position where you must make a slightly aggressive bid.

Q. 6—With 60 part score your partner opens one club. You hold:
♠K64 ♥KQJ105 ♦AK63 ♣7

What is your response?

A.—One heart. A jump shift is not recommended at this point. It is better to get in one free round of bidding which may permit a better basis for the decision on the next round. True enough, a jump shift would be forcing tho it completes the game. Nevertheless, with a partner of uncertain quality, the safer procedure is to bid one heart which even the most timid player will not pass.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠KJ653 ♥87 ♦K3 ♣KQ65

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♦	1♥

What do you bid now?

A.—One spade. The jump shift is not indicated tho you passed an optional opening. If partner has some shaded third hand opening with nothing in spades, you do not wish to apply the pressure. If he has a sound hand he will bid again and then will come your try for game.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠95 ♥932 ♦AJ4 ♣AK976

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds. This is not intended as an ace showing bid. Actually we are deliberately deceiving partner into believing we have a diamond suit so that he might contract for game in no trump if he holds the protection in hearts. Since we have the equivalent of an opening bid and partner has opened, there should be a game.

New Fear Descends On Arabs

By GEORGE WELLER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

NICOSIA — Israel's gathering in of Romanian Jews has confronted the troubled Arabs with the same strange East-West lineup "against Arab Palestine" as at Israel's birth 10 years ago.

WELLER

Once again Communist bureaucrats, Israel statesmen and American Zionists are oddly harnessed together in a collective effort that alarms the Arab world. The Arabs see the chances of 1,000,000 Arab refugees' recovering their homes dwindling.

Above this immediate flood of Romanian Jews hangs another huge thundercloud of Russia's three million Jews. Israel's Premier David Ben-Gurion has stated Israel's capacity to receive this exact number.

United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser has clutched at Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's promise not to let Ben-Gurion's people go. Nasser said Russia itself had called such Arab fears "fictitious and an imperialist intrigue."

So far Russia has used only water-drop torture on the Arabs, having released about 50,000 Polish and Soviet Jews in the Suez invasion year, 1956, when the Arabs hardly noticed.

Pill-Packing 'Bomber' Is Released

HOUSTON, Tex. — (UPI) — Authorities turned loose a pill-packing ex-convict who threatened to blow up Houston's main post-office if a clerk didn't hand over $1,000.

Clifford Bottomfield, 49, said the threat was part of a plan to get medical attention "one way or another" for his asthma and heart trouble.

He carried no bomb with him. All he had in his pockets were bottles of pills, cough drops, gargles and patent medicines.

Authorities declined to press charges after Bottomfield told them he had no intention of blowing up the post office.

Bottomfield said he has been in prison five times and thought he might get medical care if he was sent back.
